AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents; having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and, if accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 13. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

LAWS

OF THE

UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 71.]

AN ACT to provide for the establishment of life-saving stations and houses of refuge upon the sea and lake coasts of the United States, and to promote the efficiency of the life-saving service.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to establish life-saving stations, life-boat stations, and houses of refuge, for the better preservation of life and property from shipwreck, at or in the vicinity of the following named points upon the sea and lake coasts of the United States, namely:

ON THE COAST OF DELAWARE.

Cape Henlopen, a complete life-saving station; Indian River, a complete life-saving station.

ON THE COAST OF MARYLAND.

Green Run Inlet, a complete life-saving station.

ON THE COAST OF VIRGINIA.

Chincoteague, a complete life-saving station; Watchapreague Inlet, a complete life-saving station; Hog Island, a complete life-saving station; Sandy Shoal Island, a complete life-saving station; Smith's Island, a complete life-saving station.

ON THE COAST OF FLORIDA.

About eighteen miles north of Indian River Inlet, a house of refuge; Gilbert's Bar, a house of refuge; near Orange Grove, a house of refuge; between Hillsborough and New River Inlet, a house of refuge; about ten miles south of New River Inlet, a house of refuge.

ON THE COAST OF WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Neah Bay, a life-boat station; Shoalwater Bay, a life-boat station; Cape Disappointment, a life-boat station.

ON THE COAST OF OREGON.

Cape Arago, a life-boat station.

ON THE COAST OF CALIFORNIA.

Humboldt Bay, a life-boat station; Point Reyes, a life-boat station; between Point Lobos and Point San Pedro, a life-boat station; Point Concepcion, near the lighthouse, a life-boat station.

ON THE COAST OF LAKE ONTARIO.

Mexico Bay, about seven miles westward of Stony Point, a complete life-saving station; Mexico Bay, about seven miles eastward of Nine Mile Point, a complete life-saving station; Oswego, a life-boat station; Charlotte, a life-boat station.

ON THE COAST OF LAKE ERIE.

Buffalo, a life-boat station; Presque Isle, a complete life-saving station; Fairport, a life-boat station; Cleveland, a life-boat station; Marblehead (Sandusky,) a life-boat station.

ON THE COAST OF LAKE HURON.

Point aux Barques, a complete life-saving station; Tawas, a complete life-saving station; Sturgeon Point, a complete life-saving station; North Point, Thunder Bay, a life-boat station; Forty-Mile Point, a complete life-saving station.

ON THE COAST OF LAKE MICHIGAN.

ON THE COAST OF LAKE SUPERIOR.

Between White Fish Point and Point au Sauble, four complete life-saving stations.

SEC. 2. That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized, whenever, in his opinion, it may become necessary for the proper administration of the life-saving service, and the protection of the public property at the stations and houses of refuge herein authorized to be established, to appoint one superintendent for the coasts of Delaware and Virginia, one for the coast of Florida, one for the coasts of Lakes Erie and Ontario, one for the coasts of Lakes Huron and Superior, and one for the coast of Lake Michigan, and also a keeper for each of said stations and houses of refuge; and the said superintendents shall have the powers and perform the duties of inspectors of customs.

SEC. 3. That the compensation of each of the superintendents, to be appointed under the provisions of the preceding section, shall not exceed one thousand dollars per annum; and the compensation of the keepers shall not exceed two hundred dollars per annum, except that those employed at the houses of refuge on the Florida coast shall reside in said houses and receive a compensation at the rate of forty dollars per month.

SEC. 4. That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to appoint an assistant to the superintendent of the coast of Long Island and Rhode Island, who shall perform the duties required of the superintendent at the life-saving stations within the State of Rhode Island, and reside on Block Island, and for his services he shall receive an annual salary of five hundred dollars.

SEC. 5. That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to employ crews of experienced surfmen at such of the stations herein denominated complete stations and at such of the life-boat stations on the Pacific coast as he may deem necessary and proper, for such periods, and at such compensation, not to exceed forty dollars per month, as he may deem necessary and reasonable.

SEC. 6. That the Secretary of the Treasury may accept the services of volunteer crews of any of the life-boat stations herein authorized, who shall be subject to the rules and regulations governing the life-saving service; and a list of the names of each crew shall be kept in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury. Such volunteers shall receive no compensation except a sum of not more than ten dollars each for every occasion upon which they shall have been instrumental in saving human life, and such of the medals herein authorized, as they may be entitled to under the provisions hereinafter made: Provided, That no payment shall be made to any person who shall not have actually participated in the efforts to save the life or lives rescued.

SEC. 7. That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby directed to cause to be prepared medals of honor, with suitable devices, to be distinguished as life-saving medals of the first and second class, which shall be bestowed upon any persons who shall endanger their own lives in saving, or endeavoring to save lives from perils of the sea, within the United States or upon any American vessel; Provided, That the medal of the first class shall be confined to cases of extreme and heroic daring; and that the medal of the second class shall be given in cases not sufficiently distinguished to deserve the medal of the first class: Provided, also, That no award of either medal shall be made to any person until sufficient evidence of his deserving shall have been filed with the Secretary of the Treasury and entered upon the records of the Department.

SEC. 8. That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to make all necessary regulations for the government of the life-saving service not inconsistent with law.

SEC. 9. That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to dispose of, to the best advantage, after due condemnation by board of survey, such articles or materials belonging to the life-saving service as may, from long continued use or other cause, become unserviceable and the proceeds of such sale shall be covered into the Treasury.

SEC. 10. That from and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, whenever, any vessel of the United States has sustained or caused any accident involving the loss of life, the material loss of property, or any serious injury to any person, or has received any material damage affecting her seaworthiness or her efficiency, the managing owner, agent, or master of such vessel shall, within five days after the happening of such accident or damage, or as soon thereafter as possible, send, by letter to the collector of customs of the district wherein such vessel belongs or of that within which such accident or damage occurred, a report thereof, signed by such owner, agent, or master, stating the name and official number (if any) of the vessel, the port to which she belongs, the place where she was, the nature and probable occasion of the casualty, the number and names of those lost, and the estimated amount of loss or damage to the vessel or cargo; and shall furnish, upon the request of either of such collectors of customs, such other information concerning the vessel, her cargo, and the casualty as may be called for; and if he neglect or refuse to comply with the foregoing requirements after a reasonable time, he shall incur a penalty of one hundred dollars.

SEC. 11. That whenever the managing owner or agent of any vessel of the United States has reason, owing to the non-appearance of such vessel or to any other circumstance, to apprehend that such vessel has been lost, he shall, as soon as conveniently may be, send notice, in writing, to the collector of customs of the port to which said vessel belonged, of such loss, and the probable occasion thereof stating the name and the official number (if any) of the vessel, and the names of all persons on board, so so far as the same can be ascertained, and shall furnish, upon request of the collector of such port, such additional information as he may be able; and if he neglect to comply with the above requirement within a reasonable time, he shall incur a penalty of one hundred dollars.

SEC. 12. That it shall be the duty of the collectors of customs to immediately transmit to the Secretary of the Treasury such reports and information as they may receive under the provisions of the two preceding sections, and they shall also report to the Secretary of the Treasury any neglect or refusal on the part of the managing owner, agent, or master of any vessel of the United States to comply with the requirements thereof.

SEC. 13. That the Secretary of the Treasury may, upon application therefor, remit or mitigate any penalty provided for in this act, or discontinue any prosecution to recover the same, upon such terms as he, in his discretion, shall think proper, and shall have authority to ascertain the facts upon all such applications in such manner and under such regulations as he may think proper; all penalties hereinbefore provided shall be prosecuted by indictment or information before the proper district court for the use of the United States.

Old-Time Minstrelsy.

The following chapter in the history of negro minstrelsy in the United States is not only interesting reading, but of permanent value. Minstrelsy is a true American institution, and no country but ours could have furnished it to the world. While it has delighted millions at home, it has been equally acceptable abroad, and for long years to come, it will be prominent in the entertainments of the people. The presence in town of one of the very earliest of Ethiopian minstrels, and one whose name is identified with its history and success, has afforded the opportunity for the conversation printed below. The thousand and one friends of Mr. Sanford and the public generally will, no doubt, be pleased with its perusal.

Reporter—"As the banjo is inseparable from a minstrel performance, when and where was it first used?"

Mr. S. S. Sanford—"The first trace we have of the instrument in public is at the old Tremont Theatre, Boston, in 1799. This is only traditionary, however, as there is no written account of it. The idea of the instrument undoubtedly had its origin from the gourd, which the negroes South used to make into a kind of banjo."

"And, to your knowledge, who was the first man who blacked his face as a minstrel?"

"It was T. D. Rice, who became so famous as 'Jim Crow' and 'Long Tail Blue.' He was a lamp-lighter in a theatre in Louisville when Mrs. Drake, the ancestor of the Chapman sisters, was there. He first sung the song at a benefit. It represented a local character of Louisville, and made a great hit. You recollect it:

I wish I was the President
Of these United States:
I'd lick molasses candy
And swing upon the gates.
Wheel about and turn about,
And to just so,
And every time I wheel about
I jump Jim Crow.

"He also did the famous opera of 'Oh Hush!' That opera was written by a Kentuckian, Phil. White, who became prothonotary of Philadelphia, and was noted as a temperance lecturer. Rice went to England in 1837 to 'star' on his own account and in his own pieces. His success was immense. He was very patriotic, though, and wore on his coat and vest, and pants even, American gold coin for buttons, eagles, half-eagles and two-and-a-half pieces."

"When was negro minstrelsy first organized?

"It was on the occasion of Dick Pelham's benefit in the latter part of 1842. The band was composed of Pelham, Frank Brewer, now dead, Dick Emmett, now keeping a saloon in Chicago, Billy White-lock, now in the Custom-house, New York, and myself."

"A what songs did you have on the programme?"

"We had such as 'Dan Tucker,' 'Boatman Dance,' 'Jim along Josey,' 'Jimmy, you get your hoe cake done,' 'Massa in the cold ground,' 'Lucy Long,' etc. 'Lucy Long,' 'Lucy Neal,' 'Lubly Fanny,' etc., were done without a petticoat, and there were individual burlesques in those days, a la Fanny Elisler, by Dan. Gardner, or Barney Williams."

"Barney Williams, did you say?"

"Yes, Barney was an ambitious performer, and he wanted to be a minstrel. He would play the bones one night, the tamborine the next, or anything they chose to put him at. You recollect, in 1844, when Clay and Frelinghuysen were running, we used to go about in black singing songs. One day we went up to Raritan, N. J., to serenade Frelinghuysen. The day previous we had been down to Rhode Island to try and sing Gov. Dorr out of his scrape. On this account the Jersey folks took it that we had no right to sing Whig songs, and we received a salute of tomatoes, potatoes, cabbages, turnips, etc. Barney got his Irish up and wanted to fight the whole crowd, but prudence got the better part of valor, and we went down to our boats, and, getting on our day clothes, escaped. There was in the company at that time a man by the name of Sam. Johnson, who is now a millionaire of St. Louis. He was called the Green Mountain boy, and was a fantastic fiddler."

MASTER JUBA.

"Who was the first real black boy in the business?"

"It was Master Juba. He was a great rival of John Diamond. He was jet black, but full of talent as a jig dancer and a bone player. He died in England in 1849. He was the first colored boy associated with minstrelsy. Not to be irreverent, he was the 'John the Baptist,' preceding by a few years the Jubilee Singers of Tennessee, who are now before the public with the full chorus of songs, of which Master Juba's were the herald. His voice was a promise then that in the future we should hear as we now do, the organized melody of the Hampton students. But success and drink killed Juba. He was fairly feted in English society; the great Jullien brought him out in connection with his monster concerts, and in Vauxhall Gardens the Duke of Wellington took him by the hand and complimented him for his talent. He went to England with an American company, at a salary of $30 per week, and before he left, Jullien gave him fifty pounds, or two hundred and fifty dollars per week."

RIGHTS AND THE OPERA.

Speaking of Barney Williams reminds us to ask if minstrelsy pays as well as the legitimate business.

"Perhaps not as a rule. Yet, John E.

Owens may attribute his success, or his first start in life, to playing 'Uncle Tom.' He played it at the St. Charles Theatre, Baltimore, under his own management. He was Uncle Tom, with the Howard family, which played Eva, Topsy, and St. Clair. That engagement secured his present homestead, liquidated all his debts, and brought him out with thousands of dollars in his pocket."

"And what has it done for the opera?"

"I might mention hundreds who have graduated from minstrelsy into opera. There are two of the old heroes, Campbell and Castle, now engaged with Clara Louise Kellogg. Perhaps they are the most tamed. Others again have become famous as circus performers, like Charles Sherwood, for instance, who was once a rival of Diamond and Juba. Sherwood you will remember as the original performer in the ring of Pete Jenkins in the drunken scene. This was before Dan. Rice's day. He was a negro singer, and so were Roston and Murray. The latter is now proprietor of his own circus."

THE FIRST MANAGER AND AUTHOR OF "DIXIE."

"Who was the first regular manager?"

"It was Joe Sweeney, of Lynchburg, Va. He first brought the banjo, speaking of that, into notoriety, 1837, '37, '38, and '39, traveling with circuses. His success was nearly equal to T. D. Rice's. During the winter seasons he played star engagements throughout the United States, singing the songs of 'Johnny Boker,' 'Whar did you come from,' 'Who's dat nigger dar a peeping,' etc. Before the regular band, he went to England, Ireland and Scotland, singing with much success. After organizing a company of his own, he died in Washington, in 1856 or '57."

"And who, in order, comes next to Sweeney?"

"Well, I must mention the great author of, 'I wish I was in Dixie.' President Lincoln wished to have that proclaimed as a national song. He said once, 'If they (the South) steal the country—don't let them steal that song.' Emmett has furnished minstrel troupes with many of their songs, and nearly all their popular walk arounds, such as 'Ain't I Glad,' 'Come out of de Wilderness,' etc. Artemus Ward wrote one popular song, 'Hand down the Trumpet.' He got the points from a camp-meeting in Ohio."

SAM. S. SANFORD'S CAREER.

"It is only fair, Sam, that you should tell us something of yourself, for we don't want the play of Hamlet with Hamlet left out."

"I entered the field as a boy in 1835. The present Ole Bull Myers played the violin and I sung the songs of 'Coal Black Rose,' 'Sitting on a Rail,' etc. Afterwards I organized a company consisting of Dan. Rice, Von Bonhurst, Master Roston and others, and we traveled through Pennsylvania. Finally, in the fall of 1843, I organized a company of my own, made up of Wm. Myers, (brother of Ole Bull), John Diamond, Eph Horn, and Purcell. That company disbanded the same year, and I then assumed the management of the Buckley family. That summer we took a tour South, from Washington, having for our traveling companions, Henry Clay, John Tyler and Robert J. Walker. We gave concerts at the Springs. While at White Sulphur, playing the tamborine in the railroad overture, I fell over after butting my head against it. Clay ran from the audience to pick me up, and joined heartily in the laugh with the rest when he found out it was all in the play. At Lexington, Ky., Mr. Clay took the company out to Ashland where we sung for the gratification of his family and friends. President Polk, who saw the performance in Washington, gave us letters to friends in Nashville, and we sung at his home in Tennessee. We also visited the Hermitage. Success was great, and we went to New Orleans, stopping at the principal towns on the way. While in New Orleans I was induced by Sol. Smith—father of Mark Smith, who recently died in New York—to take the company to England. There and in Scotland we had great success, and traveled under the auspices of Henry Russell, author of 'Man the Life Boat,' 'The Maniac,' etc. After a tour of some thirty months we returned to the United States, just previous to the election of General Taylor.

"How did you find things on your return?"

"I found that Christy's minstrels had been organized. They were the first to make a standpoint in New York, and that gave them a wide reputation. However, we played at the Bowery Theatre for two months, and then located on Broadway as a rival of Christy, but concluding that one company was enough for New York I went to Philadelphia and opened Musical Fund Hall, and after four months changed to Mason Hall, on Chestnut Street, remaining there until the property was sold. I then built an opera-house, corner of Twelfth and Chestnut streets, which was destroyed by fire in the height of a prosperous season."

POOR AUTHORS.

"After that reverse what did you do?"

"Why, I took the road again, travelling South, and had with me, Nelson Kneass."

"Who's he."

"He was the author and originator of very many popular songs. He and Stephen Foster are the two bards of the minstrel. Kneass wrote 'Hear the whoops upon the hills,' 'Wake up Jake,' 'Ben Bolt,' 'Hold your horses,' 'Juniata Johnson,' etc. Kneass belonged to Philadelphia, and as a boy was dressed in petticoats on the stage. He was with the Woods at Park Theatre in New York, when English Opera was first produced. He died poor and unattended by friends in Cincinnati. I dislike to say it, but he was found dead in a water closet. The publishers of 'Ben Bolt' made $50,000 from that one song alone, and its author often needed bread. Foster, too, was a great genius. He was the author of "Old Folks at Home,' 'The old Kentucky Home,' 'Hard times come again no more,' 'Uncle Ned,' 'Massa in the cold, cold ground,' and 'Come where my love lies dreaming.' He died in Pittsburg ten years ago, very poor. He did not seem to value money, and spent it, when he had it, like water."

"You were saying you took to the road again?"

"Yes; and after a tour, I returned to Philadelphia to locate again. Did so on Eleventh street, at the place now occupied by Carncross and Dixey's minstrels. That place may be regarded as the homestead of minstrelsy."

"And did you make money?"

"In my first effort there I lost $5,000, but resolved on three months more. The result was favorable, and the first year I made $40,000, turning away people nightly. Had with me W. P. Collins, the first man who dressed as a woman. He used to sing like Caroline Richings, and very often she used to come in with her father, Peter Richings, to hear him. He is now in England with the Christy's. Then I had Dan Gardner and Dixey. They dressed as women too. The establishment was a kind of rendezvous for all the actors. The Wheatleys and Drews used to be there, and John Sleeper Clarke would come to see "Diggory, or the Spectre Bridegroom," and the "American Cousin" in black. Mayor Vaux never in all his life visited any other theatre."

A REMARKABLE CURE.

"The Hemersleys—a noted family of Philadelphia, mother and daughter — never missed a single night for two years. Miss Hemersley had been afflicted from her youth with a spinal disease, which prevented her walking. She had always the best of medical advice, but never received benefit until then. Her family physicians had given up all hopes of her ever getting on her feet, and when she did get well they wanted to confer on me the title of M. D., and now, after varying fortunes, I find myself on the road again."

"How do salaries range in a company?"

"In a first-class company of sixteen they aggregate about $300 per week. Tamborines get from $25 to $125. Bones from $25 to $125. Middle men from $15 to $40 and traveling expenses. Song and dance men get from $60 to $200. Wench performers like Leon, Gardner and Robinson get high prices."

"Well, Sam, how did you lose all your money?"

"Don't speak of it. It was done in various ways. McClellan's failure to be elected President cost me $20,000. Oil speculations and dabbling in stocks and gold sunk a great deal more, and my voice has raised the roof over more than one church in Philadelphia, and Christmas and New Years I used to publicly give away bread to the poor."

The Boston Congregationalist says of Mr. Tilton's "statement:" It does show some facts which fall flatly athwart the path followed in the defence of Mr. Beecher, and which it will be difficult for that defence to surmount.

The public debt statement shows a reduction of $435,417 for September.

The great case of Mrs. Frances Wade against the estate of the late Martin Kalbfleisch has reached a singularly quick decision in the Court of Appeals. The lady sued M. Kalbfleisch in his lifetime for breach of promise of marriage, in damages put at $50,000. Martin ungraciously died before the action came to trial, and forgot to mention the lorn lady in his will. She did not intermit her claim. The wedding having been appointed, prior to the rupture, to take place in the Tabernacle, and the old Dutchman having backed out, the lady's damages were indubitable and her spirit was unbroken. She instructed her lawyers to bring suit against the estate. Chief Justice Neilson decided that the action would not lie. The General Term of the City Court sustained Chief Justice Neilson, and now the Court of Appeals has sustained Chief Justice Neilson. So Mrs. Wade cannot sustain a posthumous complaint. She may consider her heart in the grave of the Old Dutchman, for damages to the anatomical superfluity do not survive as a claim on the estate.

The next municipal election at Chicago is likely to draw out a large vote. The Hartford insurance companies, with the exception of the Atlas, have decided to withdraw their agencies from that city. They think they have lost as much in that quarter as they can afford.

The Grand Hotel at Saratoga was totally destroyed by fire, Thursday. The loss is about $400,000.

The marriage of Miss Sherman and Mr. Fitch was celebrated at Washington, Thursday, with the full ceremonies of the Roman Catholic church, Archbishop Purcell officiating. The occasion was exceptionally brilliant.

It is reported that Margaret Lauk, a Nova Scotia girl, who was sewing for Mrs. Pomeroy, the mother of Jesse, has been missing since the date of the murder of Katie Curran, and that she was last seen entering the store where the Curran murder was committed. The entire premises have been altered and remodelled since that murder, and it is hardly probable that another body is concealed there.

Senator Brownlow publishes a card announcing himself a candidate for Congress from the second congressional district of Tennessee.

Tilton will sue the Brooklyn Eagle for libel.

Thirty houses in Mannis street, New Orleans, were burned Thursday morning. Loss $350,000.

An insurrection has broken out in Buenos Ayres.

State News.

At the continued conclave of the R. E. Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of New Hampshire, in Concord, on the 30th ult., the attendance was very large, every Commandery being represented. The Grand Commander delivered an able address, after which important business was transacted. The following officers were elected and installed: Joseph W. Fellows, of Manchester, R. E. G. Commander; Solon A. Carter, of Keene, V. E. Deputy Commander; John R. Holbrook, of Portsmouth, E. G. Generalissimo; Chauncey H. Green, of Littleton, E. G. Captain General; Thomas J. Sanborn, of Concord, E. G. Prelate; Joseph W. Welch, of Dover, E. G. Senior Warden; Joseph W. Robinson, of Claremont, E. G. Junior Warden; Daniel R. Marshall, of Nashua, E. G. Treasurer; John A. Harris, of Concord, E. G. Recorder; Samuel B. Page, of Concord, E. G. Standard Bearer; John N. Bruce, of Manchester, E. G. Sword Bearer; Joseph W. Hildreth, of Concord, E. G. Warden; Joel Taylor, of Manchester, E. G. Captain of Guards.

The Nashua Telegraph discriminates between the "sworn duty of officials" and the "privileges of citizens" in the matter of the enforcement of the liquor law. Point well taken.

The Proposed Tunnel Under The Niagara.

Mr. William Wallace, an engineer long interested in the proposed tunnel under the Niagara river, has just completed a preliminary survey, of which the following particulars are given:

"On the American shore of the river, the point of departure now chosen by Mr. Wallace for the proposed tunnel, is on the westerly side of the Erie canal, midway between the canal and the Niagara Falls branch of the New York Central railroad, near the bridge over which the latter crosses the canal, which is almost under the heights of Fort Porter. The thorough-cut or open cut which is to give entrance to the tunnel extends from that point straight up between the canal and the Niagara Falls road to a point near the foot of Virginia street, where it attends the surface, and the grade—sixty feet to the mile—is continued until a sufficient elevation is attained for the crossing of the canal, at the foot of Court street, to reach the terrace.

"At its other extremity the proposed tunnel strikes the Canadian shore and becomes open to daylight near the spot where the old engine-house of the Buffalo and Lake Huron railroad stood. Thence a thorough-cut curves northward to avoid the high ground and brings the roadway of the tunnel to the surface in the vicinity of the Episcopal church at Fort Erie, near which an advantageous junction can be made with the Canada Southern railway.

"The length of the tunnel proper on the line proposed would be only 2,940 feet. The length of the thorough-cut on the American side would be about 4,900 feet. In the tunnel proper, assuming it to be 30 feet wide by 20 feet high, the excavation would amount to 65,333 cubic yards. In the thorough-cuts the excavation would amount to 126,898 cubic yards on the American side, and 118,317 cubic yards on the Canadian side. How much of the excavation in the thorough-cuts would be rock, and how much earth, can only be ascertained by means of test-pits.

"These quantities will enable those who have knowledge of such work to form a notion for themselves of the cost of the proposed undertaking. Mr. Wallace makes no estimate, because some of the elements of an accurate calculation are wanting. But many people whose judgment is well-founded express the opinion confidently that the proposed tunnel ought to be built at a cost not much exceeding a million of dollars. Mr. Wallace, in his plan, adopts a grade of 60 feet to the mile each way from the middle of the tunnel, and at the deepest point of the river the roof of the tunnel is about 16 feet below the river-bed."

Louisiana League Talk.

The following resolutions were passed by White League No. 1, of Livingston parish;

"Resolved, That we will have no man on our farms or in our workshops who votes the Radical ticket.

Further resolved, That we consider it beneath our moral dignity to associate with any white man who votes the Radical ticket or affiliates with that party in any manner whatever.

Further resolved, That we pledge our support to the democratic party."

The Baton Rouge Advocate declares the honorable and patriotic purposes of the White League, in these words:

"The Leagues most emphatically deny that they wish to interfere with the political privileges of the black man, and every act of theirs in this parish shows this to be an indisputable fact, and stamps all contrary assertion to be indisputably false, no matter from what source such assertions come."

And yet, spite of all this, there are men who persist in thinking or in pretending to think that the democrats of Louisiana have interfered with the freedom of elections, and that all the corruption and violence and money are not on the side of the republicans, black or white. But this is an incredulous world. There are men who doubt even the necessity of the outrages at Colfax, or the justification of the murder on the Chattanoga railroad. Such people are utterly unfit to enjoy the privileges and blessings of southern society. And they will not long, if the White League holds to its purpose, and is not interfered with, in its beneficent operations.

—If, every time conscience was wronged, it sighed, and every time reason was perverted it uttered complaints, no one could live for the moaning which would fill his soul.

—Bonds that gall a State—Railroad bonds.

Price of Coal in England.

[American Homes.]

The householder who burns ten or twelve tons of coal a year, frets and fumes if he finds he has to pay half a dollar a ton more this year than last, regarding it as an unwarrantable extortion on the part of dealers, but finally pays the bill and forgets the momentary annoyance. To one single consumer the increase above the established price is an annoyance and vexation, but how few single consumers reflect that what simply irritates them may prove at no distant day the commercial ruin of the greatest manufacturing country in the world! A few thinking men in England, finding that this spectre will not down at their bidding, are beginning to look it in the face, and the closer they view it the worse it looks. The prosperity of England depends—not remotely but directly—upon cheap coal;—and last year coal went up in price ten shillings per ton. Ten shillings per ton means that the consumers in England paid for coal £60,000,000 more than they paid the year before! There is something startling in these figures, but they are not to be denied or explained away. It is safe to say, that if coal were to remain at last year's highest rates, British industry would speedily enter upon a period of permanent adversity.

"The Black Crook."

Messrs. Howard & Carle's original Black Crook company, with entirely new costumes, properties, armors, etc., will appear at the Temple this evening. We clip the following notice from a recent number of the Montreal Gazette:

"The managers have fairly won their way to popularity by the real merit of their entertainment, and gained the confidence of the public, despite the strongest opposition that ever beset managerial labor in this city, quietly biding their time and unassumingly fulfilling all their promises, till an, at first, unwilling public has accorded them the highest praise ever bestowed on a dramatic entertainment. The costly dresses, the wondrously beautiful scenery, and the enchanting music have probably never been surpassed. We have previously spoken in terms of extreme commendation regarding the merits of the piece, and can only add that nothing in the slightest degree objectionable has hitherto appeared, and that it is an entertainment which both sexes can admire and enjoy alike."

The Best Yet.

There was little to criticise in the entertainment of which Maffitt and Bartholomew were the principal attractions, Thursday evening. Both pantomimists were at their best and kept the audience convulsed with laughter while on the stage. The music on the rocks and bells by the Jee Brothers was especially worthy of mention, but the silly "chin music" which preceded nearly spoiled it. The performance of Georgie Wambold was too uncomfortable an effort to be applauded. The dog and monkey business had better be abandoned if such cowed canines as Wambold's should be the only ones. Wambold's contortions are disagreeable to a high degree and detract from the entertainment. Managers, we know, wish to please the people, and we can assure them that such features as Wambold introduces are very objectionable. With these trifling exceptions, the show was more than satisfactory, and we hope the managers will give a matinee for the children when they return, (for after such a reception as was accorded them they must surely return,) feeling confident that "the woods are full of" adults who want to see the pantomime at night. And by all means, Messieurs Managers, give us less of Wambold and more of Maffitt.

Hard Knocks.

The crew of schooner "Frank Lamon" made things lively at Concord Railroad wharf, Friday. John Johnson, on being spoken harshly to by the mate, John Higby, was about to strike Higby with an oar, but was check-mated with a hand-spike. Johnson seized the hand-spike and smote Higby over the head, but a revolver stayed further proceedings. James C. Taylor refused to do duty and Higby struck him on the head with the revolver and endeavored to throw him overboard. Taylor retaliated with a belaying pin. Judge Page thought Higby "a sight to see" and fined Johnson $18.04. Taylor was discharged, but was brought before U. S. Commissioner Hackett charged with refusing duty. The charge being proven, Taylor was committed until the schooner shall be in readiness for sea.

City Council.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, the petition of T. S. Nowell and others for a common sewer on Miller Avenue was referred.

Benjamin Norton was granted leave to encumber State street.

Notice was received from the Railroad Commissioners that a hearing for fixing land damages on the P. & D. R. R. would be had on the 7th inst.

The committee on school-houses was authorized to have the Cabot street school-house repaired.

An ordinance was read dividing the street lights into three districts, three lamp-lighters to be chosen annually in October.

Laconics.

Auctioneer Wendell will sell at noon today the ten-roomed dwelling house No. 22 Deer street, with the lot (16,000 feet) of land on which it stands. See advertisement.

A lot of good second-hand furniture, belonging to a gentleman about leaving the city, will be sold to the highest bidder today at Wendell's auction store, 70 State street, sale commencing at 10 o'clock A. M. See advertisement.

Says the Dover Enquirer: After the wrong accomplished in Portsmouth giving its municipal affairs into the control of the minority, and after the like outrages planned but not consummated in Manchester and Dover, it becomes the mouth-pieces of the democracy in this State to shut their mouths even in presence of the worst political frauds in the South.

There is lively growling in the democratic camp among the disappointed office seekers. Two quasi republicans who were promised positions on the police force are left out in the cold, and one threatens a loss of "nineteen votes" to the democracy in consequence. Two republicans who had good navy yard jobs and sold out on election day to the democracy for promised positions on the police force and $10 in cash, and had their claims overwhelmed in the democratic crush, are now reckoning profit and loss. One disappointed chap was so sure of being elected that he donned a police badge, which carried him into Maffitt & Bartholomew's entertainment, and wore it for a half hour, taking it off after a friend informed him that he hadn't been elected.

The steamers Dacia and Ambassador have arrived at Queenstown. They report that the direct cable parted and was lost in a heavy gale. They were engaged with the Faraday for several days in attempts to recover the cable, but without success, and were compelled to return to Queenstown because short of coal and provisions. The Faraday followed them. The Faraday had laid 1500 miles of cable, when it broke in 2500 fathoms. The officers report the cable was broken during the gale, when in longitude 24 west. Buoys were thrown over to mark the position where the cable parted.

—A correspondent writing from Saratoga sends the following: Scene in the dining-room at the United States Hotel, Saratoga, during the Unitarian Conference. Characters—Two colored waiters: "Sambo, who am dese Unitarian people?" "Wy, Pete, don't you know? Dey am de brains of de country." This confab, of course, made the waiters quite popular, and possibly does not lessen their gratuities. Shrewd fellows these colored waiters.

—An old farmer riding in a lumber wagon with his son, when passing over a rough place fell off, and coming into close contact with the wheel, he cried out: "My neck is broke!" His son expressing some doubt as to the case being quite so bad, the old man responded with some spirit: "Don't you s'pose I know!"

—Said a man to the Mayor of New London whom he met at the State Fair, "I have seen beets in California as big as I am." "I beg your pardon," said the Mayor, "but I think that you deceive yourself."

Act on the Defensive.

Persons who are subjected to the influences of bad air and unwholesome water, to constant exposure out of doors and sudden changes of weather, should act on the defensive by imparting to their constitutions the power of resisting such influences. The fortifying effects upon the system of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are simply amazing. Thousands who use them as a preventive of malaria enjoy an absolute immunity from its attacks, although dwelling in regions where that scourge is most prevalent. Artizans and laborers whose occupations keep them in the open air, find the Bitters a complete safeguard against the effects of exposure. Travellers testify that they counteract the influences of torrid heat, intense cold, and miasmatic air. Free from every objectionable feature, pure, indeteriorating, containing only vegetable ingredients, an agreeable stimulant, a wholesome tonic and corrective, and a sovereign protective, it is not surprising that the Bitters should be the most popular of American remedies.

A New Lead.

How many times does 50 go into 250,000? It goes 5000 times. Well, that is a good per cent. even for California. Will the best "lead" ever struck pay as much? Certainly not. But there are strong probabilities that an investment of fifty dollars made in the last Grand Gift Concert, in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky, will pay that per cent. to somebody. Why not to one of us? And then we have only to wait till the 30th of November for the result. eod,w

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

AT PRIVATE SALE.

The convenient and well located HOUSE and the lot of 4000 feet at the corner of Lincoln Avenue and Broad Street, is offered for sale on easy terms. The house has a fine prospect, is located in a portion of the city where gentlemen are rapidly selecting sites for dwellings, and where the best houses are being erected. The house has well arranged rooms, a very cheerful outlook on either side, is supplied with excellent well water introduced into the house, and has garden plot and well built henery attached. The site is peculiarly pleasant, and the opportunity of purchasing a house built for a residence for the owner, and sold only because his business requires his presence in another city, is one that well deserves the attention of any one who desires a home for immediate occupancy. For Sale in Greenland.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced.

The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1300 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the place. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately,—of O. G. ROBINSON, on the premises, or Butler & Laighton, Market Square, or Bailey & Co., Market street. jel

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Voorhees of Indiana recently declared: "The republican party now stands forth the acknowledged champion of a diminished currency in order to return to a system of specie payment. Let those who believe in such a plan of finance prove their sincerity by joining that party." Honest democrats, do you hear this?

The democrats had a mass meeting in St. Louis and expressed the utmost enthusiasm over the uprising in New Orleans. R. J. P. Garesche, a lawyer, was particularly heated, and demanded that the canines of war be at once unleashed. "Damned be he," shrieked Garesche, "who first cries 'hold! enough!'" Give Garesche some raw meat.

One of the most dishonest papers in Ohio is the Cincinnati Enquirer. In its political columns it is constantly declaring that money is scarce, and that we ought to have an unlimited issue of paper money. In its financial columns it says money is easy at fair rates of interest, and that the banks can accommodate all safe borrowers. The Enquirer goes in for repudiation and inflation, and forgets to post its commercial editor as to what he should say.

A mule head took fire in one of the Durfee mills, Fall River, Friday, and the overseers turned all of the help out. For a short time there was more excitement there than there was at the Granite mills. The fire, however, was extinguished without having communicated to any other mule. The prompt action of the overseers in this case is highly commended.

A typhoon in Southern Japan on the 20th of August wrecked several foreign vessels and more than a thousand junks, inflicted terrible damage to houses and farms and caused the loss of hundreds of lives.

Elmer Washburn is appointed chief of the United States secret service, vice Whitely, resigned.

Four tons of gunpowder on a barge lying in Regent's canal, near the zoological gardens, London, exploded with terrible effect, killing several persons and wounding many others, shattering houses and uprooting trees.

When the Cincinnati Enquirer (dem.) says: "We do not think that the democrats of New York have by any means done their best in the nomination of Mr. Tilden," it uses mild language to express an opinion that is uttered by the cheese-press democracy with vigorous blaspheming.

The Mobile Register asks of the Cincinnati Enquirer: "Isn't it about time that a democratic paper is established in Cincinnati under the editorship of men who are not idiots?" To which the New York Commercial Advertiser answers: "Judging the party there by its platform of repudiation, we should say that the thing is about right as it is."

The Columbus (Ohio) Journal makes a point when it says that "the White League murderers and revolutionists are looking to the next Congress as their chief hope of support in their rebellious work. They are helpless unless reinforced, as they expect to be, by Northern democratic Congressmen."

Biddeford Journal: Some months since we spoke of the addition which the editor of the Great Falls Journal was to make to that paper, and said it would be a boy, (or words to that effect.) Now, because it turns out to be a ten pound girl, the happy dad says that as a prognosticator we are not a success—just as though we were responsible for others' mistakes!

In Pennsylvania, according to the Pittsburg Telegraph, the republicans can confidently count on seventeen of the twenty-seven Congressional districts, with one or two doubtful.

Hits the nail on the head, does the Nashua Telegraph, which says President Grant has definitely declined the use of his name as a candidate for a third term; for, quoth the Telegraph, "he informed us that he would have no policy to enforce against the will of the people, and they are ag'in' a third term." Spoken wisely and well, Sir Telegraph!

The President will attend the ceremony of unveiling the Lincoln statue at Springfield, Illinois, and will not return to Washington until after the marriage of his son, Lieutenant-Colonel F. D. Grant, which takes place in Chicago this month.

Two of the oldest and most prominent democrats in the house of representatives express the opinion to their friends that under no circumstances can their party now carry the next house. The best thing they hope for is to reduce the republican majority to about thirty.

Samuel B. Murdoch, convicted a few days ago of sending a threatening letter to Hon. Fernando Wood for the purpose of extorting blackmail, was sentenced to three years in the county jail.

Mr. Beecher had a reception at Plymouth church, Friday evening.

State News.

The Nashua & Rochester Road is already developing business. A party from Pepperell, Mass., has purchased a large lot of wood and timber lying on the estate of the late John Whittier in Fremont. Good judges estimate that it will yield one million and a half of lumber. A steam mill will be located in close proximity to the lot at an early day and work will then begin in earnest. The price paid was $5000.

The Rochester Courier puts it thus: A butcher named Ross, of Northwood, came to Rochester and sold to the Messrs. Wallace a lot of calf skins. Then he started for some gin mill and got drunk, after which he started for home, by way of Strafford. He was seen whipping his horse and swaying back and forth on his wagon seat. When just beyond Strafford Corner, he fell out of the wagon, and when assistance reached him it was found that his skull was broken and his forehead was gashed up badly. He was picked up senseless and taken to Strafford Centre, where he remained in an unconscious state until Sunday morning, when he died. Of course the individual who sold that man the rum is guilty of manslaughter, and is liable to prosecution for damages by the widow and children of the deceased.

—Live as long as you may, the first twenty years are the longest half of your life.

—"Party politics are ignored in Nevada," wrote the editor of the Star Spangled Banner. His intelligent compositor set it up, "Party politicians are ignorant in Nevada." The editor was mad, but the subscribers want to promote the compositor to the post of editor-in-chief for his knowledge of the situation.

—Jennie June got a hat that turned up on one side and her husband criticised it so severely that she wore her old bonnet when she went to see the "Sphinx," and lo! it was the only one there. Everybody had on a new hat, and every one had it turned up high on the side. Said her husband, "Good heavens! have all the women gone crazy?" "Yes," replied she, meekly, "and why can't I go crazy too?" "My dear," said he, you may; it would be ridiculous to be the only sensible woman in the world." So hereafter she is going to wear her gray felt, turned up on one side, in peace.

—The secretary of a down-town New York insurance company, with a friend, was in the crowd at the Brooklyn side of an East river ferry waiting for the gates to open. The insurance man, standing behind his friend, amused himself by picking the pocket of the latter, abstracting therefrom a handkerchief. Hardly had he done so, when he was tapped on the shoulder, and on turning round, was accosted by a gentlemanly looking person, who handed him his own wallet, observing that he never knowingly operated on a brother professional, and was sorry that he had made such a mistake. With a polite bow, the stranger then disappeared.

—An Indiana editor advises people against using a hard pencil and goes on to tell why. His wife desired him to write a note to a lady, inviting her to meet a party of friends at her house. After "Hubby" had done as his wife desired, and started to post the note, she saw on another piece of paper an impression of what he had written. It was: "Sweet Mattie—Effie desires your company on Wednesday, to meet the Smithers. Don't fail to come; and, my darling, I shall have the happiness of a long walk home with you, and a sweet good-night kiss. I dare not see you often, or my all consuming love would betray us both. But Mattie, dear, don't fail to come."

—The New York Evening Post earnestly advises everybody, now, to eat grapes. In a long editorial on their value it says: Emphatically we say that grapes are strong food; that in them we have not only the most healthful and the only naturally adapted sugar, called by chemists grape sugar, infinitely superior to that chiefly exotic product, cane sugar, being more digestible, more natural and more healthful, especially for sedentary persons in temperate climates, but we have also the healthful acids and a notable amount of these nitrogenous essentials which are blood makers, not to speak of the various salts which also become necessary constituents of the blood.

—Yesterday morning, says the Detroit Free Press, an old lady, who lives in the west part of the county, was selling some butter to a grocer on Michigan Avenue, and some one mentioned something about the Beecher scandal. "What is that thing, anyhow?" asked the old lady; "its bin in the papers, but my eyes are poor, and I haven't felt like reading." "Well, it's just this," replied the grocer, as he scraped out the crock; "you see, Beecher hired Mrs. Tilton to knit him twelve pairs of socks, and when she got 'em done he tried to pass a counterfeit bill on her." "Is that so," exclaimed the aged dame; "well, I don't blame the papers a single bit for showing him up—he's worse than a vagaround!"

—The farmers in Colorado are having a pleasant time now. At daylight they get up and examine the holes around the cornhills for cut-worms; then smash coddling moth larvæ with a hoe-handle until breakfast. The forenoon is devoted to watering the potato-bugs with a solution of Paris green, and, after dinner, all hands turn out to chase with flail and broom the festive grasshopper. In the evening a favorite occupation is sitting on the fence figuring how much they would have made had it not been for the bugs; and, after a brief season of devotion at the shrine of the night-flying cleopatera, all the folks retire and sleep soundly till Aurora reddens the east and the grasshoppers tinkle against the window-panes, and summon them to the labors of another day.

—A story is told of a couple of farmers who lived not a great distance apart, one of whom was noted for being very penurious. One day his neighbor called upon him while he was eating dinner, but instead of asking him to sit down to the table with him, he kept on eating and talking just as though the visitor hadn't a mouth in his head. "Well, what is the news, neighbor Brown?" "Nothing much." "No news up your way?" he asked, still helping himself to his good dinner, while his neighbor looked on with anxiety and appetite. "Well, yes; now that I think on't, there is just a grain of news. Mr. Jones' cow has got five calves," replied the visitor. "Five calves! I never heard of such a thing. Why, what the dickens does the fifth one do when the other four are sucking?" "Why, he stands and looks on like a dumb fool, as I am doing now." "Oh, ah! Hannah, put on another plate."

Act on the Defensive.

Persons who are subjected to the influences of bad air and unwholesome water, to constant exposure out of doors and sudden changes of weather, should act on the defensive by imparting to their constitutions the power of resisting such influences. The fortifying effects upon the system of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are simply amazing. Thousands who use them as a preventive of malaria enjoy an absolute immunity from its attacks, although dwelling in regions where that scourge is most prevalent. Artizans and laborers whose occupations keep them in the open air, find the Bitters a complete safeguard against the effects of exposure. Travellers testify that they counteract the influences of torrid heat, intense cold, and miasmatic air. Free from every objectionable feature, pure, undeteriorating, containing only vegetable ingredients, an agreeable stimulant, a wholesome tonic and corrective, and a sovereign protective, it is not surprising that the Bitters should be the most popular of American remedies.

A New Lead.

How many times does 50 go into 250,000? It goes 5000 times. Well, that is a good per cent. even for California. Will the best "lead" ever struck pay as much? Certainly not. But there are strong probabilities that an investment of fifty dollars made in the last Grand Gift Concert, in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky, will pay that per cent. to somebody. Why not to one of us? And then we have only to wait till the 30th of November for the result. eod,w

The Democratic Appointments.

The democrats of this city, and their organ, the Times, in days gone by have had much to say in denunciation of partisan appointments by the republicans, and of the introduction of partisanship into municipal affairs by the ruling party. Presto, change! The democrats have control of the city government, and hasten to turn out all the republican officials and put democrats in their places; this action, however, we suppose is not a specimen of the narrow partisanship so distasteful to the democracy when they are not in power, but is prompted solely by a desire to secure the largest possible benefit to the public—"the public" meaning, of course, the democratic party. Some of the new democratic officials are good men, as their strongest political opponents will admit; some of them are "no better than they should be," and some not nearly so good; while others we know nothing at all about. It is safe to assert, however, that they are all staunch democrats and "good workers for the party," and share fully in the regular democratic scorn and contempt of the introduction of unscrupulous partisanship into municipal affairs—by the republicans! We propose to make brief mention of some of the most prominent of the new officials,—the penalty of greatness in these days is to be rigidly scrutinized, for newspaper men "love a shining mark,"—setting down naught in malice. We commence with City Clerk Mercer Goodrich. Mr. Goodrich is the Mayor's son, is popular with both parties, has been chosen a member of the school committee by the republicans more than once, is a capable man and a gentleman, and will perform the duties of his office faithfully and efficiently. But he lacks the thorough acquaintance with the duties and routine of the office possessed by his predecessor, Hon. Marcellus Bufford, against whose ability, faithfulness and courtesy no one can say a word, and who it is not pretended was turned out for any other reason than his politics.

City Messenger William S. Hazel is a quiet, unobtrusive and gentlemanly young man, is well known as clerk for H. B. Buzzell & Son and clerk of Kearsarge Engine Co., and by his good habits and self-respecting manner has led most of his casual acquaintances to suppose him a republican. He will discharge the duties of his office efficiently and with courtesy.

City Solicitor George E. Hodgdon is known as the proprietor of "Hodgdon's patent for making democratic minorities superior to republican majorities," and has well earned his position by his services as a partisan. The appointment is a good one, for though Mr. Hodgdon is a young man his legal abilities are unquestioned and his persistence is first-class. We have no doubt he will do himself credit and the city good service, as City Solicitor. His election, in spite of Albert R. Hatch's efforts to have the place abolished, is a "side-winder" for that alderman, between whom and Mr. Hodgdon no little antagonism exists, because Mr. Hodgdon didn't think Hatch suitable for a gubernatorial candidate last year. It is evident that the latter's influence with his democratic associates will not be as great as it has been in times past with aldermen elected as republicans.

Street Commissioner Joseph R. Holmes is a thoroughly capable man, of large experience in road-work, enjoys the respect of political opponents and friends, and will keep the streets in as good condition as can be done with a given sum of money.

City Physician Andrew B. Sherburne is not widely known; he is a young physician, a democrat of course, and will probably do what he is called to do well enough.

Of the qualifications of the Keeper of the City Farm, Simon H. Mills, we know but little, though a republican friend says he should be a good farmer as he is a good carriage builder, and others say he is a practical farmer; one thing is certain, that Mr. Mills and his wife (said to be an excellent and kind-hearted lady) have "hard ones to follow" in office as Superintendent and Matron of the Almshouse, no better incumbents having ever filled those positions than Mr. Haven L. Scott and his estimable wife.

Chief Engineer Ira C. Seymour is an old fireman, has served acceptably as foreman of his company, the Kearsarge, and we believe enjoys the confidence and good will of the firemen generally. He is a good fireman, and if he has executive ability to match his other qualifications will make a good Chief Engineer.

First Assistant Engineer William B. Grogan is well known as a capable man for the position, having been Chief Engineer of the Department years ago, to which office he was elected by the republicans and in which his abilities gave entire satisfaction.

City Marshal Israel Marden runs a farm, having sold out his liquor store on Bow street some time ago, and has the reputation of possessing energy and determination enough to serve his purpose as City Marshal; we are informed that he says he will keep as good order in the city as has ever been enjoyed, no matter who suffers, and we hope he will be able to; but he follows a most efficient officer,—Ex-City Marshal Johnson, who served eleven years on the police force, seven years as its head; whose activity, pluck and watchfulness largely assisted in making this city a place to be carefully avoided by rogues, and whose merits were more than once acknowledged by the compliment of a unanimous re-election. If Marshal Marden does as well as Marshal Johnson he will do well enough to satisfy the citizens of Portsmouth.

Of Assistant Marshal Ozro J. Hobbs we know nothing save by hearsay, and not much at that. He "came up" at the last election as a zealous wire-puller in behalf of the democratic party, and is now made Assistant Marshal as a reward for his partisan services. He distinguished himself at election time by reading in a ward meeting—he being one of the selectmen—an affidavit "sworn to by me, before me, in my presence," to the effect that a policeman had threatened to whip him if he did not put on the check-list the names of republicans rightfully belonging there.

No branch of the municipal government has been so much and so persistently maligned by the democracy in years past, as the police. Such pet names as "lazy loafers," "black-mailers," "pap-suckers," etc., have been applied to them unsparingly, and in case of any conflict between them and violators of the laws, all the noisy and aggressive sympathy of the democracy has been thrown against the police. But their bitterest maligners cannot deny that this city has enjoyed a remarkable immunity from serious crime, or that the late police faithfully and creditably maintained the peace of the municipality, in spite of the numerous drinking places and the abundant supply of hard cases in the city. We have now a "democratic non-partisan" police, no doubt selected by the democracy solely on account of their fitness for their positions! We shall see if they do as well as their predecessors in protecting the rights of law-abiding citizens;—and nothing less will answer, for Portsmouth has had a good police force too long to be satisfied with a poor one now.

Circumstances concerning several of the new officers have been related to us, which if true indicate their entire unfitness for their positions; but we do not wish to judge unfavorably of any one until he has had a fair trial, and if the police do their official duty promptly and effectively we shall not enquire too closely into their antecedents.

Annie DeMontfort,

The mesmerist, gives the first of a series of entertainments at the "Temple" this evening. She has been very successful in Canada, drawing large audiences and winning strong commendations from the press, wherever she has appeared. A Canada paper, speaking of one of her entertainments, says:

The Town Hall was densely crowded last night, and many prominent citizens were amongst the audience. "Subjects" were plentiful, and nine of them succumbed to the fascinations of the mesmerist. After a hard fight, she succeeded in bringing John Griffith out of the audience, and caused him to deliver a temperance lecture, and an address on Woman's Rights. The audience were kept in roars of laughter by the various experiments.

Getting Initiated.

A big, burly fellow, said to be employed on the government works at Jerry's Point, got himself outside some first-class fighting rum, Saturday evening, and at about 11 o'clock made things lively on Water street. First he undertook to clean out a saloon; then he pitched into and very roughly used a man who happened in, and tried to eat up another man, commencing by taking a bite out of his shoulder. The police quickly interfered and took him to the station, he swearing, howling and resisting all the way. One of the officers was knocked down by him and somewhat marked, but the other held on to the ugly customer, and the two then ceased using verbal and grass arguments and rushed their prisoner into durance vile in a hurry. The only fault to be found with the conduct of the police is that they did not use their "solid" arguments in the first place,—but they will probably soon find out that their first duty is to protect law-abiding citizens and preserve the peace, and that tenderness to lawbreakers should not be thought of when the rights of decent people are being infringed upon.

Laconics.

Boatswain Andrew Milne is ordered to the Naval Academy.

For cutting up offices in order to make room for the half-famished crowd of democratic office-seekers, commend us to the inventor of the amended gas-light ordinance. There are seventy street lights in this city and instead of one lamp-lighter we are to have three at $4 per light per annum, netting each of the three $93.33 1-3. Perhaps, however, the performance of the task of lighting the seventy is considered too irksome a job for any democrat who has not had sufficient exercise the past fifteen years.

The brewery at Manchester built by Capt. Geo. W. Tucker for $60,000 has been sold recently for $10,000.

The 23d Infantry to which First. Lieut. F. L. Dodge of this city is attached, which recently arrived at Omaha from Arizona, is now under orders to go to New Orleans.

The public will be pleased to learn that there is a prospect of getting rid of the unwelcome, frightful sound caused by the application of the steam brakes when trains enter the railroad station in cities. An early application of a contrivance to deaden the sound is contemplated.

Maggie Mitchell will play "Fanchon" here soon; Chanfrau is shortly to appear in "Kit;" Buckley's Serenaders are engaged for one night; and the "Hibernian Comedy Company" is booked for next Friday and Saturday.

Alonzo Teverino & Co.'s Lava Pens, composed of a composition of lava and metal, are for sale by George H. Tripp at No. 37 Market street. They write easily, are non-corrosive and are said to outlast a dozen steel pens.

The Kearsarge Mills will start up to-day. Speed will start at 7 o'clock A. M. and shut down at 4:30 P. M. every day until further notice, except Saturdays, when there will be no work after 12 o'clock, noon. Dinner time as heretofore. Time will be kept by the hour, and the employes will be paid at the rate of sixty-five hours per week.

We have received from Hurd & Houghton the "United States Official Postal Guide," for October. There are four post-offices of the first class in New Hampshire, viz.: Nashua, Concord, Portsmouth and Dover; five of the second class, viz.: Keene, Manchester, Great Falls, Exeter and Claremont; and fourteen of the third class, viz.: Lebanon, Hanover, Franklin, Hinsdale, Laconia, Newport, Lancaster, Littleton, Milford, Rochester, Fisherville, North Conway, Plymouth and Lake Village. The salary of the Nashua postmaster is $3400, and Lake Village contents itself with $1100.

Miss Nellie Call, from Smith's Academy, has lately entered Vassar College, New York, passing a very creditable examination.

Steamer Faraday will put to sea as soon as she has taken in provisions and coal, and resume the attempt to recover the direct cable, of which she had laid 600 knots when it was lost. Should the efforts be successful she will proceed to lay the remainder of the cable to the American coast.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

A New Publication.

[Manchester Saturday Night Dispatch.]

This is a companion volume to the one published by the same party in 1871, and completes the Life and Adventures of a chance child. It is a peculiar production, one of those wonderful works granted to man but once in an age. It is not, however, equal to its promise. We think some of its chapters have been suppressed. The prospectus announced one on Political Economy, another on Equal Taxation and another on Liquor License—but none appeared in the work.

It introduces a new era in literature of this kind. Heretofore writers have classed all acts respecting charters of railroads among the private laws; this classes them with the public laws. It is presumed the writer had in view some justification of his vote in favor of consolidation, and if he can make it appear that railroad corporations are public institutions then whatever is done for a railroad is done for the public, and that vote becomes a public benefaction.

We are glad to see in this work some progress toward excellence. Three years ago the author declared that hogs should not be taxed. In this work Chap. LXXVII, he says: "Selectmen and assessors in taking the inventory of personal property shall include all swine over six months old and levy a tax thereon according to its value." By this act the law is restored to its former excellence, and the writer places himself, so far as his hogs are concerned, on the same high plain occupied by the republican party. The only difference between them is the republicans used the old Saxon word "hog," this writer the more refined Latin word "swine."

The casual reader would be likely to condemn this book as too improbable to be true, but a careful consideration of facts will, we think, correct this hasty impression. We refer for illustration to the graphic account of the marriage of Randolph and Success described in Chap. XIX.

"That the towns of Randolph and Success, neither of them having the number of rateable polls required by the Constitution for a representative, are hereby classed for the election of a representative to the General Court; the meetings for the choice of such representative to be holden in the town of Randolph."

Now Success is in the mountainous part of the State, in a land of snow; the election is held in March, the stormiest month of the year, and the voters in this town must climb a pathless mountain, cross the Androscoggin river, travel through the town of Gorham and then find the voting place in Randolph. We thought these difficulties insuperable and that the voter would exclaim "Our sufferings is intolerable!" Then another difficulty occurred to us. The tenth article of the Constitution provides, in relation to classed towns: "The first annual meeting shall be held in the town wherein most of the rateable polls reside, and afterwards in that having the next highest number and so on, annually, through the several towns forming the district." Now how can it be constitutional to hold it every year in Randolph? We look for further facts, and in them find an easy solution of both difficulties. Fogg's N. H. Gazetteer was published before this work was written, and its statements may be regarded as true. We turn to it and read: "Success, Coos County. This is a cold, rugged township, lying north of the White Mountains. In 1870 there were but forty acres of improved land, four horses, seven cattle and fourteen sheep in town. Population five." We turn to the list of rateable polls and find none. We take the N. H. Register and look to the state of the vote and find none. We conclude then there is no voter in Success, and how that conclusion relieves us of the first difficulty. There is no voter to face the storm, climb the mountain, cross the river, travel through Gorham and hunt in Randolph for a voting place. We are heartily glad of this, and we tender our congratulations to "no voter" that he is not required to overcome such difficulties.

The second difficulty is readily solved in view of these facts by a few questions and answers. Where shall the first meeting be held? At Randolph. Why? Because it has the most rateable polls. Where shall the next meeting be held? At Randolph. Why? Because it has the next highest number of polls. That is plain, but it presents another difficulty. Randolph has but 37 polls, not enough to entitle it to a representative. Randolph and Success together have only 37. If that was not enough for Randolph alone, how can it be enough for Randolph and Success united? Well, there is no end to asking questions. In 1873 the vote in Randolph stood, Straw 5, Weston 32. If that does not explain the matter, we fail to make ourselves understood.

We catch glimpses of refined cruelty in some passages of this book that recalls the early pastimes of the writer, such as hunting Indians with bloodhounds, or catching runaway slaves and returning them to their masters. We refer to one such instance. It is in Chap. XCVI., describing the surgical operation by which Danbury is severed from Grafton County and annexed to Merrimack County, "and said town is made part of such counsellor and congressional districts as now embrace the entire county of Merrimack." Now about half the towns of Merrimack County, including Hill, on the south east of Danbury are in counsellor district No. III., while the remaining towns of the county, including Wilmot on the south west of Danbury are in counsellor district No. IV. To which district does Danbury belong? The writer must have known this state of facts, and can have no other excuse for placing the town in that position except his love of cruel fun. He delights to see it swing from No. 3 to No. 4, and when the passer-by asks the taunting question "to which district do you belong?" a diabolical smile lights up his countenance, and he impales a fly upon a pin to add to his happiness.

This faculty of getting men into trouble is again revealed in the LXXVI. chapter. The act establishing the Reform School provides that "the trustees may bind out any scholar as an apprentice or servant to any inhabitant of the State, of good moral and religious character, for any time not exceeding the term for which he was sent to said school."

The passage to which we refer in Chap. LXXVI. reads, "If any person shall knowingly employ any such boy or girl committed to the Reform School and not discharged therefrom, the person so offending shall on conviction pay a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or shall be imprisoned in the common jail not exceeding thirty days.' And so the inhabitant of this State of good moral and religious character, who by request of the trustees provides in his house a home for an inmate of this institution, commits a crime, and the trustees become "particeps criminis" in the offence.

We now cease to wonder that the writer devotes twenty-four chapters of his work to the slaying of his heroes. He delights in the dance of death. He opens his first chapter in these words, "The first Chap. CIV. of the General Statutes is so far modified that the commissioners of pilotage shall hold their office during the pleasure of the Governor and Council." Who would have thought that in language so inoffensive and mild "death was in the pot?" Yet it was there, and the above sentence was hardly penned before three of the good citizens of Portsmouth were found with their heads "clean gone forever." So, too, in the chapter entitled, "An act to abolish the present judiciary system and establish a new one," the words are all ordinary words, and the phrases all set in legal form, yet beneath them, hardly concealed from view, lie six headless trunks. And now the bloody carnival is begun in earnest; every chapter is a story of the sword, each section a record of deaths. They read like inscriptions upon tomb stones. In these twenty-four short chapters fifty-five of the most interesting characters in the story are made to bite the dust. We feel as we complete the reading that the writer may have been cradled in a coffin, and reared in a hearse house. But in his graphic delineations of the surviving hero of his story, the writer excels himself. This knight of the sword begins his career as a very inoffensive sort of a man, with no political opinions to speak of, and entirely free from partizan bias; a peace man for whom war democrats could vote; a Union man whom copperheads could support; A man who adopted the Scripture rule "Let your conversation be yea, yea; nay, nay"—but the "yea, yea" was for those who spoke affirmatively, and the "nay, nay," for those who spoke negatively. Thin nimby numby man with no positive opinions, this citizen with no politics to hurt, becomes a warrior brave and strong. He slays the other fifty-five heroes of the story, and then turns his powers upon broader fields. He ravages the State, breaking down barriers that have stood for years. He establishes new boundaries for the Counsellor districts, and changes the form of the Senatorial districts. At his bidding one is compressed into a square, and another is "linked sweetness long drawn out." Then he attacks the cities. Dover is razed to the ground. One of the suburban wards of Manchester is utterly destroyed, and the whole city is made to writhe under his heel. He captures Nashua and smites her under the fifth rib. He attacks Portsmouth, and the cry of her suffering people has gone over the whole country. On what doth this our Cæsar feed that he has grown so great? The author gives no answer to the question, he simply gives his hero in outline, and we catch occasional glimpses. First, as the wolf that deceived the lamb; then as the bear that slaughtered the children; and at the last, as the bull that got loose in the crockery store.

Another Move.

At last, Beecher has been forced into the offensive by the criticisms of friend and foe, and has secured the indictment of Tilton and Moulton. The former publishes the following letter:

"I have just learned from the Brooklyn papers (but not as yet in any other way) that Mr. John Winslow, district attorney and a member of the Plymouth church committee of investigation and the author of their untrue and unjust report, has used his official position to procure against me a criminal indictment for libelling his client, the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. The public will recollect that in the spring of 1873 Mr. William F. West, a member of the Plymouth church, formulated and propounded against me the charge of slandering Mr Beecher specifically in this: 'That I had accused him of a criminal intimacy with Mrs. Elizabeth R. Tilton.' Mr. Beecher had then an opportunity to convict me of libel if I was guilty, but instead of accepting the challenge he declared to his assembled congregation that 'he had no charge to make against me.' Again the accusation of Mr. Beecher's adultery was repeated on my 'sworn statement' to the investigating committee in July last, but it did not elicit a prosecution for libel. Again, last summer, Mr. William J. Gaynor, a stranger equally to Mr. Beecher and myself, formally lodged a criminal complaint against me for libelling Mr. Beecher by exposing his guilty intimacy with Mrs. Tilton, but instead of seizing this occasion to test the truth of my accusation, Mr. Beecher and his district-attorney exerted themselves to suppress the unwelcome prosecution. After these successive opportunities, carefully avoided by the pastor of Plymouth church to prosecute me for libel, I am now justified in asking the public to attribute the present tardy indictment against me to the fact that the Plymouth committee's report, drawn by Mr. Winslow, has failed to command popular credence, and that Beecher and his district-attorney have found that they have now no refuge save the desperate attempt to place me in the position of an apparent criminal and so to discredit me in the trial of my case by leading me in advance with the obloquy of an indicted witness. In this exigency I deem it my duty solemnly, and with a full sense of my responsibility, to reaffirm the literal and absolute truth of my charge against the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, and to reassert the literal and absolute falsity of the special pleas by which he has vainly sought to exculpate himself. I promptly accept the issue thus reluctantly tendered me, and to the end that there may be no delay in the decision of the controversy, I demand an immediate trial. THEODORE TILTON."

Readables.

Mr. Beecher preached in Plymouth church, Sunday, much to the disgust of persons who think it bad taste for him to appear again until he shall be exonerated from the crime he is charged with.

The story of the kidnappers' work at Philadelphia receives an added interest and a new tinge of sadness from the fact that the mother of the lost Ross boy is becoming insane, and that the father is so utterly weakened by grief and anxiety that it is probable he will never rise from the bed on which he is now prostrated. The original demand of the captors, that $20,000 be given them as the price of the ransom of little Charlie, will now be virtually acceded to, the detectives having offered to relinquish all claim to the reward of that amount.

If the good people interested in the Maine Senatorial election imagine for five-tenths of a moment that the Hamlin and Perham men propose uniting on Gov. Dingley for the succession, these G. P.'s are overwhelmingly forgetful about Hannibal's peculiarities. The Governor would make an excellent Senator, but—

The estate of the late Charles Sumner has been appraised at $134,758.20.

Cusey, the grangers' candidate for Governor of Kansas, has been a middle-man all his life, and in Iowa he was the worst sort of a land speculator, and otherwise arrayed against the farming interests. It is enough to make the hayseed in their hair sprout.

General Burnside is appointed minister to Russia.

We do really dislike to see a persistent applicant always fail. Why do not the Massachusetts republicans do the square thing by Dr. Loring and elect him Governor? The Doctor would have liked the position years ago and has been kept on the "tenterhooks" long enough. He would fill the office admirably well.

The jury of inquest into the Granite mills disaster returned a verdict on Saturday. They find that due precaution was not used in giving the alarm to the operatives in the sixth story; that such precaution would have enabled all to escape; that the fire department responded as promptly as possible in consideration of the confusion of four alarms; but that the hooks and ladders were insufficient and poorly handled; and that while the mill appliances for extinguishing fire were ample, there was no water in them.

No less than eleven lawsuits have resulted from the Beecher scandal. The preparation for these trials has already begun. The first is the suit by Tilton against Beecher for $100,000 damages. Following this came the announcement that suits for libel would be brought by Tilton against the Brooklyn Eagle, New York World and Tribune. He will sue these papers for $100,000 each. Next came Henry C. Bowen's three suits against the Eagle, and one against a reporter of that paper. The sum involved in these four suits is $350,000. Finally came Miss Proctor's suits, one against Moulton and the other against the Daily Graphic. In each case the damages sought amount to $100,000. Subsequently a second suit for libelling Miss Proctor was brought against Moulton under indictment by the grand jury, Saturday. Again both Moulton and Tilton were indicted by that same body, the sum total of the damages aggregating nearly a round million, and there is nothing to warrant the belief that the list of litigations is yet completed. There are rumors of a suit for divorce brought by Mrs. Tilton, and others of a suit by Tilton against E. J. Ovington for maintaining a separation between himself and wife.

The earthquake at Guatemala destroyed but thirty-two lives. Three villages at the foot of the volcano del Fuego were destroyed.

The Hartford Times says of Sam Simmons' letter on Butler: "Such commonplace charges will have no more effect on Ben's impregnable position, walled in as he is by loyal Massachusetts hearts, than a fly on a coach-wheel—a slight turn of the wheel and away goes the fly. The General will never succumb to anything less destructive than cremation. That might fetch him; and then he should be bottled, sealed and delivered. No other way can the Massachusetts statesman be shelved."

Shrewsbury in Massachusetts has gone and done it. At a republican caucus there, Saturday night, nine votes were cast for delegates to the State convention. Then the meeting voted unanimously against a third term for President Grant. Now the New York Herald may retire. The thing's settled!

The use of the umbrella as a weapon of attack has not yet become general; but a young man did something toward introducing that article in making an assault, in New York city. While Jacob Smith, of Long Island, was taking a bowl of oyster soup at an oyster stand, a young man came up, and without provocation, punched him in the left eye with the point of an umbrella. Smith was taken to the hospital, where he soon died. A post mortem examination showed that his brain had been pierced.

Reason for Expecting Better Times.

[New York Graphic.]

The best justification for renewed confidence is the fact that the country has now gotten through and past the period of extravagant expectation and reckless attempts to continue its former unexampled growth. During the war, while wealth was being consumed unproductively at a frightful rate, the abundance of paper money actually fostered the delusion that the country was growing rich; after the war, the same paper brought upon us an era of expansion in railroad building and a new delusion that the resources of the country are inexhaustible; and the debt could and should be paid rapidly as a spectacle to mankind, and we marched on with a rush to conquer new soil and develop more wealth, as we thought. But the economic laws which were disregarded by the people and are still scoffed in Congress, have asserted themselves, and the bubble of prosperity is gone. Let it go; we ran to get rich so fast that we stumbled and fell; now we can arise and make haste more slowly. An unpleasant truth is better than a pleasant fiction; and now that we have fallen from a supposed prosperity which admitted no hindrance to a supposed destruction which left small hope of recovery, and have found the latter extreme as unreal and temporary as the former, the next thing is to take old-fashioned and durable common sense for a guide and walk soberly as a people. That we are in a position to do this naturally is the most solid reason for expecting better times.

A Young Christian.

[Woonsocket Patriot.]

Capt. Smyth, who has an eye on our increasing population, reports the following item: In a house on Railroad street, a child was born last Sunday at 11 1-2 o'clock A. M., and as the parent thereof did not wish to wait until another Sunday, which is the day set apart for baptizing, it was on its way to church in a carriage with the sponsors at 2 P. M., and was, by baptism, made a Christian before half-past 2.

Prepaid Newspaper Postage.

During the last days of the last session of Congress was passed a law authorizing the prepayment of postage on newspapers and other publications, particularly periodicals, upon some simple system to be devised by the Post-office Department. In order to expedite matters, the Postmaster General was specially directed to prepare some plan. The work was placed in the hands of Third Assistant Postmaster General Barbour, with full authority, subject only to the revision of the Postmaster General. General Barbour at once set to work and puzzled himself some time before he devised a plan, which he has now partially arranged. He arrived in New York recently with A. D. Hagen, chief of the stamp division in his bureau, for the express purpose of obtaining the views of Postmaster James and others on the practicability of the system he has arranged. While the system is completed, all the details are not yet finished. New stamps have yet to be devised and Gen. Barbour will consider them before returning to Washington and obtain estimates for having them printed. The system he has devised is simple. It is provided for the preparation of receipt books by the department for each publisher of a newspaper or periodical. The form of receipt at the New York Post-office will be somewhat as follows:

(Name of newspaper.) Date. No. —. Amount. [Stamps.]	No. —. NEW YORK, —. Received ——— dollars and ——— cents postage on — lbs. newspaper publications at two cents per lb. ———, Postmaster.

The receipt-book will be retained at the post-office, where the newspapers will be weighed. The stubs of the receipt-book will serve as a memoranda to the post-office of the sums paid, from which returns to the general department, will be made. The stamping of papers in bulk will not require more than four stamps of different denominations to make up the amount of postage paid by the publishers of any package, whatever the amount may be. Even on a ton of newspaper matter, on which the postage will be $40, only four stamps will be required to make up the amount of postage paid. This stamp system has been devised, as the act of Congress requires the use of adhesive stamps. The stamps will be affixed to the stub of the receipts by the post-office clerk and then cancelled. Thus the publisher will be saved the trouble of buying and affixing stamps. After the law goes into effect he will simply take his receipts and hold them as evidence that his postage was paid. General Barbour expects to save by this system of payment thousands of dollars to the Treasury Department every year, besides saving the Department and publishers much labor. He has exhibited the plan to Postmaster General Jewell, who approves it in every respect. When the details are completed a circular will be issued by the Department explaining the system, copies of which will be forwarded to the newspaper and publishing houses and to the 4,000 postmasters throughout the States, and on the 1st of January next the change will be made.

—A couple of Irish lads, wishing to obtain a little pocket money, determined to go into the country during harvest time and work among the farmers. "Can you cradle?" asked the farmer. Now, an Irishman in search of work was never known to confess ignorance of anything, but the question was a perplexer. The boys looked at each other for a suggestion. No use. At length Dennis, looking at the farmer, said: "Of course we can cradle; but couldn't ye give us a job out-doors?"

—A well-dressed chap entered a jewelry story and asked if he could see those cups in the window, pointing, as he spoke, to some silver cups lined with gold. "These," said the jeweler, handing him one, "are race cups." "Race cups—what are race cups?" "Why," replied the jeweler, "they are cups I had ordered to be made for prizes to the best racer." "Well, if that's so, suppose you and I race for one," and, with cup in hand, started, the jeweler after him. He probably won the cup.

—One of the excursionists on a Lake Champlain boat recently went to sleep on deck, and in the morning couldn't find his shoes. "Where did you put them?" asked a sympathizing friend. "I opened that little cupboard and laid them on the shelf," he replied. The victim had opened the wheel house and laid his shoes on the paddle wheel.

—Quiz is naturally patient and long-suffering, but occasionally his cup runs over. We heard him plaintively presenting to his washerwoman, yesterday, that he could understand how a pair of his drawers should shrink up to half their usual length; but he could not comprehend how a pair of frills should grow on the bottom of them.

—The gallant secretary of a life insurance company, being in command of a platoon during the late unpleasantness at New Orleans, struck up the gun of one of his men about to fire on a staff officer, with the exclamation: "Hold! don't shoot at him, we've got a policy on him."

Act on the Defensive.

Persons who are subjected to the influences of bad air and unwholesome water, to constant exposure out of doors and sudden changes of weather, should act on the defensive by imparting to their constitutions the power of resisting such influences. The fortifying effects upon the system of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are simply amazing. Thousands who use them as a preventive of malaria enjoy an absolute immunity from its attacks, although dwelling in regions where that scourge is most prevalent. Artizans and laborers whose occupations keep them in the open air, find the Bitters a complete safeguard against the effects of exposure. Travellers testify that they counteract the influences of torrid heat, intense cold, and miasmatic air. Free from every objectionable feature, pure, undeteriorating, containing only vegetable ingredients, an agreeable stimulant, a wholesome tonic and corrective, and a sovereign protective, it is not surprising that the Bitters should be the most popular of American remedies.

How many times does 50 go into 250,000? It goes 5000 times. Well, that is a good per cent. even for California. Will the best "lead" ever struck pay as much? Certainly not. Mr. Brown remonstrated with the ruffian and he went away, but soon returned and renewed his insults, when Mr. Brown commenced to argue the question with him with a club, upon which he took to his heels. It is not often that men-o'-war's-men insult ladies on our streets, and this one won't do it again in a hurry.

The American Band of Boston, Charles H. Tompson (formerly of this city,) leader, is happy to announce that the "Mulligan Guards" is not in its repertory of music.

Thanks to the ladies of Lincoln Hill for a basket of delicious Bartlett pears.

Mr. Henry F. Gerrish has two Maltese cats, the John Henry Ward Butler cat being the son of the other, and the larger of the two. When kittens are taken away, the mother compels John Henry to do kitten duty, and sometimes finding J. H. unwilling, seizes him by the nape of the neck, as she would a kitten, carries him to some secluded dale and cuffs his ears with her paws until he becomes obedient. Puss intends her boy to understand that she is his mother.

A sixty-five pound striped bass was caught in the Piscataqua by Mr. Horace A. Lamos, Saturday.

A boy living in this vicinity has been taken to the Insane Asylum, having been left in a feeble state of mind three years ago from scarlet fever. From reading newspaper accounts he has been led to charge himself with the commission of the Pomeroy atrocities, but the statement in a Dover paper that he thinks himself the Smutty-nose murderer has no foundation.

The first morning train from Boston, Monday, was delayed nearly an hour by an accident to the engine at Ipswich.

During the change of gauge on the Grand Trunk Railroad, the Eastern Railroad received a contract for hauling 2250 cars at $10 per car; four extra trains a day.

That veteran carriage-maker, Col. Andrew J. Beck, announces that he has purchased the Mills carriage shop and is just as ready as in times of yore to repair vehicles. No better work is turned out than the Colonel has been reponsible for, and we welcome him once more back to an active business life.

The clergymen of Portsmouth held a meeting, Saturday, to discuss the subject of temperance. They decided to hold weekly temperance meetings, Tuesday evenings, and will begin to do so, October 13.

Mr. Henry R. Stoddard retires after eleven years' experience in the livery business here, and we hope with his pocket well lined. "Henry" was always a favorite with his patrons and never let a poor horse if he could help it. That his lines may be cast in pleasant places whether on the farm or in some more attractive pursuit is our hearty wish. His successors, Messrs. Allen & Cochran, are well known citizens, and will no doubt do as well for their patrons as has Mr. Stoddard.

Mr. A. D. Brown, formerly manager of the International Telegraph Company, in Portland, Me., was recently thrown from his carriage at Rye Beach and badly injured.

Says the Times "The CHRONICLE grumbles at the action of the new city government in dividing the city into districts for the lighting and care of the street lamps." Not so, neighbor,; we neither grumble nor are sorry—but smile at the manner in which the offices are "extenuated" to partially appease the appetite of the unwholesome brood of which the Times is the natural organ.

Rockingham County Conveyances.

List of conveyances in Portsmouth for the week ending Oct. 3d, as per Rockingham Records:

Frank Junkins to John Stokell, land on Hancock street, for $1400.

Joseph L. Martin to Dudley Gilman, land and buildings on Dennett street for $1200.

Annie DeMontford,

The mesmerist, appeared at the Temple as advertised, Monday evening. The audience was small, but the fun was immense, every person present appearing pleased to the last degree. The entertainment was the best of the kind ever given here,—extremely amusing, and entirely free from anything objectionable. We advise all who enjoy a hearty laugh to visit the Temple this evening; the entertainment well deserves a crowded house.

—Live as long as you may,the first twenty years are the longest half of your life.

—"Party politics are ignored in Nevada," wrote the editor of the Star Spangled Banner. His intelligent compositor set it up. "Party politicians are ignorant in Nevada." The editor was mad, but the subscribers want to promote the compositor to the post of editor-in-chief for his knowledge of the situation.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, sold by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams.—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced. The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1500 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately,—of O. G. Portsmouth Chronicle.

—A young lawyer in a country town asked some of his friends to a game of cards in his room, to be followed by a little supper. Frogs were a new species of food in that latitude, and a dish of them cooked in the choicest way was the feature of the occasion. Supper time approached, and during a temporary lull in the conversation, the door suddenly opened, and a Milesian waiter, in a loud voice, announced supper thus: "Mr. E., them toads is done, and supper is ready!"

—If we have not faith, let us use that we have, and then God will give us more.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No render of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 10. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

A Reminiscence of Cheyenne.

[Cor. Cincinnati Commercial.]

I saw one of those desperadoes get a nice dose of quiet courage and stern will at this time, 1867. I had had occasion to go down the road, and had to wait for the train. My abiding place was one of those dining tents where I had taken a meal in the meantime. Among the several persons seated around one evidently was very raw.

His dress was semi-clerical, and as he held forth in no constrained manner about "the terrible sin," and "Babylonish Cheyenne," the old-timers within hearing enjoyed, in an uncouth way, poking small chaff at him. In the midst of one of his tirades against "this sink-hole of perdition" a man came into the tent, walked up to the bar and demanded a drink. It seems for some reason he had been refused before. Suddenly throwing his hand under his coat he drew a six-shooter, and half facing the crowd and the bar-keeper, he said: "By ——, I'm going to have a drink right here, or I'll turn loose!" (meaning to shoot.)

To tell the truth, most of those terrible old-timers broke for the door, the bar-keeper sunk under the counter, and death to some one seemed imminent. I confess to a cold sensation down my back, and thought of several debts that different parties owed me, and wondered if I could ever be paid; the green field in which I had sported as a child rose before me vividly; I remembered one Sunday, having played off sick, I went down to the foot of Mill street, and went swimming. I felt sorry for the Frogtown boy who licked me once; but what a sight. That parson, his tall slim form seems to grow taller, as, in a quiet way, he strides up to the death-dealing cuss with the pistol. He wrenches that weapon from this terror; grasps him by the throat, fairly lifting him from his feet, his protruding tongue and blackening face show the powerful gripe of the parson's hand, and, to make the picture complete, says in ordinary tones, "My friend, I have observed you before to-day trouble the landlord of this tavern; I am of the opinion that you are entirely in the wrong place. The landlord appears to think that you have had a sufficiency of intoxicating liquor. Now observe, if you create any further disturbance, I will jerk the gullet out of you." And he literally threw him headlong out of the door. Subsequently the parson held forth on the sins and iniquities of Cheyenne, and was listened to respectfully by the subdued old sinners. Those constrained to seek a favorable opportunity to ask the parson where he learned that gripe.

"Oh," says he, "I used to keep a tavern down East; that's where I got my hand in.'

Old Time Chronicles, No. 117.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

We have seen several of Ames' almanacs, published about the middle of the last century, and they are the oldest we ever examined. In the last article the almanac of 1750 was noticed. A few notes on those of '51 and '53, now. It was not common to have advertisements even on the covers of almanacs till within a few years. The author of this one, however, for the year 1751, availed himself of the benefits of advertising himself as an inn-keeper. The advertisement is in a conspicuous place on the third page. It is as follows, capital letters being put as then:

"These are to signify all Persons that travel the great Public Rout South West from Boston, that I keep a House of Public Entertainment eleven miles from Boston at the Sign of the Sun. If they want Refreshments and see cause to be my guests, they shall be well entertained at reasonable Rates. NATHANIEL AMES."

In December of the present year there is to be a transit of Venus over the sun's disk. There can be transits of only Venus and Mercury, as these are the only two planets whose orbits are within that of the earth. The transits of Venus are not often, but Mercury, being much nearer the sun, its orbit less, and flying very swiftly, comes between the earth and the sun somewhat frequently. Since this century commenced there have been eight transits of Mercury and there will be four more before its close. Mercury is so near the sun it is seldom seen,—and when it is, only for a few minutes before sun-rise, or after sunset. Its transits therefor are of but little account. Their calculations of course seldom appear in almanacs. In fact we have seen the calculations of but one. That was in Ames' almanac for 1753. It took place May 5. The calculations are put down thus, "Mercury on the sun 7 hours 46 minutes. It would be on the sun at its rising and three hours after it riseth." Then to complete the interest in the matter, there is a diagram of the sun, it being about as large as a cent in use now. A horizontal line crosses the center, and then a line below, that shows the path of Mercury in its transit. This is not parallel to the horizontal line, but approaching it some degrees from the right to the left side.

The practical use of calculating the transit could not have been much, but it shows the great interest astronomers have in such a wonder and the satisfaction they have in communicating the knowledge they have to others.

Nathaniel Ames, the almanac maker, was father of Fisher Ames, the soldier and statesman.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1874.

The National Savings Bank of Concord.

The grantees of the National Savings Bank held their seventh annual meeting Monday, the president, George A. Pillsbury, in the chair, and the occasion proved to be a remarkably stormy and inharmonious one. This is the bank from which the treasurer, William W. Storrs, abstracted $65,000, and it will be recollected that a committee of the legislature, after investigating the matter, strongly censured the president and some other of the trustees, directly charging them with misappropriating some of the bank funds, and recommending that measures should be taken to recover back this money, and also advising that the implicated parties should resign their positions.

E. B. S. Sanborn of Franklin offered a resolution that all persons officially connected with the bank who have misappropriated its funds, as narrated in the report of the legislative committee, be hereafter excluded from its management. The resolution was supported by Messrs. Sanborn of Franklin, George G. Fogg of Concord and John M. Shirley of Andover, and after an explanation by George A. Pillsbury, president of the bank, it was rejected by a vote of 31 nays to 11 yeas.

A committee to nominate a board of trustees reported the following names:

Asa Fowler, Nathaniel White, George A. Pillsbury, John Y. Mugridge, William Walker, Eben G. Cummings, John M. Hill, Thomas A. Stuart, Joseph C. A. Hill, Thomas A. Ambrose, William B. Stearns, Benjamin A. Kimball, George Jones, Charles H. Roberts and A. B. Thompson, all of Concord. Judge Fowler and J. C. A. Hill declined to serve, and John Proctor of Andover and John L. Tallant of East Concord were substituted.

George A. Pillsbury made a detailed statement of his connection with the bank, and declined to serve further either as president or trustee. It was voted not to accept Mr. Pillsbury's declination, after which he consented to serve as trustee, but stated positively that he should decline the presidency if offered to him.

Mr. Sanborn of Franklin next offered a resolution instructing the trustees to proceed without delay to collect the funds misappropriated from the bank by the parties implicated by the legislative committee.

After discussion by Messrs. Sanborn, Pillsbury and G. W. Johnson of Enfield, John M. Hill moved an amendment to Mr. Sanborn's resolution to the effect that the grantees had confidence in the board of management of the bank, and approved their efforts to resist the levying of blackmail by one attorney at least upon the pretence of obtaining a retainer. This gave rise to another sharp discussion.

Mr. Fogg desired to know whether Judge Fowler, in his official connection with the bank, had ever discovered any violation of the charter of the bank, or laws of the State, on the part of any officers of the bank. Judge Fowler said that no trustee could borrow money from the bank without violating the charter, and in the transaction alluded to by the legislative committee the stock was either the bank's or it was Mr. Pillsbury's and every one could draw his own conclusion. William Walker, a trustee, made an explanation of his connection with the bank, and said that he had not intentionally violated the charter. Judge Fowler read the article of the charter which prohibited any officer or member of the corporation from borrowing or using any of its funds, except to pay bills of the bank. William M. Chase moved to refer the resolution to the board of trustees just elected. Mr. Fogg opposed the reference. John M. Shirley offered a resolution that a committee of three should be appointed to investigate the charge of blackmail. Mr. Chase opposed this resolution, and Mr. Hill said his charge was made on the authority of another of the trustees. Mr. Shirley supported his resolution in a vigorous speech, but it was rejected by a vote of 11 yeas to 22 nays.

At this point the meeting adjourned, and at a subsequent meeting Major A. B. Thompson was chosen temporary chairman, and a temporary committee of investment was appointed, the election of permanent officers being postponed to Monday next.

Readables.

The Lebanon Free Press predicts that the basis of suffrage which this country will ultimately settle on will be the ability to read and write the English language, without regard to sex. Speed the day! Intelligence must purify politics if politics is ever purified, and there will be no excuse a few years hence for new voters being ignorant when the school system is generally perfect.

The last week of the Indiana campaign opens with fine prospects for the success of the republican State ticket. Canvassing is very active, and, although the State is worse split upon local issues than ever, it is believed everywhere that the State ticket will be elected. The republicans will elect at least eight, and probably nine, Congressmen, and the legislature may be in the hands of a party of independents elected by grangers.

Hon. Isaiah Hanscom, Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repairs, reports the ships of the American Navy as never in so good condition as at present. Every old hulk has been disposed of and the serviceable vessels have been thoroughly repaired. The impetus given by the Virginius trouble has prepared our navy for any emergency.

According to the Indianapolis News, an "independent journal," the republicans are gaining rapidly and heavily in Indiana. "The campaign of 1872," it says, "is repeating itself even more forcibly than in the original. The organization of the republican party is beginning to tell, and every day of delay will count in its favor. On the first of August, or indeed as late as the fifteenth, the democrats would have carried the State without doubt, but since then they have been losing."

The new catalogue of Dartmouth College shows the largest number ever connected with the college at one time. There are 457 students, representing twenty-six States and Territories, from Maine to Utah, besides Quebec and South America.

The Utica (N. Y.) Herald says that "in the counties where the liberal movement was strongest, as in Onondaga, the return to the republican party has been so complete as hardly to leave an individual outside. Such is the feeling in all parts of the State. In Oneida no exception exists to the clear conviction that the necessity for the continuance of the republican party in power, in Congress and in the State, is quite as imperative now as was its success in 1860 or 1864."

There were many touching incidents at and succeeding the Granite mill disaster, but a most pathetic reminder of the calamity comes now to many sympathizing people daily. Every day, when the factory bells are ringing for dinner, a poor old woman, who saw her three daughters borne away to be buried that sad Sunday, and is still stupefied by the blow, takes a tin pail, as she used to do, and starts for Granite mill, No. 1. Sometimes, kind neighbors divert her attention by telling her that it isn't bell time, but other days, she walks to the place where the mill once stood, sees nothing that she can recognize, turns back in a dazed way, and goes to her deserted home again.

Bryan Waller Proctor, well known as "Barry Cornwall," the English author, is dead.

The port of Pascagoula, Mississippi, which has been rigidly quarantined against for some time, is now entirely free from yellow fever. The health of the Gulf coast has rarely been better than during the past season, Pensacola being the only point at which "Yellow Jack" has secured a foothold. Key West, notwithstanding it was threatened with a visitation by the outbreak on the Ticonderoga, has nearly escaped, and the same may be said of all ports, with the exception noted, from Florida to Rio Grande.

Spanish advices report that Don Carlos was seriously wounded by a mutineer at Durango; also a serious Carlist repulse before the town of Vich, in Catalonia.

A sad accident occurred at the laundry of the Massachusetts State prison, Monday evening. J. Henry Woods, the night watchman, went into the laundry building, and almost immediately on his entering the condenser in the building burst, making a loud report. The officers hearing the report went to the building, and a most ghastly sight met their eyes. Mr. Woods lay with the top of his head blown off and was dead. The deceased was a man about 43 years of age, and leaves a wife but no children. He has been in the employ of the prison about two years and a half.

A formidable demonstration of the Ku-Klux for the purpose of intimidating obnoxious persons is reported from Montague county, Texas.

The trial of Alexander Quarters, at Alfred, on the charge of arson, in having set a building on fire in Biddeford, in which he had a number of carriages stored which were heavily insured, which occupied the court several days last week, was concluded Saturday afternoon, with a verdict of not guilty, the jury being out three quarters of an hour. The defence set up as their defence an alibi, and from the verdict, it appears, proved that Quarters was at Old Orchard at the time of the fire.

Barnum took about forty dogs to Baltimore, to be used in the Hippodrome stag hunt, and kept them shut up over night in a vacant lot in West Baltimore. All the vagrant curs in the neighborhood collected outside the enclosure, sending forth before high heaven a series of unearthly yelps and howls, to which the canines within responded with such an agonizing zest that the neighbors went well nigh distracted.

State News.

By an act of the legislature, the Manchester Mayor and Aldermen are obliged to appoint moderators and selectmen of the wards before Nov. 1st. Four of the Aldermen are republicans and four democrats, while Governor-Mayor Weston is supposed to be a democrat. By absenting themselves from the last meeting the republican members prevented a quorum, understanding that the democrats had resolved to appoint democratic selectmen for republican wards.

Dennis O'Brien of Keene, while in a somnambulistic state, fell from a second story window of the Eagle Hotel, in that place, a few nights ago, badly injuring his hip.

The Executive Committee of the New Hampshire State Temperance Union voted to hold its annual meeting and convention November 12, at Concord. A grand temperance mass meeting will be held at one of the large halls in the evening of November 11.

Peterborough butchers only charge sixteen cents per pound for the best round steak.

Mr. B. F. Drew of Stewartstown had the bones of his left hand badly fractured, a few day ago, by having it caught in a wagon wheel.

As the 5 o'clock down train on the Nashua & Lowell Railroad, on Thursday evening, was passing some cars loaded with timber, standing on the track near the big elm tree just north of the Worcester and Nashua R. R. crossing, at Nashua, a stake hat had been bent over by the weight of the timber out of its perpendicular, came in contact with one of the passenger cars and raked it for its whole length, breaking the glass in several windows and scattering it about the car. Fortunately none of the passengers were injured in the slightest degree. With the exception of the destruction of glass and the scratching of the outside of the car no injury was done to the car.

M. B. Gilkey of Colebrook had a hand badly lacerated by a circular saw last week, losing his thumb, which he says flew 25 feet, and quite a section of his hand.

Mrs. H. C. Huntoon, of Thornton, has a dahlia, that has attained the height of eight and one-half feet, and at the time Jack Frost made his first appearance, it had fifty blossoms upon it. Moreover, many blossoms had been picked off previously from the same stalk.

The Pension Office.

The annual report of the commissioner of pensions will show that the maximum as to the numbers on the rolls has been reached and passed. The diminution for the year will be quite marked. At the same time the sum paid for pensions will be largely increased, owing to the advance of nearly all the rates by the last Congress. The decrease in the number of pensions is owing chiefly to minor children reaching the age of sixteen. Marriages among widows are growing rapidly less each year. The additions to the various rates made at the last session have increased the disbursements to a greater extent than was expected. The addition to the pension appropriation for the next year, in spite of the large reduction in numbers, will be over a million dollars. This year General Baker will have the satisfaction of reporting that no defalcations have taken place among pension agents. The commissioner has introduced a system of guards and checks which has worked admirably. Agents are now required to pay all sums in checks and state all the needed circumstances of payment upon stubs, which must be retained. The agent is also required to forward a full statement of all disbursements and balances on hand every two weeks. The sub-treasuries and national depositories are also required to send the statements of pension agents' accounts each fortnight, so that every other week the office has a perfect check upon each agent. Now, the delay in auditing the accounts, which necessarily occurs at the Treasury, does not delay the pension office, as General Baker has organized a very efficient auditing division in his office. The cutting down of the force in the land office has thrown the work for the year much behind. The delays are in those branches of the office which have in charge the interests of actual settlers. Commissioner Burdett will endeavor to show in his forthcoming report that, in justice to a large class doing business with the land office, the force must be considerably increased.

Rural Young Love in Town.

[Missouri Paper.]

A young couple from the rural districts attracted considerable attention in town last Saturday, though they didn't once suspicion that all eyes were fastened upon them, and noting their every action. They were in that bread-and-butter-with-'lasses-on it stage of love that makes prince and peasant alike moist and gushy, and alike oblivious to or careless of the gaze and opinions of the outside world. It is a beatific state of existence, and the man or woman who has grown old without experiencing it has skipped the most thrilling chapter in the book of life. To be or not to be beatific—that's the question. Whether it is nobler in the man to battle alone and unloved against the world, or to take a girl in his arms and turn away from it. In one voice we exclaim, "Give us the girl."

So felt that young granger. Ten thousand mathematicians and a sea serpent couldn't have divided that young couple as they leaned up against a stack of sidemeat in a grocery, and clung to each other's clothes. Fortune might have emptied her sack at that youth's feet, and he would not have stooped to touch the treasure. Fame might have held her brightest jewel an inch above his head, and he would not have reached for it. His country might have called until she was hoarse, and he would not have heeded her. Angels might have beckoned him to come away and skip with them along the green banks of the beautiful river, but not a skip would he have skope unless that girl could have become his companion skipper. Nothing but absolute cremation will ever have power to remove her from him, and even then he will cling to her as long as there is enough of her left to make a grease spot on his shirt bosom.

Long they stood there and well. Inquisitive people stepped outside the door and gazed in upon them, and whispers went around the crowd, "Got it mighty bad ain't they? Don't she snuggle up to him though?" "Watch his arm now—heh—see there!" Still the girl pressed up against his side, and wished the sun was turned down that John might capture the kisses that were drowning in the nectar of her lips. Still he squeezed her arm, and admired each gem of a freckle that shone on her fair face like strawberries in a dish of cream. Closer together drew their faces—so closely that scarcely a thought could pass between them. A great awe fell upon the assembled multitude, and they awaited the crisis in such deep silence that you might have heard a stitch drop. Just as the lips of the lovers were within a hair's breadth of touching, a small boy in the crowd broke into a demoniac laugh. The enraptured pair were jerked back into this world with a suddenness that nearly dislocated their necks, and sent buckets of blood to their faces. He looked as though he had been caught whipping his grandmother, and she looked like she was sorry for him. The wild light faded out of his eyes, and he pulled his hat over them. The kisses lay dead on her lips, and she pulled them in and pressed them tight to her teeth, out of sight of their murderers. Hand in hand they left the grocery, and, with faltering steps, departed for the sylvan shades, where they may gnaw each other's necks, and exchange vows and saliva in sweet seclusion.

But confound that boy! He doesn't deserve to ever have a girl. Except for his ill-timed cachination, this story would have been longer and sweeter.

How She Was Converted.

[Max Adeler.]

Mrs. Magruder will probably leave Dr. Hopkins' church and go hereafter to the Presbyterian meeting-house. Dr. Hopkins last week had a frightful boil on his leg, and he experienced very severe pain when he tried to walk. While he was sitting in his study, on Friday, Mrs. Magruder called and was ushered into the parlor. The servant went up the back stairs to tell the doctor, and while she was on her way the doctor started down the front stairs to get a drink of water. It hurt him so much to walk upon the steps that he concluded to slide down the banisters on his stomach; and so, after looking carefully over the landing to satisfy himself that nobody was about, he mounted the banisters and began to descend. The stairs run directly past the parlor door, and Mrs. Magruder was amazed to see the clergyman descending with rapidity, and in that singular fashion. It seems that the servant girl had placed a coal scuttle by the newel-post while she went for the Doctor, and as he descended with awful velocity he alighted in the scuttle and fell to the floor. Without being aware of the presence of the visitor, he leaped up in a rage, and exclaiming, "Hang that woman!" he gave the scuttle a kick which sent it whirling into the parlor, where it brought up in Mrs. Magruder's lap. Of course she thought the demonstration and the ejaculation were intended for her, and after rising to her feet and shaking her umbrella at her pastor, she shouted, "If you kick another coal scuttle at me I'll punch the stuffin' out of you with this yer umbrella!" She emerged from the front door with the conviction that Presbyterian was the only religion for her.

Act on the Defensive.

Persons who are subjected to the influences of bad air and unwholesome water, to constant exposure out of doors and sudden changes of weather, should act on the defensive by imparting to their constitutions the power of resisting such influences. The fortifying effects upon the system of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are simply amazing. Thousands who use them as a preventive of malaria enjoy an absolute immunity from its attacks, although dwelling in regions where that scourge is most prevalent. Artizans and laborers whose occupations keep them in the open air, find the Bitters a complete safeguard against the effects of exposure. Travellers testify that they counteract the influences of torrid heat, intense cold, and miasmatic air. Free from every objectionable feature, pure, undeteriorating, containing only vegetable ingredients, an agreeable stimulant, a wholesome tonic and corrective, and a sovereign protective, it is not surprising that the Bitters should be the most popular of American remedies.

A New Lead.

How many times does 58 go into 250,000? It goes 5000 times. Well, that is a good per cent. even for California. Will the best "lead" ever struck pay as much? Certainly not. But there are strong probabilities that an investment of fifty dollars made in the last Grand Gift Concert, in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky, will pay that per cent. to somebody. Why not to one of us? And then we have only to wait till the 30th of November for the result. eod,w

—A little girl about nine years old, says the Detroit Free Press, was crossing the Campus Martius recently, having her father's dinner-pail on her arm, when a man gave a pull at the long braid of her hair hanging down her back.

"Did you do that, sir?" she exclaimed, turning around.

He admitted that he did, and she continued in a loud tone:

"May be you don't know who I am, sir. I'm engaged to Jack Thompson, sir, and we're to be married in just nine years, sir."

Local Matters.

Maggie Mitchell Coming.

We are happy to announce that the renowned actress, Maggie Mitchell, is to visit this city next week, Thursday evening, at the Temple, and we hope she will be greeted with a crowded house. Here is what the Boston Journal says of her:

Miss Maggie Mitchell concludes to-day one of the most successful engagements ever played in this city by any artist. Night after night the spacious theatre has been crowded to overflowing, and this too, on the stormiest of nights. Flippant critics have counseled the withdrawal of the dramas Miss Mitchell has made so familiar, simply for the reason that they have become familiar, but we think the enormous business of the past two weeks, added to the great success which attended the representation of "Jane Eyre," warrants their continuance.

When audiences of three thousand persons are gathered to witness "Fanchon," "The Pearl of Savoy," or "Little Barefoot," while hundreds upon hundreds are turned away from the doors, it is pretty good evidence that the public are not tired of witnessing these pieces. It is a significant fact in this connection that each of the two dramas first named, as well as "Jane Eyre," were withdrawn from representation at the very height of their success, and the same result will surely follow with "Little Barefoot."

There was another immense house on the occasion of Miss Mitchell's benefit last night, and to-day's matinee is sure to call out as full an attendance as the theatre will accommodate. It is needless, at this late day, to enter into any extended discussion of Miss Mitchell's beautiful impersonation of Amry. Like her Jane Eyre, her Fanchon and her Marie, it is a perfect performance in its way.

Annie DeMontford

Is creating quite an interest by her amusing mesmeric influence, at the Temple. Quite a large audience gathered to witness the fun last evening, and all were greatly entertained. Miss DeMontford's powers are wonderful and grow upon the minds of the people, furnishing opportunity for study of the remarkable gifts of which she is possessed. An invitation is extended nightly to all who wish to experience her power to take seats on the stage and become subjects for operation. The chairs are soon filled and the fun commences. Those who have not yet had opportunity to attend will find the evening they select for witnessing the mesmeric influence as mirthful as can be spent elsewhere.

Laconics.

Mrs. Charles W. Cottle of Kittery was thrown from a carriage at the P. & D. R. R. crossing on Noble's Island, last Saturday, the wheels of the carriage having caught in the track. Mrs. Cottle was seriously injured and has been unable to leave her bed since.

The new school committee re-elected the old board of High School committee, Monday evening, Messrs. Charles A. Shannon, James P. Bartlett and Albert R. Hatch. The result was especially displeasing to some democratic members who were desirous to make a make a political machine of it by the choice of two democrats, and one republican. Their chagrin is intensified on reading the school law, which provides that "the committee so chosen shall have the same powers and perform all the duties which now by law appertain to the school committee and High School committee respectively." This makes each of the High School committee a member of the general committee. As the committee now stand seven republicans to six democrats, it is hardly possible for any political scheming to be put through to the injury of the school interests. Politics have thus far been kept out of school matters, and it is best that the members should debar it from their councils.

Read the advertisements of Mendum & Co. and Blumauer, who have "stacks" of new goods for fall and winter wear just received and opening at their stores in Market street.

At the art exhibition at the State Fair at Manchester, the collection of paintings from New York, Boston and other places was one of the most attractive features to the lovers of the fine workers of the painter's pencil, and we are pleased to notice that Mr. Ulysses D. Tenney, of New Haven, the artist who is temporarily making his headquarters in this city, carried off the palm and obtained the first premium upon oil paintings. He exhibited the portraits of Mr. J. Horace Kent and the late Mr. George Wentworth, of this city, both of which were kindly loaned to him by the owners. The elegant new pattern frame made by Robinson & Tilton of Concord for Mr. Kent's portrait also took (as it deserved) a first premium.

Among the cases on the docket of the Circuit Court, which will be held here soon, is that of John E. Rider against John D. Swain, foreman of the iron platers at the navy yard, for payment of expenses incurred by the plaintiff in obtaining the appointment of the defendant to the position he now occupies. Albert R. Hatch appears for Rider and William H. Hackett for the defence.

Kearsarge Engine Co. voted at their meeting, Monday evening, to run a course of assemblies on the plan of last season. The first dance will be held as soon as the arrangements are completed, of which due notice will be given.

At the regular monthly meeting of Kearsarge Engine Co., held Monday evening the following officers were elected to fill vacancies: Foreman, W. J. Sampson, vice Ira C. Seymour, elected Chief Engineer. 1st. Asst., W. H. Seymour, vice W. J. Sampson, promoted. 2d. Asst., Chas. N. Merrill, vice W. H. Seymour, promoted. Steward, Benj. Atwell, vice Chas. N. Merrill promoted. Trustee to Firemen's Relief Association, W. J. Sampson.

U. S. S. Ticonderoga was released from quarantine, Monday.

The gas-burner fiend is about again.

Mrs. L. Beckman of Seabrook got off the first morning train from this city at Newburyport, Tuesday, but her dress caught in the steps of a car as she was alighting, and she was thrown on the track. One of her feet was cut off just above the ankle and she was otherwise bruised.

Charles William Garland, formerly of Rye, an active republican and U. S. District Attorney for Texas, was murdered at Minneola, in that State, recently. Judge Calvin T. Garland, his brother, is now on a visit to Rye.

A Sensible Man.

Hon. George M. Stearns, democrat, declines to be a Congressman from Massachusetts, as follows:

I believe that, unless I interpose, I shall be nominated for and and elected to the office of Representative to Congress from this district. Whether I am right or wrong in this conviction is immaterial; but I sincerely believe that I am confronted with the question, "Will I go to Congress?" In the decision of this question I have found great difficulty. On the one hand, I have a strong desire to go and an ambition to strive for success or brave failure on the national arena.

I am as fully open as any one can be to the grateful flattery of being chosen to fill such a position of power, honor and fame. I also feel deeply the imputation which, with great justice, may be laid upon me of weakness and unstable purpose, if, after permitting the use of my name in connection with the nomination so long, I now reconsider my consent. I know that I have never exhibited much constancy in bearing nominations or retaining offices, and that this retreat will exhaust the patience of those who desire to confer them upon me.

On the other hand, I do not think I am adapted to office holding or carrying nominations. The sense of obligation, under both conditions, is irksome. The superintendence and overseership and regulation of self-constituted advisers is humiliating. I chafe under the servitude of candidature. The appearance of office-seeking and overweening anxiety to seize place and power is intolerable.

If I take the nomination, I am in debt to those who confer it. They justly have the right to call on me to devote much time and powers to their service in the canvass. My time is so crowded with business engagements that I cannot answer their reasonable demands without breach of promise to my clients.

Again, I have labored for twenty-two years to establish a business which shall yield me competence and ease in my later years. The accomplishment of my aim is near, if I steadily persevere in the pursuit of my profession. No one can tell how distant if I fritter away my opportunity.

Still again, and more than all, I have a home blest with contentment. My happiness and that of my family depend on keeping it so. When I recall the many instances of lives mutilated and blighted by discontent and restlessness engendered by the fascinations of the Capital, I shrink from the hazard. I dread its power of incapacitating those who come within its charmed precincts for the quiet pleasures and the ordinary enjoyments and associations of life.

I therefore with great reluctance, but with well weighed resolution, decline to be a candidate for the office named.

I have intruded this long statement of my reasons for this step, that my friends may see I have duly weighed the matter, and that they may not trouble themselves or me with inquiries as to the causes of my action. I have written "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

Permit me to lengthen this letter a line to thank my numerous friends for their long enduring kindness, and to assure them that their friendship is most gratefully treasured.

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick hot ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we will bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as any body.

Desirable Estate

AT PRIVATE SALE.

The convenient and well located HOUSE and the lot of 4000 feet at the corner of Lincoln Avenue and Broad Street, is offered for sale on easy terms. The house has a fine prospect, is located in a portion of the city where gentlemen are rapidly selecting sites for dwellings, and where the best houses are being erected. The house has well arranged rooms, a very cheerful outlook on either side, is supplied with excellent well water introduced into the house, and has garden plot and well built hen-ery attached. The site is peculiarly pleasant, and the opportunity of purchasing a house built for a residence for the owner, and sold only because his business requires his presence in another city, is one that well deserves the attention of any one who desires a home for immediate occupancy. The premises may be examined on application to

For Sale in Greenland.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of plendid strawberries produced. The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 30 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1500 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land is heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if required for immediately,—of O. G. ROBINSON, on the premises, or Butler & Laighton, Market Square, or Bailey & Co., Market street. jel

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—A Detroiter was riding on the Potomac road; he came across an old lady seated in a buggy which had been halted within a few yards of the Grand Trunk Railroad track. She seemed to be uneasy about something, and as he drove up she asked, "Say mister, hain't that engine going to come along pretty soon?" He asked her to explain, and she pointed to the sign, "Look out for the engine!" and added, "I have waited more'n two hours for the ole engine to go by, but I'm getting tired, and if it don't come pretty soon I'll drive right over the track, and go hum."

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at some door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 10. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 21. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent the attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Concerning Boys.

There are persons of suspected intelligence in this fair city who hold to the heathenish opinion that a boy, considered apart from his family relations, and regarded simply as a social phenomenon, is the most curious outgrowth of the civilization of which we boast. And they are queer enough to commence arguing in favor of that opinion by a reference to the superstitions of the young idea. They want to know, for instance, whence a boy derives the settled conviction that rosin on the hands breaks the force of the schoolmaster's blows; that an eye-winker placed in the centre of the palm is sure to split the pedagogue's rattan; that the incautious handling of toads leads to warts, and that a white bean planted in the dark of the moon under a brick, near some house water-spout, removes them. Far be it from us to attempt an explanation of these strange ideas, but it is certain that they have been entertained through generation after generation of boys, and no doubt that any urchin that ever sported a "knuckle dabster," a "pottery," or a "crystal," that ever "mumbled the peg," or played "leap-frog," can account for them to the entire satisfaction of any impartial inquirer.

What really is puzzling to the adult mind is whence the boys originally obtained their barbarous methods of "counting out" for "cather," "fox," or any of those pleasant juvenile games requiring fleetness of foot and a secretive disposition. For instance, a lot of boys will get together to play at some of their games, and one of them will start out to see "who's it." He will go through a great rigmarole of words, applying one word to each as he designates him by a tap on the breast, and the last one so honored is "it," as they call the "catcher," as thus:

"Ooery, Orey, Ickory, Ann,
Fillisin, Follisun, Nicholas, John,
Evy, Quavy,
English Navy,
Stinkilum, Stankulum, Buck!"

Now, there are those who would like to know what sense there is in all that, and what the mystery connected with these portentous words. And also is this another mode of counting out:

"Occa, bocca,
Bona, croka,
Occa, bocca, tuce!"

The future belles of our city, it must be confessed, use the same savage methods in making their election of "Who's it?" etc. The girls have also a good many incomprehensible chants and songs of their own. The starting point is of course, "ring around the rosy pot," for it is an utter impossibility for girls—that is, small and real girls—to play anything very long that does not require a clasping of hands and their circling about with some outlandish chant. Their favorite song is:

"Green gravel,
Green gravel,
How green the grass grows;
And all the creation
Is ashamed to be seen.
Dear Annie, Dear Annie,
Your true love is dead;
He sent you a letter,
So turn back your head."

Whereupon the dear Annie in question reverses her top-knot to the balance of the circle and continues to go round in that position until the dreadful tidings of the decease of the true love of "Dear Lizzie," "Dear Louie," etc., is conveyed to them respectively; and they, in turn, reverse themselves in honor of the departed. When the whole list of names in the circle is exhausted, and the bereaved objects of so pure affection are in mourning together, the game is played over again.

If there chance to be any youthful representatives of the male sex about with whom the young ladies are on good terms, the chant is sometimes varied thus, the circling performance never ceasing for an instant:

"Little Minnie Tan,
A sitting in the sun,
A weeping and crying for a young man;
Rise, Minnie; rise, Minnie,
Wipe away your tears;
Look to the east and look to the west,
And look to the one that you love best.

And Minnie immediately casts a languishing look upon some young shaver among the boys, who, in response, as quickly assumes a melancholy air, breathes hard a couple of times, and attempts a simultaneous display of all his jewelry.

But this is getting off the main subject—boys. The lives of most of the great heroes, philosophers and statesmen that have figured in the world's history have been written, the "self-made men" of the country have been run through a Hoe press several thousand times, and the future of promising youths throughout the land has been horescoped somewhat extensively. But who shall write up the youth of our distinguished soldiers and statesmen and moneyed men? There are many gentlemen of celebrity whose juvenile experiences would pan out handsomely, but we are afraid none of them would be so frank and outspoken on the subject as Col. Richard Holland, now of Harrodsburg, Ky.

He was fond of ginger cake, and on one occasion abstracted the grocery pass book from beneath the paternal roof, and obtained twelve sections of that substantial and spicy creature comfort for the benefit of his "crowd," who ate it in a neighboring board yard, and gave three times three for the author of the feast. An attempt to alter the figures in the book failed, however, and the youthful fancier received a large dose of strap oil as a curative for his smartness. The Colonel was likewise fond of a gun.

and as his father had one, which the old gentleman prized very highly, Richard and his brother took it out on the hill to shoot "chippies" on an average three times a week, Richard taking the weapon apart and ramming the stock up the back of his coat, while his brother carried the barrel in one of his trousers' legs, so as to get it out of the house unseen. They managed the ramrod by tying a string to it and making a whip of it until they got out of sight. They had "lots of fun" with the gun until the brother tried to shoot the ramrod out one day, when it kicked him over and knocked both hammers to a full cock. Richard didn't see his brother for over five minutes, and then had to carry him home. There was no more shooting of "chippies."

The most important transaction of that period of the Colonel's existence was the clandestine carrying away and pawning of the old gentleman's watch—a venerable timepiece which had been lying unused in a bureau drawer for over five years. Richard very reasonably thought the watch was completely forgotten by that time, and that he had made a very judicious disposition of it. But the very next Sunday, as ill-luck would have it, the old gentleman, on dressing himself to go to a dinner party, said to his good wife, "Well, I guess I'll wear my watch to-day," and fruitless search being made for the chronometer, Richard fled the spot and played "hookey," both from school and home for the next six weeks.

And "sich," as Sairy Gamp would say, "sich is boys."

Massachusetts Convention.

The republican State convention of Massachusetts met on Wednesday at Worcester. Hon. George B. Loring was chosen temporary chairman, and Henry L. Dawes permanent chairman. Gov. Talbot was renominated on the first ballot, which stood as follows:

George B. Loring	198
Charles Devens	54
John E. Sanford	20
Ben. F. Butler	16
H. L. Dawes	1
E. R. Hoar	1

Advices from the sections of India where the famine prevailed state that 600,000 natives are yet supported by the government relief works. Lieutenant Mahmoud Tevfic, of the Turkish army, drowned himself at Providence, R. I., Oct. 5th. He was thirty years old, unmarried, and had been in that city for two years on business connected with the manufacture of the Martini rifles for the Turkish government. He was very dissipated, and despite the advice and warnings of his companions, travelled the road to ruin speedily. Wine and women proved his disgrace, some time ago, and it was expected that he would be recalled to Turkey by the Sultan. He held a commission in the regular army of Turkey, and his parents, who are wealthy, reside in Constantinople. The body will be embalmed and sent home.

The Plague of Grasshoppers.

[Rev. Richard Cordley, D. D. of Lawrence, Kansas.]

I have seen many references to this "plague of grasshoppers" in Eastern papers, but no hint as to its extent and fearfulness. Living in the midst of the grasshopper region, I have taken some pains to collect facts in regard to them. Their invasion and ravages are as wonderful as anything connected with this "wonderful West." The "grasshopper region" extends from the Indian Territory on the south to Minnesota on the north, and from the arid plains of the Rocky Mountains on the west, whence they originate, to the Mississippi on the east. It is not often, however, that they reach the latter boundaries, as frost generally overtakes them on the way. This year, however, they are earlier than usual, and they reach the rivers before frost comes. So their ravages this year will extend, with an occasional break and omission, over a region nearly one thousand miles square.

Their number is simply appalling. The national debt and the wonders of geometrical progression are completely left in the shade. Take your little pencil while I give you the materials of a problem. An army of them is passing over my house as I am writing, going eastward. Looking up, the air is filled with them as high as you can see. The lower strata look like snow flakes in the air. Higher up they look like silver dust sprinkled on the sky. This immense multitude has been moving rapidly all day. On Saturday, two days ago, another army, equally vast, passed over the city southward, and were seven hours going over. Now remember that the army extends, with a few breaks in the line, nearly one thousand miles, and while your pencil and figures may fail, you can form some conception of the reality.

Their destructiveness is as wonderful as their numbers. When they light, they come down like a snow storm, covering the ground. As soon as they strike they begin to eat, and they keep eating till food grows scarce, and then they move on. In some places their destructiveness is more complete than in others, as their stay varies from three days to three weeks. They have excellent appetites and a wide range of diet. Onions, tobacco, peppers, cabbages, and other strong and pungent articles, are their favorites; but they can accommodate themselves to circumstances, and when these luxuries fail, can thrive very well on such substantials as corn or grass, or leaves of fruit or forest trees; and even as a last resort they devour the twigs and bark of the trees and the stalks of the corn, as the hard-tack of the campaign. The rapidity of their work is almost incredible. The great corn fields of these prairies seem to melt before them almost while you are looking at them; orchards and forests exhibit the baldness of winter, and the whole country looks as though a fire had passed over it. A farmer told me he had one hundred acres of corn in one field so rank you could not see through it. The grasshoppers struck it about noon, and in a few hours only bare stalks were standing. "It just melted away before my eyes," he said. And what they have done for him they have done for all. The bottom lands of the Kaw (Kansas) River, which for one hundred miles west of here are almost one unbroken corn-field, now show nothing but bare stalks. Where the corn is mature, they leave the ear and stalk. But where it is green, they sweep the whole away. In this region much of the corn was about ripe and is safe. One hundred miles west of us the grasshoppers came earlier, and there is absolutely no harvest.

I drove several miles through fields on the Kaw bottom while the grasshoppers were working. The sound of their eating was as if a drove of cattle were in the field. In my own yard you could hear them distinctly, eating among the trees. At any hour of the night you could go to the door and hear the work going on. It took but a few days to strip the trees of their leaves; the yards of their grass; the gardens of their plants, and the fields of their harvests. When food becomes scarce, they all rise together as if by word of command, and pass on "to greener fields," if not to "milder skies." It is the best appointed army ever known. They move and camp and work in concert, as if directed by some common voice. They forage on the country as they moves. If one of them gets hurt or killed his companions at once eat him up. So they need neither baggage wagon nor stores, ambulance nor surgeon.

The insect itself differs from the common grasshopper. In addition to its jump-apparatus, it is furnished with four white wings, which do not simply help it to hop, but on which it flies indefinite distances—miles—perhaps hundreds of miles. It is no doubt nearly identical with the locust of Scripture. The second chapter of Joel contains a very fine poetical description of an invasion of locusts. It might be all literally applied to these Western plains to-day. They come like "a strong people in battle array"—with a noise like "chariots on the top of the mountains—or fire that devoureth the stubble." "They march every one in his own way, and do not break their ranks." "They run upon the wall, climb upon the houses, and enter in at the windows." Before them the people are "pained, and all faces gather blackness." "The land is a garden of Eden before them, behind them a desolate wilderness." Man is helpless before them as before the elements of God. There is no resisting, or destroying, or turning them. They come like fire or flood, sweeping all before them. There seems to be no limit to their numbers or destructiveness. No matter how rich a country may be, they can lay it waste while we are looking at them.

Whence do they come, and whither do they go? They are not natives of this country, neither do they perpetuate their race here. In the fall they fill the soil with their eggs, and in the spring the young grasshoppers come forth in numbers so vast that it almost seems as if the dust itself had been vitalized. But they proceed at once southeast—and are never heard of again. Each invasion is a new stock—fresh from the plains among the Rocky Mountains. There they are born and brought up; but, like Stephen A. Douglass with Vermont, find it "a good place to emigrate from." Their incursions are more limited than this year. One year it is Minnesota, another Arizona, another Kansas. But this year it seems "to thunder all around the sky."

But will they not prove a fatal objection to that region of country, and paralyze its prosperity? Many of our people, smarting under their terrible losses, are now almost ready to say so. We have our "Job Goodwins" here, "who snuff calamity afar off," as the horses of Scripture do the battle. I have even heard the prediction that this country will be found uninhabited in consequence.

A single glance will show the absurdity of any such conclusion. All countries have their draw-backs—usually in proportion to their advantages. These grasshoppers are one of the draw-backs to this wonderfully rich soil. But it is so rich that if the whole crop were consumed every second year it would still support a dense population. But the grasshoppers have only come three times in twenty years—and twice they came so late as to do little damage. This year the ravages are fearful, and the losses will count up among the millions. The western part of the State—which is new and dependent on the corn crop, is completely destitute. In the older sections, however, a fine wheat crop has been secured, and half the corn was too nearly mature to be destroyed. So, doubtless, this country will survive and prosper notwithstanding.

The humors of the campaign are not a few. At Topeka they said they "eat the peaches from the trees and then threw the stones at the people as they passed." In Wisconsin they say "they stopped a train one morning, seized the daily papers, and there learning that a section had been missed by them, turned back and finished the job." Stopping the train is no joke. They have frequently piled themselves so as to cause the driving wheels to stick on their broken bodies. The ladies have an aversion to them, as they cannot walk out without capturing from fifty to two hundred and bringing them home. In church you can safely assume that every lady has a few score hidden in the folds of her robes. A sudden twiching of the features, a clutching of the fingers, or a faint scream, will indicate that one of these captives has "struck for liberty."

The grasshopper is bound to play an important part in our history. He is already an element in our politics, and parties may yet ride into power on his back. They are certainly a mighty people, and whatever we may think of them, we have ceased to despise them. We have learned to fear them, and almost to stand in awe of them. We fear them for their power, and we stand in awe at the evident intelligence that underlies and guides their movements.

—A French paper says that not one American in a hundred has a handsome chin. This is due to the fact that so many of our fellow citizens give nearly all their time to the cultivation of cheek.

—The schoolmaster is badly wanted abroad if it be true, as reported, that Prince Arthur sent Miss Minnie Sherman "a superb locket of Etruscan gold," inscribed, by letter, "to the young lady who of all others in America he admired most." Queen Victoria may find foes to her beloved English in her own household.

—Recently, in a Columbia county (Georgia) church when the congregation arose to sing, a pistol fell from the pocket of one of the worshipers, and wounded a Mr. Peeler, who remarked as he was being carried out, "Take care you don't make me drop mine."

New Publications.

William F. Gill & Co. (Successors to Shepard & Gill,) have in press an entirely new story, The Frozen Deep, by Wilkie Collins; 12mo, cloth, 237 pages, $1.25. Illustrated by Alfred Fredericks. From the association of Charles Dickens and his family with this story in its original dramatic form, it has a more than ordinary interest. The full cast of the play, in which Dickens and Collins appeared together some years since, is printed in the introduction to the story in a copy of the play bill used at the performances. In his introductory to "The Frozen Deep," Mr. Collins gives a peculiarly interesting history of the origin of the story, and of Mr. Dickens' connection with the representations of the dramatic version. The story as now issued for the first time has been completed with great care by the author, and although not without the legitimate sensational effects pertaining to the peculiar psychological element skillfully introduced and developed, it is unquestionably the purest and most refined work that has emanated from this popular author's pen.

Rev. Henry Morgan comes out this season with a new book, "Shadowy Hand," 250 pages, handsomely illustrated. The story is founded on fact, graphically written, and abounding in anecdotes. The book sells at $1.50. Liberal discount to agents.

Messrs. Wm. F. Gill & Co. have published Modern Christianity, a Civilized Heathenism, by the author of "Ginx's Baby," which made such a stir on both sides of the water. Mr. Jenkins was evidently born to set his countrymen by the ears, and in this latest work is only carrying out his mission. In his satire, if that can be called by that name, which is written in such dead earnest, he contrasts in a dialogue, a civilized heathen, one Cursetjee, called for shortness Curtis, and a modern Christian, a clergyman of the established church. It will take close reading to find out the author's drift, and even his preface is misleading, perhaps intentionally, but his orthodoxy appears in the last paper. He is only preaching by a parable the inconsistency of worldly Christians. It is a book to interest thoughtful men and women.

Mr. Robert Lowell's new story, "Anthony Brade," is wholesome reading, teaching honor, manliness and tenderness. Published by Roberts Brothers, Boston.

Blackwood's Magazine for September comes from the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay street, New York. The leading political article is a "Review of the Session," in which the writer takes comfort in the political situation. The serials, "Alice Lorraine" and "Valentine and his Brother" are continued. The Tribute in Memoriam to Charles Sumner is by W. W. Story, with whose contributions, both in prose and poetry, the pages of Blackwood are occasionally enriched. In the "Disappointing Boy," we meet with a youth spoiled by his mother, proving a severe trial to his father. "Pilchards and Pilchard-Catchers" describes the Cornish coast, the fishing, and other occupations of the people. Other interesting articles are contained in this number.

Building Up the Weak.

Feeble constitutions cannot be physicked into health and strength. Invigoration, to be permanent and complete, must be effected by establishing a regular and harmonious action of the various bodily organs. Dosing will not accomplish this; but Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will. That admirable tonic and corrective regulates at the same time that it strengthens the stomach, liver and bowels, and while imparting vigor to the entire physique, purifies and enriches the blood. A good appetite, tranquil sleep, sound digestion and a regular habit of body—four grand essentials of health—are promoted by its use. If vital ities, tranquillize and equalizes. By a successful chemical combination of tonic, aperient and nutritious vegetable ingredients, held in solution and diffused through the system by a wholesome and agreeable stimulant, it is enabled to beneficially affect the various abdominal organs at one and the same time.

Sozodont.

All Dentifrices had their drawbacks, until the salubrious bark of the soap tree was brought from the Chilian valleys to perfect the fragrant Sozodont, the most wholesome, reliable and delightful article for the teeth that a brush was ever dipped into.

Piles can be cured only by ANAKESIS, the greatest discovery of the age and the sole, infallible remedy for the worst cases of Piles. Thousands of sufferers after trying in vain all manner of lotions, ointments and internal remedies, have been instantly relieved and permanently cured by Anakesis. It is the happy discovery of Dr. SILSBEE, a regular scientific physician, and doctors of all schools endorse and recommend it. Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere, and sent free by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walker street, New York.

A New Lead.

How many times does 56 go into 250,000? It goes 5000 times. Well, that is a good per cent. even for California. Will the best "lead" ever struck pay as much? Certainly not. But there are strong probabilities that an investment of fifty dollars made in the last Grand Gift Concert, in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky, will pay that per cent. to somebody. Why not to one of us? And then we have only to wait till the 30th of November for the result. eod,w

Act on the Defensive.

Persons who are subjected to the influences of bad air and unwholesome water, to constant exposure out of doors and sudden changes of weather, should act on the defensive by imparting to their constitutions the power of resisting such influences. The fortifying effects upon the system of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are simply amazing. Thousands who use them as a preventive of malaria enjoy an absolute immunity from its attacks, although dwelling in regions where that scourge is most prevalent. Artizans and laborers whose occupations keep them in the open air, find the Bitters a complete safeguard against the effects of exposure. Travellers testify that they counteract the influences of torrid heat, intense cold, and miasmatic air. Free from every objectionable feature, pure, undeteriorating, containing only vegetable ingredients, an agreeable stimulant, a wholesome tonic and corrective, and a sovereign protective, it is not surprising that the Bitters should be the most popular of American remedies.

TO THE HON. JUDGE OF PROBATE FOR THE COUNTY OF ROCKINGHAM, IN THE STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

RESPECTFULLY SHOWS Charlotte M. Seavey of Portsmouth in said County of Rockingham, State of New Hampshire, that she is Guardian of ELLA M. SEAVEY by the appointment of the Judge of Probate for said County of Rockingham; that her said Ward is seized of one common and undivided third part of the homestead farm of EDWARD SEAVEY, late of Rye in said County, deceased, which farm is situated in said Rye, and that it is necessary for the support of her said Ward and will be conducive to her interest to have the premises sold; wherefore she prays that she may be licensed and authorized to sell the same at public auction, according to the statute in such cases made and provided.

CHARLOTTE M. SEAVEY, Guardian.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, } Rockingham, ss. }

Probate Office at Exeter in said County, Oct. 3, A. D. 1874.

UPON the foregoing Petition, it is Ordered, that a hearing be had thereon at a Court of Probate to be holden at Portsmouth in said County, on the second Tuesday of November next; and that the Petitioner notify all persons concerned to appear at said Court, and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted, by causing said petition and this order to be published three weeks successively in the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE, a newspaper published at Portsmouth in said County, the last publication whereof to be at least one week prior to said Court.

By order of the Judge.

WHERE DO YOU BUY PAPER?

OF the Manufacturer or of "Middlemen"?—that's the question. While you are pondering it remember that we still make it out of RAGS, which is good enough for Newspapers or Books. And, besides making to order, we keep quite a lot on hand, of which we will send you a list, from time to time, if you will favor us with your address. GILBERT'S LIVER LOZENGES.

WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT THEM.

CAMELLOTTESVILLE, IND., April 23, 1874.
S. GILBERT: A box of your Liver Lozenges have almost cured me of the Dyspepsia of 20 years standing. I have recommended them in many cases, and they have never failed to my knowledge of giving relief, and I have heard several say they were the best remedy they had ever used. A. H. ALLISON,
6t Eld. Christian Church.

Local Matters.

Laconics.

Annie De Montford's entertainments at the Temple are well attended, each one drawing a larger audience than the one preceding. Not many who attend are satisfied with one night's mirth, and the mesmerist (who has the Temple engaged for the week) has a good prospect of liberal patronage as long as she stays.

The programme of the S. P. C. A. Lyceum course is published, and includes (besides the Boston English Opera Company) the following well known and popular lecturers: James T. Fields, James Steele Mackaye, Rev. W. H. Cudworth, Hon. Wm. Parsons, Wendell Phillips, Rev. Dr. E. H. Chapin and Kate Reignolds. The price of tickets is put at the very low figure of $1.50 each, and seats will be reserved throughout the course,—a new feature, and one which will give general satisfaction, as well as offer extra inducement to the early purchase of tickets, the first comers of course having their choice of sittings.

Judge Garland, of Texas, (now visiting his early home at Rye,) informs us that he has not received any definite tidings concerning the reported murder of his brother, Mr. Chas. William Garland, at Minneola, Texas, as mentioned in a recent issue of this paper; and he thinks it improbable the story is true. Hope it is not.

An opera, and seven lectures by able and pleasing speakers, all for $1.50! See advertisement,—and go for tickets!

Some lewd fellows of the baser sort have recently taken to insulting women on our streets, for amusement; one of them got a sore head by it, Sunday night, and we shall be neither surprised nor sorry if one or two of them get badly hurt if they keep on. Such fellows will be of more use in jail than in any other place, unless it may be the cemetery. If the new police can manage to catch one of them, and club him good, they will have the thanks of all decent people "without regard to party."

Sagamore bridge, which has been closed for repairs for some weeks, is now again open for travel.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Kearsarge Mills was held in the vestry of the Freewill Baptist church on the 6th. In the absence of Mr. James L. Little, president of the corporation, Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett was chosen chairman. The following board of directors was elected for the ensuing year: James L. Little, Josiah G. Abbott, James H. Beal, John F. Anderson, James H. Blake and Alexander S. Wheeler of Boston; and John Stavers of this city. Mr William H. Thompson, of Boston, was re-elected treasurer, and Mr. A. R. H. Fernald was chosen proprietors' clerk.

"The Successor Of Steam."

Under this title, Dr. H. Beins, of Groningen, has published an article in the Dutch Iris, giving the results of various experiments conducted with the view of discovering a substitute for steam. Dr. Beins says —"For many years I have, with the collaboration of my brother, Mr. J. F. Beins, director of the Netherlands Soda Manufactory at Amsterdam, considered the question: how to transform heat into mechanical power more advantageously than it is done in our common steam and other engines. It occurred to us to make an experiment to see what degree the tention of the carbonic acid given off by natriumbicarbonate would amount to when heated in a closed space. We were surprised and much satisfied to find that when natriumbicarbonate (or the corresponding salt of kalium) in a dry pulverized state or in a watery solution is heated in a closed space, a part of the carbonate acid is given off and condensed in a not heated portion of that space, so that a temperature of 300 to 400 C. liquid carbonic acid can be distilled out of those salts with a tension of from fifty to sixty atmospheres.

The writer then proceeds to point out several respects in which the fact is of the greatest importance. One is that carbonic acid of high tension, in particular liquid carbonic acid, which he has called, for the sake of convenience, carboleum, is an excellent motive power for small and great industries. As regards the use of carboleum engines for ships, the weight of such an engine for instance of 100 horse-power and combustible stores for 240 hours, may be calculated to be one-fifth less than the weight of a steam-engine of the same power. And as many parts of the carboleum engine must be more massive, it will require less space. "I have experimentally found that a carboleum-engine is easily constructed. Taps and joints can be made to answer perfectly. A year ago I filled a tube of hammered copper with carbonic acid, of 50 atm., and not the least loss is yet observed. Wrought metals are, therefore, not permeable for gases of that tenglou. For the great industry the carboleum-engine can in almost every case substitute the steam-engine. For the small industry, specially for engines working with intermissions and during brief spaces of time, the property of carboleum of being always ready for work is of much importance, for instance, for printing-presses, fire-engines, street-locomotives, etc. By this same property, and since the mechanical equivalent of electricity is very small, a carboleum-engine is a very fit and cheap source of electrical light. Such a light would come at a much less cost than the ordinary gaslight. And considering this great advantage, the objection that we do not yet possess good electrical lamps for common use, loses much of its value. My method of compression furnishes easily the required tension for the convey of letters in tubes, and the modern brake apparatus for railways. Perhaps the property of carboleum of possessing a power of projection a hundred times cheaper than gunpowder can be made use of. The fact that a carboleum-engine with a sufficient store of carboleum is independent of our atmosphere, makes it possible to construct a vessel, provided with means to sink to any depth of the sea, to rise and sink at will, to cruise about under water, and to maintain the life of the crew during that operation, to develop light, etc. The importance of this for scientific discoveries and industrial purposes is evident. For the purpose of war also must such a small and comparatively cheap submarine vessel place a peculiar, nay, a decisive weight in the scale in the question of our modern iron-clads."

Josh Billings' Almanax for 1875.

The following are a few of the gems from this annual:

Half the discomfort of life is the result of getting tired of ourselves.

People of good sense are those whose opinions agree with ours.

Intellect without judgment is what ails about one-half the smart people in this world.

To lie about a man never hurts him, but to tell the truth about him sometimes does.

Christians seem to fite under cover, but the devil stands boldly out, and dares the world to single kombat.

Reason often makes mistakes, but conshience never duz.

The man who is allwuss confessing his sins and never quitting them, iz the most onsartin sinner I kno ov.

The man who kan set himself to work at onnything on 5 minnitts notiss, has got one of the best trades I kno ov.

I hav made up mi mind, that human hapiness konsists in having a good deal to do, and then keep a doing it.

Yung man, yu better be honest than cunning, and it iz hard work to be both.

Mi experience in life thus far haz been that 7 won't go into 5 and hav mutch ov onnything left over.

Abuv all things lern yure child to be honest and industrious; if thezo two things don't enable him to make a figger in this world, he iz only a cypher, and never waz intended for a figger.

Out of Patience.

Bret Harte tells the following amusing story of his Chinese office boy, Wan Lee:

It was my habit, after leaving the office at night, to take him with me to my rooms, as the bearer of any supplemental or after thought in the editorial way that might occur to me before the paper went to press. One night I had been scribbling away past the usual hour of dismissing Wan Lee, and had become quite oblivious of his presence in a chair near my door, when suddenly I became aware of a voice saying, in plaintive accents, something that sounded like "Chy Lee."

I faced around sternly.

"What did you say?"

"Me say 'Chy Lee.'"

"Well?" I said, impatiently.

"You sabe 'How do, John?'"

"Yes."

"You sabe 'So long, John?'"

"Yes."

"Well, 'Chy Lee' same!"

I understood him quite plainly. It appeared that "Chy Lee" was a form of "good night," and that Wan Lee was anxious to go home. But an instinct of mischief which I fear I possessed in common with him, impelled me to act as if oblivious of the hint. I uttered something about not understanding him, and again bent over my work. In a few minutes I heard his wooden shoes pattering pathetically over the floor. I looked up. He was standing near the door.

"You no sabe; 'Chy Lee?'"

"No," I said sternly.

"You sabe Muchee big foolee!—allee same?"

And with this impertinence he fled.

—"After Thoughts"—Those who write.

—A Chicago widow has $7000 invested in dogs, and, curious to relate, she has had 1750 offers of marriage in the last year—one offer to $4 worth of dog.

—A disinterested observer says that "if there is anybody who can keep Tennessee from falling asleep, Brownlow is that body. When he isn't a revolving reservoir of literary vitriol, he's an animated chunk of lunar caustic."

—Every farmer who has had occasion to drive a nail into seasoned oak posts knows its liability to bend and break. If the point be moistened in the mouth, it will usually drive more kindly. Oil is still better, but then it is inconvenient to dip each nail into it. Another point observed is that boards become loose eventually from the rusting of the nails, which, communicating to the wood, causes not only an enlargement of the nail-hole, but the wearing away of the nail itself, rendering the fence or the building insecure. This may be prevented by heating any rough grease until it smokes, and then pouring it over the nails to be used. The grease will penetrate the pores of the iron, and cause the nails to last, without rusting, for an indefinite period. Besides this, no trouble with them will be experienced in driving them into the hardest wood. The reason is that the coating of grease prevents contact by air, and consequently oxidation. Oxygen is the great destroyer of iron, and moisture is the inducing cause.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

For Sale in Greenland.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of plendid strawberries produced.

The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1300 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate, as the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated mid way between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately.—of O. G. ROBINSON, on the premises, or Butler & Laighton, Market Square, or Bailey & Co., Market street. jel

ALES, WINES, LIQUORS AND CIGARS.

THE BEST IN THE MARKET,

After an absence of more than two years, I have returned to Portsmouth and taken the stand formerly occupied by me, next door to the Custom House, where I should be pleased to meet all my old friends and everyone else in want of anything in my line of business. My LIQUORS are PURE, my CIGARS are of the best brands—in fact everything in my stock is first-class and WARRANTED.

Prairie Dogs.

[Prairie Farmer.]

They look very much like red squirrels, with their ears cropped close as a hen's, and their tails cut off to three inches long. They live in houses or holes in the ground, and usually in "towns," where large numbers are found.

Each family has a house to itself; and such houses! They dig holes in the ground, sometimes quite deep, and very crooked, and at the top they make mounds about the size and shape of an inverted bushel basket, leaving a funnel-shaped hole in the middle for the doorway. It is hard to get hold of them, for they always run to the mounds, at the first intimation of a person approaching, and, if shot, they fall into the house out of reach; but if not, they dive down in a very amusing manner. At times they are real playful, and will chase each other around for awhile, then set up on their hind legs and make a chuckling noise like laughing, or stand erect on their hind feet and give a squeaking challenge for another race and off they go. I have often stopped my oxen and sat on the plow to watch them in their antics, and always with increasing pleasure. It took me some time to learn about their ears, for they are hard to get acquainted with. Sometimes I thought they had none; at others that they did, but kept them laid back like a cross horse when I was near. But after a while they seemed to lose their fear, and would play all sorts of pranks when I was within a few feet of them.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cause of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Lying Epitaphs.

[M. Quad.]

I took a walk through the cemetery yesterday, and I have been in a brown study ever since. Cushman's tombstone stands up there a foot above all the rest, and on it I read:

"Let us meet him in heaven."

I don't know who ordered that epitaph, but I used to live beside Cushman. Many's the time I kept him from pounding his wife when he was drunk, and I went bail for him when he stole a horse and wagon, and was on the jury when they sent him to State Prison for stealing hay. He was killed in a saloon row, and if I ever "meet him in heaven" I shall ask him whether he climbed over the wall or tunneled under it.

Davidson has a very nice headstone, with a pair of clasped hands on it, and these words:—

"Too pure for earth, Gone to his heavenly rest."

I was much affected at reading these lines, but I couldn't help but wonder if he repented setting fire to the railroad sheds; or stealing a carpet from the M. E. Church; and of several other little matters which caused him to make the acquaintance of the jailor. It is possible that he is "too pure for earth," but I know men who will bet ten dollars on it.

Thatcher has a monument with a lamb on top, and his loving wife has put on the words:—

"I shall meet him up there."

I don't know what they put the lamb on for. Lambs don't carry the disposition which Thatcher did. I could cover that monument with chalk marks if I should commence to remember the times I have seen him come home, throw his wife out doors, and play smash with the furniture. Wasn't I present when he bit Billy Marden's left ear off in a fight? Wasn't I around when he gouged Jack Spray's right eye out? And now his widow is trying to live so that she might meet him "up there." If she should look around and fail to see his beloved phiz in that region of eternal bliss, she needn't think strange of it.

Peterson's stone held me a great while. It is of costly Italian marble, with an urn on the top, a hand with the fingers pointing upward, and it bears the words:—

"Gone before—blighted by earth's wickedness. We shall gather with him on the other shore."

I remember when he was blighted, though it's a long time ago. He undertook to lick a fellow who wouldn't vote his ticket, and he was knocked over a chair and had his skull fractured. The coroner said it was the worst blight he had seen in six months. I don't know but his numerous family will "gather with him on the other side," but I have my doubts. If they should ever see him again, or if they think they will, I know of several grocers and butchers who will give 'em ten per cent to collect old accounts of twelve years' standing.

I found Deacon Warner's tombstone also. It bears a stern, solemn look, just as he used to, and it says:—

"Heaven's gates shall open to us who are like him."

Perhaps they will. Whether they do or not I shall always remember how he sold me a blind horse when I had sore eyes; how he raised the house rent on the widows; how a justice fined him twenty dollars for whipping a poor bound boy; how he put chickory in his coffee and hay-seed in his tea, and how regularly he used to pass the contribution box to the rest of us, but forget to put in anything himself. If the gates of heaven are going to be held wide open for those of Deacon Warner's class, I want to put in my time in Michigan.

Amateur Railroading.

The Fredericksburg and Gordonsville railroad company has some 17 miles of road completed from Fredericksburg, Va., to Parker's store, which is not now operated. Some of the means devised by the people on the line to make use of the track, are thus described by the Fredericksburg Ledger: "A gentleman who resides here, who is the owner of a small stationary engine, has attached to it a flat car on the Fredericksburg and Gordonsville railroad, and with a molasses hogshead for his water tank, runs up and down the road between this city and Parker's store for freight and passengers. One of those indefatigable genuses peculiar to the wilderness of Spottsylvania, becoming disgusted with the tardy movements of the railroad company, and fearing that his hoop-poles, if kept much longer on hand, would not be merchantable, conceived the novel idea of hauling his poles to town on a flat car drawn by a young bull. The car was loaded with 100 bundles of poles. There was some difficulty in teaching the bull exactly what was expected of him. The modus operandi was as follows: The bull drew the car up the grades, and was then unhitched and mounted on a platform at the rear of the car, which then ran down the grade without help. As soon as his bullship got the hang of the thing, he took it very kindly, dragging the car up the grades with great alacrity, and evincing the same pleasure in riding down that is shown by boys who drag their sleigbs up hill for the pleasure of riding down again."

—A persistent lawyer in a recent action of trover for an E flat cornet, hurled in a printed brief with over one hundred and fifteen citations of decisions to maintain a "conclusively settled" legal proposition, and lost his case at that.

Judge Hook has retired from the Congressional contest in Tennessee in favor of Brownlow. In a discussion at Sweetwater, East Tenn., Judge Maynard declared himself against the civil rights bill.

The Postmaster-General has issued a circular for the information of the Postmasters at the larger offices, to the effect that on the first inst. there occurred a change of contractors for furnishing official stamped envelopes, and the contractors not being as yet fully prepared with the necessary facilities for carrying on the work, there will be a temporary suspension of the issue of such envelopes. As a consequence, and in order not to retard the public business, all Postmasters requiring envelopes for official use will, for the present, be furnished with the ordinary Post Office unstamped envelopes, and with the ordinary postage stamps to be affixed thereto.

Andy Johnson said in a speech at Chattanooga that "the bondholders had already received in interest more than they paid for their bonds," and he advocated "the repudiation of the entire bonded debt of the State and of the nation."

The total amount of national bank circulation outstanding to date is $351,000,000.

It is understood the President will in his forthcoming message to Congress, again urge that some action be taken looking to a resumption of specie payments at as early a day as practicable.

Congressman Dawes presided at the Massachusetts republican convention; Mr. Talbot, who was nominated for Governor, is a prohibitionist, but it is noticeable that neither in Mr. Dawes' remarks, in the convention, nor in the resolutions presented was there any reference either by hint or implication to the prohibitory law, or to the question of license or prohibition.

General Sherman has been notified by the War department to send a regiment of infantry for service in the South, if the troops can be spared. The thirteenth infantry has been ordered South.

In Georgia, the election for members of the legislature passed off quietly. There was scarcely any opposition to the democratic candidates, except in a few counties. There will not be exceeding 14 republicans in both houses of the next general assembly, thus giving a democratic majority on joint ballot of 205.

The editor of the Vermont Gazette, printed at Bennington, has been knocked down and severely whipped by an employee whom he called a liar.

The town of Modoc, Pa., lower oil region now looks like a deserted village. The wells in the vicinity are fast drying up, and but few business houses remain where but a few months ago there was a thriving and busy population. Modoc has gone like many an oil town.

Robert Small, the colored pilot who during the war escaped from Charleston harbor with his vessel and surrendered it to the Union forces, is a candidate for Congress in the Charleston district.

The number of fishing arrivals reported at Gloucester in September was two hundred and forty one, of which only a dozen were from the Bay St. Lawrence, leaving a large fleet to arrive. Ninety-one vessels made shore mackereling trips to the Eastward, of which twenty packed two fares each during the month, giving a total of one hundred and eleven fares. The mackerel receipts have been moderate, and the market active, though prices are a third less for Bays, and nearly fifty per cent. lower for Shore ones than last year at this time. The George's fleet was larger than is usual in September, and seventy-six fares were received. Forty fares of codfish and halibut were received from Grand and Western Banks, and one fare of fletched halibut from Greenland. The market for codfish remained steady at $5 1-4 for George's and $5 for Grand Bank throughout the month, which was about 25 cts. per quart, off the average sales last year in September.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has been convicted, in a Jersey City, of cruelty to animals in packing calves in a car so closely that some died; and has been fined $100.

The Coming Eclipse.

There will be a total eclipse of the moon on the night of October 24. It will be visible throughout all North America. East of longitude 109 west, the middle of the eclipse will take place early in the morning of Sunday, 25th, but west of that longitude late in the evening of Saturday, 24th. In Boston the elipse will take place as follows:

Eclipse begins 0h. 57m. A. M., Boston time.

Total eclipse begins 25th, 2h. 15m. A. M.

Total eclipse ends 2h. 48m. A. M.

Eclipse ends 4h. 7m. A. M.

Duration of the total eclipse, 33 minutes.

Although the eclipse is called total, the moon will not wholly disappear, but will remain visible, of the hue of tarnished copper.

—Texas is full of mysteries. A man was put in jail in Byran the other night, and the next morning he was found hanging to a tree a quarter of a mile away.

The Austrian Polar Explorers.

The Tribune publishes a letter from Hamburg, giving an account of the reception and banquet to the Austrian Arctic explorers at Hamburg. Captain Weyprecht in his speech told the story of the voyage. He said that in the autumn of 1872 they were firmly inclosed and frozen in. At one time they had thirty feet of ice under the keel, and were in a region of intense cold. They drifted slowly, though not with regularity, and were perfectly helpless; no power of steam or sails or men could do anything against the ice of the north, and they were quite at its mercy. The summer brought them no release. They made excursions with sledges, and discovered land hitherto unknown, which they christened Franz Joseph's Land, in honor of their emperor. When Lieutenant Payer returned to the ship from his last expedition, it was necessary to consider the question of abandoning the Tegethoff. The ship was firmly blocked in the ice, and was lurching so much that it became necessary to shore her up with spars. There was no prospect of an escape, and no prospect that by remaining longer they could accomplish much more. Besides, the loss of the ship was quite probable in the crushing and heaving of the ice, and if this should happen in the winter the destruction of the entire party was inevitable. So it was decided to return to Europe. On the 20th of last May they left the ship with boats drawn on sledges. The way was terrible. They had to break down the hummocks with axes and picks, so as to make a road for the sledges, and there were frequently days when they did not make a nautical mile in twenty-four hours. Sometimes they could not stand, and were forced to crawl over the rough way, and as they approached broken water they found there ice which would not support them standing, and where they were again forced to crawl several days. After leaving the ship a part of them returned to get a smaller boat. They fancied everything was safe in the vessel. Captain Weyprecht thinks it not impossible that she may yet be recovered. Through the broken water they made their way with many hardships, and at last reached open water. Once on the sea they made the best of their way southward, rowing by relays at the rate of about forty miles a day. They were picked up by a fishing smack and were well treated. The Russians brought them to Norway, and thence they made their way. Lieutenant Payer also made a speech, devoted mainly to the account of his discovery of Franz Joseph Land, which he described as very rough with a reddish gray beach showing through the snow, and with mountains of various heights up to 3000 or 4000 feet.

Fat Young Ladies and Vinegar.

Taken in moderation there is no doubt that vinegar is beneficial, but in excess it impairs the digestive organs. Experiments on artificial digestion show that if the quantity of acid be diminished digestion is retarded; if increased beyond a certain point, digestion is arrested. There is reason, therefore, in the vulgar notion—unhappily too often relied on—that vinegar helps to keep down any alarming adiposity, and that ladies who dread the disappearance of their graceful outlines in curves of plumpness expanding into "fat" may arrest so dreadful a result by liberal potations of vinegar, but they can only arrest it at the far more dreadful expense of their health. The amount of acid which will keep them thin will destroy their digestive powers. Portal gives a case which should be a warning: "A few years ago a young lady in easy circumstances enjoyed good health; she was very plump, had a good appetite, and a complexion blooming with roses and lilies. She began to look upon her plumpness with suspicion, for her mother was very fat, and she was afraid of becoming like her. Accordingly she consulted a woman who advised her to drink a glass of vinegar daily. The young lady followed the advice, and her plumpness diminished. She was delighted with the success of the experiment, and continued it for more than a month. She began to have a cough; but it was dry at its commencement, and was considered as a slight cold, which would go off. Meantime from dry it became moist, a slow fever came on, and a difficulty of breathing; her body became lean and wasted away, night sweats, swelling of the feet and of the legs succeeded, and a diarrhœa terminated her life." Therefore, young ladies, be boldly fat! Never pine for graceful slimness and romantic pallor; but if nature means you to be ruddy and round, accept it with a laughing grace, which will captivate more hearts than all the paleness of a circulating library.

Old Silk Made New.

A writer in the American Register, of Paris, says: An interesting study for a lady would be to find out what economical purposes the remains of her faded toilet can be devoted. For many centuries ladies' dresses were cast away as completely useless, but recent chemical and industrial discoveries have furnished the means of employing, in a useful manner, scraps of woolen, linen and silken materials. Linen and cotton rags have long formed the basis of the manufacture of paper. Woolen rags are now unwoven, and the wool, after having been cleansed by chemical processes, is once more employed in the manufacture of stuffs of an inferior quality; and finally, when it is too much worn to be of any use, it serves as a powerful manure. But, until lately, but little use could be found for silk rags or cuttings, the most precious of all. A very small quantity served to make the thin, fine paper known as silk paper, and the rest was thrown away as worthless. A wealthy manufacturer of Manningham resolved to solve this problem, and after many years of fruitless efforts, in which he expended a large amount of capital, he at last arrived at a satisfactory result. He then established an immense manufactory, in which about four thousand workmen are employed daily, and here, by a new process, all the old silks are converted into rich, glossy velvet of a texture as soft and as regular as any velvet woven out of new silk. One of the fashionable dressmakers of Paris has purchased a large stock of these velvets, which are likely to be extensively employed during the coming winter, owing to their superior beauty and cheapness.

William Penn.

[Max Adeler, in Danbury News.]

Some of us, down on the Delaware, are preparing to celebrate in November the anniversary of the arrival of William Penn and the signing of his famous treaty with the Indians. The treaty particularly deserves to be celebrated, for under it William gouged over three million acres of lands out of the savages in exchange for a couple hundred dollars worth of hatchets, plug tobacco and tenpenny nails. That was the beginning of our present Indian policy. We carry on the same noble system yet. I have been burnishing up my antiquarian studies for the anniversary, and among other things I have resurrected a legend of William which may be valuable. Never mind where I dug it up. Here it is.

Soon after landing, Penn is said to have inspired a tender passion in the breast of a beautiful Indian maiden, and for some time it was considered probable that the two might possibly be joined together in matrimony; but this was not to be, and the reason why it was not to be is explained in the following conversation which occurred between the lovers one evening while they were sitting together upon the bank of the river. The maiden said to him:

"Dearest, I long to have you become as one of my people, and I want you now to let me adorn you with ear-rings and to fasten this ring to your nose, so that you may appear as noble as the other braves."

"Excuse me, darlin'," he said, "but I daresn't wear jewelry. The yearly meetin' won't allow it."

"But you will come to our council fire tonight, dear, will you not? and join with the chief and warriors in dancing about our captives, who will be tied to the stake? I know you will come."

"Well, if it makes no difference to you, I believe I won't. I don't dance. It's agin' our discipline."

"Ah, then, I will tell you what you shall do. You shall sit by the great tree and beat the war-drum and make the fierce music of battle. You can surely do that?"

"Upon the whole, I really don't think I can. You see I am down on the fierce music of battle. I am opposed to the music of any kind, and particularly to that which is hammered out of a war-drum. No, I'll have to beg off."

"But at least you will go with me to the lodge of the medicine man, and see him perform his wonderful feats of magic?"

"I'm afraid I'll have to contradict you agi'n, my love. Our folks have testified agi'n guin' to places of amusement. I'd be disciplined, sure as fate, if I was to do it. Can't do it, sweet, anyhow you can fix it."

"Too bad! too bad! But you will not object, I know, to letting me toy with your tresses and fix them into such a crest as our braves wear proudly upon their heads. This you can not refuse me?"

"Now see here, my dear, do be reasonable. You know I can't let you do that. You certainly must know I ain't allowed to take off my hat. Why, it's absurd."

"I do not understand the ways of your people. But I am willing to submit to you, if I know that you love me. You do love me, William, do you not? Swear that you love me. Swear by yon moon—no, the moon is not out—swear by yon stars that you will never cease to love me."

"I'm afraid I'll have to get our book of discipline and read it to you. When you've perused it a couple of times may be you'll understand that I never swear; I affirm."

Then she rose, looked at him a moment with ineffable scorn and fled into the trackless forest; so that match was off and William Penn was left disconsolate. This is as much of the legend as I have scared up thus far. If it seems to interest antiquarians may be I can extricate the rest of it.

A Colored Veteran.

[Columbus (Ohio) Sunday News.]

He said his name was Boun Simm. He was a poor colored soldier with a game leg. He said he came up to participate in the reunion of the Army of the Cumberland. He seemed to be the remnant of a veteran of the colored troops who fought nobly. He wore a fatigue cap and looked fatigued. He had on a blue blouse and a halt in his gait. He had spent all his money and feeling the caloric effect of the meteorological surroundings he claudestinely possessed himself of a bottle of mineral water from a wagon idly standing in front of a saloon. He then wended his way to the Holly Tree coffee and lunch rooms and asked, "what is a bottle of pop wurf?" The proprietor blandly said "five cents." "What's beer wurf?" he again asked. "Five cents," was the answer. "I'll take a good big glass of beer," said the poor colored soldier. He drank it, and after smacking his chops and wiping his mouth with his sleeve he placed the stolen bottle of pop on the counter. The "Wild Wagoner of the Alleghanies" was never more surprised than was Charley Wagener. The poor crippled colored soldier who had probably been wounded while robbing a hen roost before the war started on his halting gait for the door when he was stopped by the proprietor who, feeling much solicitude for the poor colored braves, asked him to return to the bar and take another without money, without price. The poor colored soldier grinned, took another and gently waited himself away saying, "I'se a nole sojer."

Building Up the Weak.

Feeble constitutions cannot be physicked into health and strength. Invigoration, to be permanent and complete, must be effected by establishing a regular and harmonious action of the various bodily organs. Dosing will not accomplish this; but Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will. That admirable tonic and corrective regulates at the same time that it strengthens the stomach, liver and bowels, and while imparting vigor to the entire physique, purifies and enriches the blood. A good appetite, tranquil sleep, sound digestion and a regular habit of body—four grand essentials of health—are promoted by its use. It vitalizes, tranquilizes and equalizes. By a successful chemical combination of tonic, aperient and anti-bilious vegetable ingredients, held in solution and diffused through the system by a wholesome and agreeable stimulant, it is enabled to beneficially affect the various abdominal organs at one and the same time.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, IND., April 29, 1874.

S. GILBERT: A box of your Liver Lozenges have almost cured me of the Dyspepsia of 20 years standing. I have recommended them in many cases, and they have never failed to my knowledge of giving relief, and I have heard several say they were the best remedy they had ever used. A. H. ALLISON,

Local Matters.

Laconics.

Miss De Montford's mesmeric entertainments continue this and to-morrow evenings at the Temple. It is sufficient recommendation to say that thus far the audiences have largely increased at each successive performance.

Mr. Parker Spinney of Boston is to take charge of the hotel at Dover Point, which will be enlarged and reconstructed.

John Stoddard, machinist of U. S. S. Plymouth, was before Judge Page, Thursday, for insulting Mrs. Cyrus L. Brown, and also for being intoxicated, and was fined $20.66 in addition to the punishment administered at the time by Mr. Brown. Good job.

Ex-Assistant Marshal Thomas Entwistle has been appointed a watchman at the Navy Yard, whereby Uncle Sam gains a most excellent officer.

The wonderful power possessed by Miss De Montford was shown on Wednesday evening by putting a man into a state of catalepsy, by which he became rigid. His head was placed on a chair and his feet on another, with no support between. Then a man stood on his body, which did not bend a half inch. For twelve minutes he was insensible, and he had no remembrance of the performance when his senses were restored.

Says the Haverhill Bulletin of Oct. 7th: Maggie Mitchell in her specialty of "Fanchon, the Cricket" called out, considering the prices and times, a large and certainly very respectable audience. To say that the entertainment was a success would but feebly express it, for the contrast between last night's performances and those which are usually given here, is so marked as to leave the latter almost entirely out of the reckoning. Maggie Mitchell has the marvelous faculty of carrying her audience with her as she wills, affecting them almost to tears by her pathos, and the next moment causing them to laugh with moistened eyes at the consummate witchery of her comic scenes.

State News.

Foster's Democrat says: Five of the shoe manufacturers of Dover have made a transfer of their freighting business from the Boston & Maine road to the Portsmouth & Dover and Eastern. These parties are E. C. Kinnear, J. Hurd & Son, John H. Leighton, George B. Wentworth, Strong & Burt and Geo. W. Tash. We are not informed that they get freight any less on the Eastern, or can secure any better advantages in any way than they have enjoyed on the Boston & Maine, but they have chosen to give the Eastern the encouragement which their business affords and turn their trade into a channel where the City is directly interested.

Burglars entered four dwelling houses in Exeter, on the night of the 7th, stealing several hundred dollars' worth of property.

At the Circuit Court in Concord, Thursday. James Frothingham of Concord was sentenced to the State Prison for three years for larceny. Thomas Wood of Concord, for breaking and entering was given five years in the Reform School or State Prison. William Stanley of Boston, for larceny from the person, received four years in State Prison or Reform School.

Hon. Wm. E. Chandler is reported engaged to Miss Lucy Hale, youngest daughter of the late Hon. John P. Hale.

The October term of the United States Circuit Court is in session at Exeter. The number of cases upon the civil list is 44, and there are about thirty United States cases continued from the May term. Judges Geo. F. Shepley and Daniel Clarke. In equity, case Eastman vs. Morrison,—bill dismissed with costs. On motion of U. S. Attorney J. G. Hall and Hon. Wm. H. Y. Hackett, Edgar Aldrich was admitted to practice in the court.

How She Dipped Him.

The Cap May Wave relates the following incident: "Among the excursionists that came from Wilmington was a very unevenly weighted man and wife. She 300 avoirdupois; he, scarce 100 pounds would poise. Well, they must bathe of course; what were the trips to Cape May without an ocean dip? A bath-house was secured. By tight squeezing our fat lady got into a bathing robe that was ready to burst at every step. Little husband girded about his body a woolen garment that fit like a shirt on a killdeer. Down they go, bold as a couple of whales, to the water; but just at the ocean's edge Puny suddenly halted, looked with awe on the furious billows, and then into the face of his determined 300. On her countenance were the words "Come on!" On his trembling lips shivered the sounds, "Oh, no!" The small specimen of diminutive husbandry feared to risk his diminutive portion of flesh and bones in the dashing foam, lest some unlucky billow might swallow him down like a snipe. "You shall go in," said the fat woman. "I won't," said skinney, at the same time making frantic efforts to tear away; down he goes in the sand, scratching worse than a Kilkenny cat. Down drops the 300 upon terrified bones, slick as a hawk upon a spring chicken. The sand flew, legs kicked, man screamed, yet in spite of all, the mammoth wife gathered her 100 pounds of furious sweetness in her arms, walked complacently into the biggest breakers and kersouse she landed him headforemost into the sea, and as he popped up to the surface, half strangled, she pressed him to her bosom, saying, "Now, honey, that's what you came all the way from Wilmington to enjoy."

Yosemite Creek Glacier.

[John Muir, in Overland.]

The broad many-fountained glacier to which the basin of Yosemite Creek belonged, was about fourteen miles in length by four in width, and in many places was not less than a thousand feet in depth. Its principal tributaries issued from lofty amphitheaters laid well back among the northern spurs of the Hoffman range. These at first pursued a westerly course; then, uniting with each other and absorbing a series of small affluents from the Tuolumne divide the trunk thus formed swept round to the south in a magnificent curve, and poured its ice into Yosemite in cascades two miles wide. This broad glacier formed a kind of wrinkled ice-cloud. As it grew older, it became more regular and river-like; encircling peaks overshadowed its upper fountains, rocky islets rose at intervals among its shallowing currents, and its bright sculptured banks, nowhere overflowed, extended in massive simplicity all the way to its mouth. As the ice-winter drew near a close, the main trunk, becoming torpid, at length wholly disappeared in the sun, and a waiting multitude of plants and animals entered the new valley to inhabit the mansions prepared for them. In the meantime the chief tributaries, creeping slowly back into the shelter of their fountain shadows, continued to live and work independently, spreading moraine soil for gardens, scooping basins for lakelets, and leisurely completing the sculpture of their fountains. These also have at last vanished, and the whole basin is now full of light. Forests flourish luxuriantly over all its broad moraines, lakes and meadows nestle among its domes, and a thousand flowery gardens are outspread along its streams. When we walk the pathways of Yosemite glaciers and contemplate their separate works,—the mountains they have shaped, the canons they have furrowed, the rocks they have worn and overwhelmed us at first with its uncompared maguitude, we ask, is this all? wondering that so mighty a concentration of energy did not find yet grander expression.

Daniel in the Hands of a "Friend."

Nantucket people enjoy a reputation for smartness, and even Daniel Webster found his match there. The story, as told by Mr. Webster himself, is as follows: The court held a term on the island periodically. There was not much litigation; but the suits were heavy, relating to ships, whale fishing and oil. The judges and lawyers usually went over from the continent and spent a week or ten days and finished the business of the session. One day one of the Friends of the island called at my office in Boston, and said, "Friend Daniel, what will thee ask to come down to Nantucket next week and plead a case for me before the judges?"

"I will go for a thousand dollars."

"That is too much, Friend Daniel."

"But I will have to go down Saturday, and perhaps remain the whole week following. I would as soon argue the whole docket."

"Well, Friend Daniel, if thee will argue such cases as I will present to thee before my case is called, I will give thee a thousand dollars," and so the bargain was struck. My client went to Nantucket, and found his case at the foot of the docket. He went from man to man, and saw all who had any case on the docket, and said, "What will thee give me if I'll get the great Daniel Webster to plead thy cause?" He took retainers from a dozen men. Some gave him a hundred dollars and some five hundred dollars. He had grace enough to give me the thousand dollars as agreed, and paid my expenses into the bargain. I argued the docket right through, for plaintiff or defendant, until I reached my client's case. He struck the balance, and admitted as the steamer left the wharf that he had got his case argued, and pocketed fifteen hundred dollars besides.

—Excitement over a wild animal, supposed to be a lioness escaped from some menagerie, still continues in Benton county, Ind. At last accounts it had taken refuge in Parish Grove, which covers an area of six hundred acres, and is thick with underbrush and tree tops, since a saw-mill was established there. The weeds on the edge of the grove are higher than a man's head, and make a good hiding place. One man recently, on the hunt of the animal, had a fair chance to shoot, but his nerve failed him, and he turned and ran. The excitement is high in the neighborhood of Parish, and all sorts of extravagant stories are afloat. One, however, which is credited by those living near, is that a herder saw the beast lately creeping toward his little son, who had been helping to herd and had got off his horse and laid down on the grass. He hastened forward in time to save the boy from destruction, and was close enough to have shot the animal had he been provided with a gun.

—A shoal of porpoises got imprisoned within the dike at Provincetown, and an exciting scene of carnage followed. The Advocate says: "We hear of a man getting into the bloody waters, seizing a small porpoise, and lifting him alive into his boat. The men became so excited that they waded waist deep in the water, and two or three were observed seated astride the nimble beauties enjoying a wet and novel ride. The massacre was general, and but few fish escaped death."

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten.—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, [illegible] bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

About Meerschaums.

[N. Y. Times.]

After having said so much about meerschaum pipes, it may not be out of place to say something about where the material comes from, and how it is manufactured. Meerschaum is a kind of clay, composed of hydrate of magnesia and silex, or, more properly, hydrous silicate of magnesia. It is found in various parts of Europe, but particularly in Anatolia, in Asia Minor. When first taken from the earth it is soft, but hardens by exposure to the air.

It is imported into this country in lumps of various sizes. The best is called spiegel, or mirror meerschaum, which is of a bluish tinge, and its surface is covered with star shaped flecks. There are sixteen different qualities of meerschaum, the first six of which, only, are imported into this country. The first, second, and third qualities are used by the manufacturers in making pipes, and the fourth, fifth, and sixth in repairs or additions to imported pipes of the corresponding class.

The process of manufacture is very simple. The block of meerschaum is first soaked in water until it arrives at a proper degree of softness; it is then taken by the workman, who scrapes it with a knife, and the bowl, if intended to be round, is bored and turned on a lathe. The hole in the stem is then made, and the pipe is then turned over to a girl, who smoothes it, first with sand paper and afterward with a kind of grass brought from Massachusetts, which is called "shave grass," possibly on account of its cutting properties. The pipe is then boiled in a preparation of wax, and polished with a soft cloth.

Carved pipes are made somewhat differently. The carving is first done roughly, only shaped, as it were, and the meerschaum is then boiled, and the carving is afterward completed. It is then boiled again, or left white, at the option of the maker. The parings of the meerschaum, called "chips," are not used in this country at all, but shipped to Germany, where they are made into imitation meerschaum. They are also used to remove grease spots from silks, being ground into powder, which, mixed with water to the consistency of cream, is used for the purpose in the same manner as fuller's earth.

—A young lawyer in a country town asked some of his friends to a game of cards in his room, to be followed by a little supper. Frogs were a new species of food in that latitude, and a dish of them cooked in the choicest way was the feature of the occasion. Supper time approached, and during a temporary lull in the conversation, the door suddenly opened, and a Milesian waiter, in a loud voice, announced supper thus: "Mr. E., them tuds is done, and supper is ready!"

—"Party politics are ignored in Nevada," wrote the editor of the Star Spangled Banner. His intelligent compositor set it up. "Party politicians are ignorant in Nevada." The editor was mad, but the subscribers want to promote the compositor to the post of editor-in-chief for his knowledge of the situation.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS;

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury these or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

A Story os the French Zouaves.

We recommend the following authentic story to the French zouaves, who have won such a conspicuous place in military history. The Arabs of the Beni-Snassen tribe are great amateurs of gunpowder, and never neglect an opportunity of prowling about the French camp, and offering the soldiers large sums of money for the coveted articles. They pretend to be Arabs of the neighborhood, friendly to the French, and say they want powder for hunting.

One day it was discovered that the zouaves had been selling their powder. To paint the fury of the officer in command of the Arab bureau is an impossible thing, but he resolved to discover the culprits and punish them severely. An Arab in the service of the bureau went in a mysterious way in quest of powder. An old zouave brought him four cartridges, and asked him twenty francs for them. The bargain was struck, but the spy instantly disclosed his official character, and brought the cartridge vender before the commander.

"Is it you, then," cried the officer, "coward and knave, who would have your comrades assassinated by the Beni-Snassens?"

"Yes, commandant, I did it."

"You have committed a base action."

"I admit it, commandant, but with this same powder that I sold I am going to blow my brains out. That will save the trouble of a court martial, and the zouaves will not be dishonored by a public sentence."

With these words the zouave took a cartridge, loaded a pistol with it, dropped a round ball in the barrel, and with superb coolness put the muzzle to his head and pulled the trigger. The weapon missed fire, and the zouave burst into a laugh.

"The judge has acquitted me," said he.

"How so?" said the commandant.

"Why, you see, commandant, that the powder I sell to the Beni-Snassens is only ground charcoal; the balls are made of clay, the whole done up in genuine cartridges. You have just seen a proof of it."

It was true. The zouave had cheated his customer, and he added, with an air of triumph:

"The first time the Beni-Snassens come into action all their pieces will miss fire, and you will gain the battle."

"Then you have sold a good deal of powder?"

"Rather"—and the zouave exhibited a formidable pipe, set with solid gold. Though the Arabs may be pretty sharp fellows, they are no match in cunning for the zouaves.

The dumplins are about the natural size ov yure phist, made out ov dough, and filled with apples. They are served up hot, with sum sweet-tasting liniment on them, and are az easy to struggle with az a sugar plum. They aint so good kold az they ought to be. Kold dumplin, and a raw potatoe, eat similar. I never et apple dumplin yet, without thanking the Lord for that one, and the landlady for another one. Four apple dumplins, at one sitting, iz just about mi size. I wish i knu who invented theze kind-hearted balls, i would like to weep over his memory. Punkin pi, and apple dumplin, hav dun az much to civilize man az enny two missionarys that hav ever lived. Good vittles iz next to good morals any how. Yu may talk about virtue as much az yu pleze, you kant never inokulate a man with virtue first rate on an empty stummuk. Giv a man four apple dumplins, with sum good kind ov ointment on them, and after he haz et them, and they hav settled down to hard pan, yu kan krawl up to him on either side with a dose of morality, or even some new kind of sope for taking spots out ov clothes.

—A Detroiter was riding on the Potomac road; he came across an old lady seated in a buggy which had been halted within a few yards of the Grand Trunk Railroad track. She seemed to be uneasy about something, and as he drove up she asked, "Say mister, hain't that engine going to come along pretty soon?" He asked her to explain, and she pointed to the sign, "Look out for the engine!" and added, "I have waited mor'n two hours for the ole engine to go by, but I'm getting tired, and if it don't come pretty soon I'll drive right over the track, and go hum."

An encouraging sign of republican success in this commonwealth is the fact that but one office-seeker in the whole State is canvassing his district for a nomination, by correspondence and personal solicitation; and a more encouraging sign is that thus far he makes small progress.

From editorial remarks, an unprejudiced reader would naturally conclude that the Boston Advertiser thinks it is very wicked to publish the accounts of the White League atrocities at the South in the Indiana republican papers just now, because there is an election pending in that State, and it might influence the result, which according to the Advertiser would be a very selfish proceeding! Some persons exercise their perpendicularity to such an extent that they seem inclined to bend backwards. The Advertiser should not forget that if it has any regard for principle in sometimes advocating republican success, that regard should be well founded. The outrages at the South would continue to a greater extent with democratic success, and the most effective means to prevent those outrages should be adopted. It is the duty of the republican press to enlighten its readers throughout the land, to tell the truth and place matters understandingly before the voters that they may vote intelligently. A little common sense is of more service to an honest community than a host of "glittering generalities."

Edward F. Thorn of Augusta was killed by a tree falling upon him.

Dr. J. C. Ayer does not find the road to a Congressional nomination in the seventh Massachusetts district a very easy thoroughfare, and there are indications of his defeat.

The New York Times concludes a savage attack on Gen. Butler by admitting that if his success is in a great part due to bullying and wheedling, "the fact remains that he does succeed."

Several students of the medical college in Buffalo have been arrested for robbing a grave of the corpse of a lady who recently died in that city.

The loss occasioned by the late typhoon in Hong Kong is estimated at £1,000,000. The shore, for miles around, is strewn with wrecks of vessels destroyed by the typhoon.

The New Haven Palladium styles the nomination of Talbot for Governor of Massachusetts a surrender to Butler, and speaks of his opponents as "the fine gentlemen of culture who defy the laws of the Commonwealth at every club dinner in Boston, and make eloquent speeches about his lack of principle, while making it patent to the world that they have none of their own."

William Marriner, a brakeman on the Maine Central Railroad, was run over at Portland, Thursday, and had both legs cut off. He died of his injuries.

Henry Kitchen, a boy ten years old, fell into a vat at the Globe works in Fall River, while carrying dinner to his father, and was killed.

The "workingmen" of New York city have disgraced themselves by nominating Charles A. Dana of the New York Sun for Mayor. It is a matter of general congratulation that Dana could not be elected, even in New York.

A declaration of war is reported 'twixt China and Japan.

The Pall Mall Gazette supposes itself to have been sufficiently definite in giving the location of an event when it says that it occurred "in Phillips county, United States."

The receipts and expenditures of the Post-Office department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1874, were $26,471,071 82, and the expenditures were $32,126,414 58, or apparently $5,655,342 66 in excess of receipts. Congress, however, appropriated $5,397,602 for deficiences, and $625,000 for steamship service. This, added to the deficiencies provided for, leaves an unexpended balance of $466,266 in the department for the fiscal year lately closed.

A private letter from Warrington, near the Pensacola, Fla., Navy Yard, dated October 1, says: "The fever has not abated yet. Three Sisters of Charity died last night. There are six officers down with the fever. I wish the first of November were here, and we were spared. This suspense is perfectly terrible. No one seems to escape the fever. People who have had it before, and everybody. It is frightfully lonesome; almost everybody is dead."

The Yale navy has found it necessary to whitewash its captain Cook by the passage of a resolution iterating its respect and confidence in him, which is simply an endorsement of his disgraceful conduct at the Saratoga regatta.

Only ten dollars steerage fare to Europe now.

Missouri and Kentucky will each elect a John B. Clark to the next Congress, both democrats. New Hampshire could do the same thing and not hurt our feelings.

John Hyman, colored, Congressman elect from North Carolina, was sold seven times while a slave.

The anti-Butler element received its quietus at the Salem caucus for Congressional delegates, Thursday evening. Gen. Cogswell's friends electing but six of the seventeen, the Butler men choosing the remaining eleven. The result is very significant, as Salem was considered sure for Cogswell, who resides there. The Phillips men voted for Butler delegates.

Congressional majorities in Maine, Burleigh, 1400; Frye, 2320; Blaine, 2411; Hersey, 2964; Hale, 2181.

B. Gratz Brown is out squarely on the democratic platform in Missouri, thus opposing Schurz. It will be interesting to observe how these old liberal comrades will come out in their tussle for the Senatorship.

Missouri democrats now boast that they have never been out of the party, because their participation in the rebellion was a "four years' fight for the democracy." Their argument is correct.

State News.

On Thursday last, a curious accident occurred to some oxen belonging to William Jones of Milford. A heavy stone weighing over a ton had been loaded on to the team at the ledge, and instead of a wedge being placed beneath the stone to aid in unloading, as was usual, a roller was substituted. The team was started and upon going down a pitch in the road, the stone slid forward upon the roller and resting upon the beam drove the oxen forward in such a manner that they struck face downward driving their horns into the ground. In their efforts to get out they fell upon their sides twisting their necks so that the bones were distinctly heard to crack though strange to say, their necks were not broken. It was some time before they could be relieved from their unpleasant position and then the ox-bows were cut off from the yoke with an axe. The oxen have been unfit for use since their fall, but it is hoped they will recover.

Col. Daniel Hall was thrown from his carriage by collision with an ox-cart at Dover, recently, and had a narrow escape from death. His carriage was wrecked.

Charles A. Bridge, who has charge of the mechanical department of the Colebrook Sentinel, went hunting partridges around Dixville Notch, on the 26th ult., and while sitting upon a log after eating dinner, holding a small pistol in his hand, it was accidentally discharged, the ball passing entirely through the calf of his leg. He bandaged the wound as well as the circumstances allowed, and insisting on his friends continuing their hunt, spent the rest of the day in the wagon, returning home at night. Monday morning he was at his case as usual.

E. C. Bailey, Esq., has bought out the interest of his brother, G. G. Bailey, in the New Hampshire Patriot, and will continue its publication as sole proprietor.

The Dartmouth College Glee Club has arranged for a series of concerts during Thanksgiving week in Concord, Manchester, Lawrence, Nashua, Lowell and Haverhill. The orchestra will accompany the club.

The boarding-house of Thomas Bean, in Bethlehem, was burned Thursday night. Part of the furniture was saved. Loss $8000; insured for $4000.

On Thursday evening, Michael Whilpley aged forty-five years, was found in a room of the Merrimac House, "Squog," in Manchester, dead. He had been drinking hard all day, and was dead drunk at five o'clock, the time he was put into the room. He leaves a wife and five children.

An Important Decision.

The New York Evening Post prints the following communication from a seeker after the truth, who signs himself "A.:"

In the body of a marriage notice, should the name of the man or the woman have precedence? I hold that where the conjunction "and" is used the man's name should be first; that is, John Smith and Mary Jones. But if the proposition, "to" be employed, the man's name comes last; that is Mary Jones to John Smith. I base this letter form on the meaning of the word "marriage." A man marries a woman but a woman is married to a man. Furthermore, our marriage service says, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?"

The Post settles the momentous question as follows:

"To marry" is a verb, whose loose and irregular use is proverbial. In its transitive sense it is ordinarily applied to the act of the clergyman or magistrate who solemnizes the union of a man and woman in wedlock, or the parent or guardian who brings about or auctions it. If the word "married," which usually stands at the head of the list of weddings in a newspaper be taken in this transitive sense, the weight of authority seems to favor the precedence of the woman's name in the body of the notice. In connection with the whole subject embraced in "A's" letter, we quote the following paragraph from Mr. Richard Grant White's "Words and their Uses:" "I have no hesitation in saying that all of these forms (John Smith to, and, and with Mary Jones) are incorrect. * * * The woman is married to the man. It is her name that is lost in his, not his in her; she becomes a member of his family, not he of hers; it is a life that is merged, or supposed to be merged, in his, not his in hers; she follows his fortunes, and takes his station, not he hers. * * * So long, at least, as man is the larger, the stronger, the more individually important, so long as woman generally lives in her husband's house and bears his name—still more should she not bear his name—it is the woman who is married to the man, Nubo viro trador: to be married to a man. For it is in the woman's part only. [Lilly's Grammar.] In speaking of the ceremony it is proper to say that he married her (duxit in matrimonio), and not that she married him, but that she was married to him; and the proper form of the announcement is, Married, Mary Jones to John Smith. The etymology of the word agrees entirely with the conditions of the act which it expresses. To marry is to give or to be given, to a husband, mari." The spirit of the English common law, and the conventional usages of society, both bear out Mr. White's conclusions on this matter.

"Help" in Virginia.

Don Piatt, writing about the Virginia mountaineers, says: They have the same sense of social equality that afflicts the native-born laboring class of the west; and although poverty lives in the mountains, mrking it difficult to exist with comfort, it is impossible to get house servants from among the natives for love or money. A charming little lady here, Mrs. Morgan, sister-in-law to the late famous John Morgan, gave us a very amusing account of her trials in this direction. Her first experience was with a tall, angular, mountain maid. One morning, she announced a visitor to Mrs. Morgan.

"Who is he, Malvina?"

"Lord only knows, I don't; he's a total stranger to me."

"Is he a gentleman?"

"Well, he ain't a niggah."

"Did he not give you his name?"

"Not much. But I didn't ask him."

"But he gave his card?"

"You mean that bit av papah with the printin' on it?"

"Of course; what did you do with it?"

"Why, I just put it where I seed the others, on the pahlow table."

"How vexatious! And what did you say to him?"

"I told him to hitch on to the door-knob till I seed you."

—A hasty man, with his arms full of his wife's baggage, thought he was left by the train and running rapidly across a platform, fell over a truck. He straddled one of the handles and rode it for a second, lunged forward and got his legs tangled up in the cross pieces, when the malicious thing reared up and slid forward just enough to throw the man off his balance and get him down. He blacked his eye and broke his spectacles against the handle, and ran over his foot with the wheels; and even after he got away from it and was seated in the car, he says the truck ran after him and kicked him twice in the ribs before the brakeman could take it away from him.

—A little girl about nine years old, says the Detroit Free Press, was crossing the Campus Martius recently, having her father's dinner-pail on her arm, when a man gave a pull at the long braid of her hair hanging down her back.

"Did you do that, sir?" she exclaimed, turning around.

He admitted that he did, and she continued in a loud tone:

"May be you don't know who I am, sir. I'm engaged to Jack Thompson, sir, and we're to be married in just nine years, sir."

—A distinguished man whose nose and chin were both very long, and who had lost his teeth, whereby the nose and chin were brought very near together, was told: "I am afraid your nose and chin will fight ere long; they approach one another very menacingly." "I am afraid of it myself," replied the gentleman, "for a great many words have passed between them already."

—The Brooklyn health board in its report upon the subject of unhealthy candy say that it would be an impossibility for them to examine all the candies sold in the city, but recommend people to avoid eating any kind, stating that at its best candy blunts the appetite for nutritious food and impairs digestion.

—"Fresh Currents," of the Cincinnati Times, says of a brother journalist: "One of Steel's ears fell down the other day and nearly broke his neck." And the air still agitates the manly breast of "Fresh Currents" without let or hindrance on the part of Steel!

—A New York paper thus explains how it was that the flames got to the roof in the burning of a building: "Fire always is aspirant, the sole exception being where incandescent masses fall down, and so act as media of ignition."

—Gentlemen have reached the season of regret, caused by the fact that their wives have disposed of their overcoats (new last spring) to the old clo' man for a match-safe, and a Parian bust, worth in total, $1.62.

—"Joshua," said the landlady to her hopeful, at breakfast, "Joshua, what is an heir apparent?" "There's one on the butter, mother," replied the unfilial youngster. And the old lady lit upon him with the coffee pot.

—A Detroit paper chronicles the "most remarkable incident that has happened in Michigan since the first settlement of the State." A boy was playing with a gun, which went off without hurting anybody.

—There was a young woman named Hannah, who behaved in a frivolous manner; while her pa stood in prayer, she put tacks in his chair, which he sat on, and cussed his Hannah.

—A man having a bill against a distant merchant, sent a letter of inquiry to a banker in that locality. The reply was, "He is dead; but he pays now as well as he ever did."

—A New York paper touchingly speaks of sausages as "charming mankind by the sense of mystery which envelopes them."

—The most unpopular man in the country these days is the one who saws his wood too long for the neighbor's stove.

—When a young lady gives herself away, she naturally loses her self-possession.

—Live as long as you may, the first twenty years are the longest half of your life.

TO THE HON. JUDGE OF PROBATE FOR THE COUNTY OF ROCKINGHAM, IN THE STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

RESPECTFULLY SHOWS Charlotte M. Seavey of Portsmouth in said County of Rockingham, State of New Hampshire, that she is Guardian of ELLA M. SEAVEY by the appointment of the Judge of Probate for said County of Rockingham; that her said Ward is seized of one common and undivided third part of the homestead farm of EDWARD SEAVEY, late of Rye in said County, deceased, which farm is situated in said Rye, and that it is necessary for the support of her said Ward and will be conducive to her interest to have the premises sold; wherefore she prays that she may be licensed and authorized to sell the same at public auction, according to the statute in such cases made and provided.

CHARLOTTE M. SEAVEY, Guardian.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, Rockingham, ss.

Probate Office at Exeter in said County, Oct. 2, A. D. 1874.

UPON the foregoing Petition, It is Ordered, that a hearing be had thereon at a Court of Probate to be holden at Portsmouth in said County, on the second Tuesday of November next; and that the Petitioner notify all persons concerned to appear at said Court, and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted, by causing said petition and this order to be published three weeks successively in the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE, a newspaper published at Portsmouth in said County, the last publication whereof to be at least one week prior to said Court.

By order of the Judge.

THOMAS LEAVITT, Register of Probate.

FRIDAY EVENING.

Lecture—Col. F. W. Parker, Manchester—History of the Prussian School System.

Free return tickets will be furnished those attending the meeting and paying full fare one way, over the Boston, Concord & Montreal, and White Mountains Railroad.

Some of our teachers are considering the subject of attending the above meeting, and we trust that the city will be well represented, as such gatherings are profitable in their results, and much useful information relative to the all important matter of schools is obtained, that cannot be gleaned elsewhere.

Old Documents.

City Solicitor George E. Hodgdon has in his possession a score or more of ancient deeds, indentures, writs, etc., which were placed in his has hands for safe keeping by Mr. Joseph White, formerly owner of the Akerman property on Spinney's road, who died several years ago. Among the papers is a deed of sale of a pew in the "North Meeting-House," from Samuel Brewster to Abigail White, in consideration of the sum of "eight pounds ten shillings old Tenor," and bearing date Sept. 1, 1748. A deed of Richard Cutt to "our kinswoman Ann Clark wife to Samuel Clark" is dated Feb. 10, 1667. A deed dated Jan. 28, 1771, conveys among other things for "the Affection Love and Good Will which I Bare to My Only Son Joseph White," "my Negro Slaves." This document is signed by Abigail White. The following is a literal copy of another deed of sale of a slave:

Know all men by these Presents that I Richard Waldron of Portsm. In New Hampshire Esq., In Consideration of one hundred pounds to me in hand paid, or sufficient security given me for the same, by Samuel White of the same Town and Province joyner have given granted bargain'd & sold and do hereby Give grant bargain, and Sell unto the said Samuel White and to his heirs Exec'rs adm'rs and assigns—forever a negro Girl named Hannah about fourteen years of age. To have and to hold the said Negro Girl To the said Samuel White, and to his heirs Exec'rs Adm'rs & assigns forever free and Clear from any Claim, or demand from me or any other person whatsoever, As Witness my hand and seal the nineteenth day of April 1731.

RICHARD WALDRON.

The handwriting of these papers is remarkably plain and puts to blush the average penman of the present day. The ink shows no sign of fading away.

The U. S. S. Plymouth

Let Us In.

Messrs. Lyceum Managers:—Will you please notify those who wish to attend the course of lectures the present winter and who would be happy to attend if they could do so without so much exposure to health, whether it is safe to do so. Many have been compelled to stay away who would gladly avail themselves if they could be admitted inside of the Hall, the same as in other cities without feeling they must run the risk of their lives, by standing on the ground in winter (snow or rain, no matter how bad it may) no matter how far they may have come, or what the distance may be, which is off-set by a terrible confusion of pushing and jostling by an anxious crowd who care not who may be hurt or lamed in this matter. Why not have your Hall opened at 6 1-2 o'clock for those who wish to attend, or even at quarter to 7, letting ticket holders in when convenient for them to come—as many stay away on this account. Please try it this winter, and see what may be the result. COM. FOR THE MANY.

City Council.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen Thursday evening, the application of Joseph Parry for a brick sidewalk on Fleet Street was laid on the table.

Alonzo F. Craig was appointed special police without pay.

The bill entitled "An ordinance relating to street lights" was passed; also bills relating to the Fire Department, and City Marshal and police.

Committee on finance was directed to examine and report the condition of the City Treasury.

The committee on accounts reported that they had suspended action in payment of the salary of the late Street Commissioner, until the question in regard to the excess of expenditures in his department has been settled.

The committee on Fire Department to whom was referred the matter of building a reservoir at the West End recommended that a reservoir be built on land owned by Mr. Patchen, on Madison St., provided it could be procurred. The report was accepted and referred back to the same committee to furnish plans, specifications, etc., Mayor added.

Tramps.

At a special town meeting recently held in West Brookfield, Mass., it was voted "That the overseers of the poor be instructed to give aid and assistance to tramps when necessary, and then take them before a trial justice and have their cases investigated in accordance with the statutes." That plan is better than to refuse all aid to "tramps," for sometimes—not very often certainly, but still once in a while—a deserving man is found in that unsavory list; and while the certainty that their cases would be enquired into by a magistrate would have no terrors for such persons, it would make the "professionals" who are too lazy to do anything but beg or steal very careful to avoid any town or city where such a rule was in force. Why will not our City Government give similar instructions to our police and overseers of the poor? Then there would be no danger that unfortunate working men would suffer, or that petty thieves and loafers from other places would favor this city with much of their company.

Laconics.

Maggie Mitchell played before the largest audience that ever gathered in a hall at Concord, on the 7th. Buy your tickets early for next Thursday evening, if you desire good seats.

Mate Lewis F. Stuart is ordered to the receiving ship Sabine.

Mr. Edwardo de Anguera, the well known piano tuner and repairer, will soon be in town, to fill all orders left for him at Preston's drug store.

This (Saturday) evening the last of Annie DeMontford's mesmeric entertainments will be given at the Temple. The fun (like the attendance) has increased with each exhibition during the week, and as this is the last chance to share in the amusement, a larger audience than on any previous occasion may be expected.

Truly wonderful is the power by which Miss Annie De Montford controls those who submit to her influence at the nightly entertainments at the Temple. Her control over these subjects is absolute and affords study as well as amusement for the curious. Persons in the audience find themselves unable to open their eyes without her consent if they accede to certain conditions previously announced. Those on the stage are made to think themselves orators, auctioneers, acrobats, soldiers, sailors, ladies or anything Miss De Montford chooses, and act their parts unconsciously although to perfection. She has a specialty in which no rival disputes supremacy. This evening will be the last opportunity to see the fun.

H. F. Wendell sells a cider mill and press by auction to-day at 11 o'clock.

The Journal is lively for it, this week—rakes Albert Hatch, slaps the CHRONICLE in an item not original, and accuses an Ex-Alderman of being drunk in his official seat. Doing well, friend. Glad you are waking up to the duties of your position, which your subscribers demand. Give 'em some more!

Read Henderson's advertisement for bargains.

The Eastern Railroad has settled with Mr. Jeff. C. Rowe by paying him handsomely for the loss of his arm, and other injuries.

Ex-Assistant Marshal Entwistle announces to his friends that "specie payment is resumed."

The Marion is still in the dry dock at the navy yard; when she comes out, which will be soon, the new sloop-of-war Enterprise is to be received. All the seamen on board the Ticonderoga are in a good state of health, and the ship will soon go out of commission.

The Portland Press is enthusiastic over Barnabee's entertainment there.

Mr. A. B. Barrett of Boston has been appointed master mechanic of the Portland, Saco & Portsmouth Railroad, in place of Mr. James Donnell, resigned. Mr. Donnell has held the position for twenty years.

The sale of tickets to the S. P. C. A. Lyceum will commence at Preston's Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Business Notices.

Building Up the Weak.

Feeble constitutions cannot be physicked into health and strength. Invigoration, to be permanent and complete, must be effected by establishing a regular and harmonious action of the various bodily organs. Dosing will not accomplish this; but Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will. That admirable tonic and corrective regulates at the same time that it strengthens the stomach, liver and bowels, and while imparting vigor to the entire physique, purifies and enriches the blood. A good appetite, tranquil sleep, sound digestion and a regular habit of body—four grand essentials of health—are promoted by its use. It vitalizes, tranquilizes and equalizes. By a successful chemical combination of tonic, aperient and antibilious vegetable ingredients, held in solution and diffused through the system by a wholesome and agreeable stimulant, it is enabled to beneficially affect the various abdominal organs at one and the same time.

For Moth Patches, Freckles and Tan

Ask your Druggist for Perry's Moth and Freckle Lotion, which is harmless and in every case infallible. Or for his Improved COMPLEXIONE and PIMPLE REMEDY, the great SKIN MEDICINE for Pimples, Black Heads or Flesh Worms. Or consult B. C. PERRY, the noted Skin Doctor, 49 Bond St., New York. a 10 D 6m

The Ancient Egyptians learned the art of preserving their bodies for many generations, but all the world have not been able to discover an infallible preventative that will stop the hair from falling off. Bearine is without doubt the safest dressing, and is also the most delightful preparation to use, ever made. 8

Sozodont.

All Dentifrices had their drawbacks, until the salubrious bark of the soap tree was brought from the Chilian valleys to perfect the fragrant Sozodont, the most wholesome, reliable and delightful article for the teeth that a brush was ever dipped into.

Piles can be cured only by ANAKESIS, the greatest discovery of the age and the sole, infallible remedy for the worst cases of Piles. Thousands of sufferers after trying in vain all manner of lotions, ointments and internal remedies, have been instantly relieved and permanently cured by Anakesis. It is the happy discovery of Dr. SILSBEE, a regular scientific physician, and doctors of all schools endorse and recommend it. Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere, and sent free by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walker street, New York.

How the Money Goes!

After November 30th, it will be easy to see how the money goes, for the drawing will take place of the Public Library of Kentucky, and at that Grand Gift Concert $2,500,000 in cash will be given away to ticket holders. The fortunate holder of the ticket drawing the first prize will walk off with $250,000; of the second prize, $100,000; of the third prize, $75,000; of the fourth prize, $50,000; of the fifth prize, $25,000, &c., &c., until 20,000 grand cash prizes shall all have been distributed. Truly, this distribution will tell how the money goes! o8

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oxon Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

AT PRIVATE SALE.

The convenient and well located HOUSE and the lot of 4000 feet at the corner of Lincoln Avenue and Broad Street, is offered for sale on easy terms. The house has a fine prospect, is located in a portion of the city where gentlemen are rapidly selecting sites for dwellings, and where the best houses are being erected. The house has well arranged rooms, a very cheerful outlook on either side, is supplied with excellent well water introduced into the house, and has garden plot and well built henery attached. The site is peculiarly pleasant, and the opportunity of purchasing a house built for a residence for the owner, and sold only because his business requires his presence in another city, is one that well deserves the attention of any one who desires a home for immediate occupancy. The premises may be examined on application to Portsmouth Chronicle.

A Lone Hand.

Daniel Drew was seated in his office one day after his disastrous tilt with the Northwest, by which the boys of Wall street tilted the old fellow out of two millions. There was a curious expression on his face, something between crying and laughing; and he appeared to be contemplating the vanity of all things here below, or how quickly millions take to themselves wings and flip.

While seated thus a stranger entered, and accosted his confidential clerk:

"You paid me for some stock yesterday; do you remember the transaction?"

"Oh, yes; perfectly," replied the clerk.

"Well, then, you made a slight mistake, sir."

"Guess not; I am not in the habit of doing so," said he, somewhat piqued to think that such a charge should be brought against him in Mr. Drew's presence.

"But I am sure you did; just glance over your books, and if I'm mistaken, why—I'll treat."

Reluctantly the clerk complied, and found that he had made an error in figuring and paid the stranger one hundred dollars too much.

Drew got up and approached the desk.

"I knew it," said the stranger, throwing down a hundred dollar greenback. "I make it a point to be honest," he added, buttoning up his coat.

"Honest, eh?" whined Daniel, turning to him; "honest! Do you live in New York?"

"I do, sir."

"You do, eh? And you are being honest? Well, you are playing a lone hand, young man; a lone hand. If you have much to do in Wall street, you will get awful lonesome—that's all I've got to say."

The Apple Dumplin.

[Josh Billings.]

From the time that frisky member of her race leaped over the moon till to-day she has been the friend of the newspaper. It was the cow with crumpled horn that tossed the dog that worried the cat that killed the rat that ate the malt that lay in the house that Jack built. And the philosopher of this simple yet touching occurrence has proved an inexhaustible source of illustration, sentiment and sarcasm. It was Mrs. Leary's old cow that kicked over the lamp that fired the barn that burned the town that Chicago built. It was a cow that brought $40,000 at Utica, and afterward died like any other horned animal. But we have more specific reasons for paying this tribute to the bovine When the Second National bank of this city was the victim of industrious burglars, it was a milkman who discovered the hiding place of the ingenious gentry. When the other day at early morn two wagon loads of burglars came riding back to this city, after their rollicking romp at Wellsboro, it was a milkman who discovered them, and knew that mischief was afloat. And, last but not least, it was a man milking near Waverly, who discovered Cosgrove go by with his pack load of greenbacks, and who followed him to his capture. It is true, milkmen are not cows, but without cows there would be no milkmen. Hence our obligations to the female kine. The amount of news which she furnishes one way or another to the press is estimated lightly.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Going In.

Messrs. Editors; I am glad to know that the committee having the Lyceum in charge, have inaugurated a new and excellent plan whereby the audience is accommodated and comfortably seated, without having to waste an hour each in their desire to be on hand at the grand rush when the door opens. On many former occasions I have wet my feet, frozen my nose and had my ribs nearly broken, waiting and rushing with the crowd of ticket holders who had come early to be sure of getting a seat. The plan announced by the committee will render it unnecessary to go without one's supper in order to get a seat. If my beau is not smart enough to get two reserved seats I'll go to the opera and lectures with my cousin. One great advantage of the plan by the managers is that it secures each ticket holder a seat for each evening of the course, and it does not matter much where it is located so long as it is one's own. There is no lecturer on the list who will not make himself heard in any part of the Temple. Charles likes the plan too; he says my young brother will have to sit with papa in the reserved seat, and will not be likely to annoy us eating peanuts or with wet umbrellas. NANCY.

City Councils.

At a special meeting of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Friday evening, the question of settling the claim of L. M. Perkins and John Quinn, for injuries received from defects in highway, was referrred to committee on streets.

William B. Grogan declined serving as Assistant Engineer of the Fire department, as might have been expected.

The Common Council concurred in ordinances in relation to the Fire department, Police, and Street lights.

The following resolution was passed: Whereas by the existing ordinance of the city, only one Assistant Marshal is required: Resolved, that all Assistant Marshals and Police officers appointed before the first day of October (if any there are) be and are hereby removed.

William S. Hazel was elected Clerk of the Fire department.

Petition of Mt. Sinai Encampment, I. O. O. F., for use of State street ward room, Oct. 16th, was granted.

The two boards met in joint convention and elected the following Lamp Lighters: Franklin C. Hoyt, S. K. Batchelder and A. J. Ayers.

U. S. Circuit Court.

On Friday, Judge Clark gave an opinion in the case of the Concord railroad corporation against E. M. Topliff, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Second District. This was a suit to recover $4,351.08 paid under protest by the railroad for taxes upon dividends under the law relating to taxation of incomes, etc. The railroad company were assessed and a penalty added, and then the tax was paid under protest. An appeal was made to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who declined to remit the tax, and this suit was brought to recover the amount paid.

Laconics.

Messrs. John S. H. Frink, Frank Jones and Daniel Marcy are said to be candidates for the democratic nomination for Congressman from this district, but it is understood that Mr. Frink will not canvass for it. Either of these can be defeated if the republicans are not unfortunate in making their nomination. If Judge Doe will take it, a republican majority of 1000 could be polled. The time has arrived when the "office should seek the man, not man the office." We believe that Hon. James W. Emery or Hon. E. Ashton Rollins could be elected, and in certain contingencies one of the two might receive the nomination, but we understand that both have the good taste not to endeavor to force themselves upon the people.

A circular has been sent to the shareholders of the Direct Cable Company, informing then that the management has decided to abandon about thirty miles of the cable now lying on a rock bottom, and effect a splice at a more suitable point. The circular says that in all about 200 miles of the cable have been laid, and satisfactory tests are obtained daily by the electricians.

James Dingley & Co., Boston, ask especial attention to their card of Fine Wines, for invalids and others.

C. N. Shaw and Co. announce their grand opening of pattern bonnets and hats for the Fall season from latest New York styles at No. 3 Market street, to-day and to-morrow. Of course the ladies will all want to see the elegant patterns.

A Sad Case.

It seems as though the Ross abduction case, terrible as it was in itself, and much as it shocked and pained the people of the whole country, must continue to add to its horror one calamity after another. When the lost child was stolen, the mother, already in delicate health, was cast upon a bed of sickness, from which it was feared she would never arise. And then came the scandals, flying thick and fast, gathering force and ugliness as they passed from mouth to mouth. At first the tongue of calumny was satisfied to devote itself to the father, charging upon him more moral slips and follies than any one man could well be guilty of in an average lifetime.

Not only was Mr. Ross assailed as a business man, but his social standing was attacked in the most cruel manner. Soon rumor had spent its malicious coinage upon the father, and turned with renewed vigor on the helpless, sorrow-stricken mother. Nobody proclaimed these things from the house tops, nor the public forum; but the shocking charges passed from one gossiper to another (always under admonition of secrecy) until the circle was complete. There was hardly a man, woman, or child in this city who had not heard at least half a dozen of these stories. Respectable newspapers turned a deaf ear to them, but at last sensation-mongers caught, told, and spread them before the world. At that time the family shrunk from a conflict with these mud-throwers, and the calumniators were allowed to go without molestation.

At last, resolved to improve upon the lies of more pretentious newspapers in larger cities, the Reading Eagle delivered itself of a choice morsel. This article was manufactured with such particularity of detail, and was so calculated to impress a stranger to the family with its plausibility, that Mr. Ross, in justice to himself and family, took steps to prove the writer of that article, or his informant, an infamous calumniator The public is familiar with the preliminary proceedings of this case, now pending before the courts. It will be remembered that Mr. and Mrs. Ross, as well as Mr. Lewis, the brother of the latter, denied under oath all the imputations against the family, and cleared themselves fully in the eyes of the public. But the calumniator had done his work, fearfully and unmistakably. For several weeks it was plain to be seen that Mr. Ross was in a rapid decline. He became dejected, melancholy, morbid. Soon he was confined to his bed, where he now lies. That is not all, he lies there bereft of reason, crazed by grief. He knows nothing, remembers nothing but the loss of his boy, and all the trouble that has followed in its train. At first it was thought he had typhoid fever, but there is no fever there, nothing but a shattered frame and mental imbecility. He does not know his wife, and in the worst paroxysms of his grief drives her from him. Shortly before reason entirely left him he said: "I can bear the loss of my property, and the loss of Charley—even that God helps me to bear—but this slander and calumny against my wife and myself—that, that is what breaks me down."

STOVES! STOVES!
NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!
Great Bargains!
HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of
COOKING and PARLOR STOVES
To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.
We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.
Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.
For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.
Parlor Stoves
Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.
SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.
We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.
TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.
We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat in the stalls shall be permitted to leave any state ment, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

Tyndallism Solved.

[The Key furnished by the discourse of Rev. James DeNormandie, Oct. 11.]

There are two classes of operations, viz. the material and the spiritual. Tyndal may be doing a very valuable work by his demonstrations of the former, in that he may incite the Christian whose business it is to demonstrate the latter—and the work of the Christian is infinitely greater and more important than that of Tyndallism, because he demonstrates the fact of a duality of operations, in which there may be either concerted or independent action and not only demonstrates, but, in a finite measure actually sets in motion.

Examples: If I take two or three gills of milk and mix with it a proper portion of meal then take it into my mouth and stomach, the contact of these "atoms" of food with the "atoms" which constitute those organs of the body generates physical life which may exist entirely independent of all spiritual manifestations, but the knowledge in regard to the nature of the articles afford the judgment as to the quantity, etc., is by the operation of spiritual forces, and it can be easily shown that these forces are capable of independent action.

If I send a child to Sunday school without thinking whether he had had proper sleep and food he might nevertheless acquire spiritual knowledge though he would not be able to apply it in this life. The work of Christianity would be only partially accomplished. It would be completed only by a proper inquiry into all the items of bodily treatment and then showing how the material and spiritual can be so brought into harmonious action as to produce temporal good. Yours respectfully,

GOSPEL HEARER.

TO THE HON. JUDGE OF PROBATE FOR THE COUNTY OF ROCKINGHAM, IN THE STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

RESPECTFULLY SHOWS Charlotte M. Seavey of Portsmouth in said County of Rockingham, State of New Hampshire, that she is Guardian of ELLA M. SEAVEY by the appointment of the Judge of Probate for said County of Rockingham; that her said Ward is seized of one common and undivided third part of the homestead farm of EDWARD SEAVEY, late of Rye in said County, deceased, which farm is situated in said Rye, and that it is necessary for the support of her said Ward and will be conducive to her interest to have the premises sold; wherefore she prays that she may be licensed and authorized to sell the same at public auction, according to the statute in such cases made and provided.
CHARLOTTE M. SEAVEY, Guardian.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, } Rockingham, ss. }
Probate Office at Exeter in said County, Oct. 3, A. D. 1874.

UPON the foregoing Petition, it is Ordered, that a hearing be had thereon at a Court of Probate to be holden at Portsmouth in said County, on the second Tuesday of November next; and that the Petitioner notify all persons concerned to appear at said Court, and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted, by causing said petition and this order to be published three weeks successively in the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE, a newspaper published at Portsmouth in said County, the last publication whereof to be at least one week prior to said Court.
By order of the Judge.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1874.

Another Democratic War.

The situation of affairs at New Orleans is reported to be critical, and a renewal of hostilities is feared. Governor Kellogg is guarded by infantry in the State house, and appears anxious. Negroes from the neighboring States are said to be flocking to the State by thousands and registering as citizens. The White Leaguers are defiant and seem to invite the entry of the Federal forces. On Saturday, a republican mass meeting at New Orleans was attacked by an armed organization under known democratic leaders. At the first fire two men were killed and several other persons fatally wounded, one being a lady. Gen. Emory has called out the troops. War is actually threatened, and only the strong military power of the Government can preserve peace. Two companies of Custar's cavalry have reached Shreveport.

Principles—Not Men.

The coming political campaign in New Hampshire is fraught with too much moment to republicans to be entered upon without due deliberation and wise action. With the State in the possession of the democracy and the encouragement to the lukewarm which that affords; with the influx of hundreds of newly naturalized voters and the possession of an unusual number of check-lists by the present party in power: with the precedents of outrage shown in the reorganization of the courts, the gerrymandering of the cities, and the usurpation of power shown in Portsmouth and attempted in Manchester and elsewhere, showing the capability and the intention of the democratic leaders to carry on a most unscrupulous contest—the true test of earnestness for republican success can best be given by republican leaders honored by nominations and elections heretofore. When the people speak it is time to listen. Bad nominations have more than once brought defeat to the republican party of the State, and by past experience the future should be more fully assured. No man in the State has claims for advancement which are paramount to the well-being of the party. No candidate should be nominated who will risk defeat. Now if ever the masses command leaders to stand back and let the people work their own will. The day of trading is past and new men must come to the front. It is the duty of the party to nominate its best and most popular men, for there is no holiday work ahead. In this connection we copy the following extract from the Statesman, which closes a well-digested article as follows:

"Having shown how fraught with serious consequences are the issues that divide the two parties of New Hampshire, we come now to a consideration of the best methods for securing the triumph of the Right at our next election. These, it seems to us, involve at the outset, the sinking of all mere personal considerations and even of precedents, in the selection of our candidates. With such transcendent interests at stake, we cannot afford to overlook a single chance, however small, to strengthen our ticket. We say nothing concerning our platform; that will be satisfactory, we doubt not, to every friend of good morals, good order, and good government. But in the matter of our candidates, we shall be faithless to our high mission, and incapable of appreciating the great crisis we are about to pass through, if we do not banish all mere personal considerations when they tempt us to choose for our various standard bearers other than our strongest men, i. e., those who will command the strongest support. It is not for us to designate such candidates. But if we go into the caucuses, all of us, with a purpose single to the interests and the success of our party, there will be no difficulty in determining who are our best and strongest men, and there will be no dissatisfaction among other aspirants when the nominations are made. This is peculiarly a crisis when the claims of aspirants for office should be held in abeyance, or, at least, should be made subsidiary to the conditions of party success. So plain is this duty, that we confidently look forward to the withdrawal of all such claims, for the time being, which do not in themselves give every assurance of success when put to the test of the ballot.

In urging the point of availability in candidates, we do not wish to be understood as insisting that this should be the only qualification. Far from it. But is it not true that our best and ablest men are the most popular? that the honest men are they who will command the greatest number of votes? What we urge and desire to emphasize is this: that we early indicate our candidates, leaving nothing to chance or the spur of the moment in the nominating convention; that they be selected irrespective of precedent or bargains made under other circumstances, and that all other considerations be made tributary to the one word—SUCCESS!"

The Claremont Eagle, one of the most carefully edited papers in the State, pronounces its faith in the ability of the people to do their own thinking and voting in the following pertinent remarks:

"The republican party is unquestionably the strongest party in New Hampshire, but it must present its strongest candidates for office before that strength is shown forth. Consequently, personal considerations, locality, previous service, former bargains and present expectations must all be laid aside, and the men chosen who can once again rally the entire republican forces at the ballot box. We must tell our politicians to step down andone side, and let the rank and file of the party express their desire. Let the people rule."

Readables.

Elections will be held to-day in Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, West Virginia, Arkansas, and in the Territory of Dakota. Ohio does not elect a Governor, but the choice of other State officers and members of Congress make it an important election. Indiana and Iowa elect State officers below Governor and members of Congress. Nebraska elects a full State ticket; while the legislature to be chosen will have the naming of a United States Senator. West Virginia elects Congressmen and a legislature that will choose the successor of Senator Boreman. The contest over the new constitution will be the chief interest in Arkansas. Dakota chooses a Delegate to Congress.

The nominal surplus of the estate of Cyrus Wakefield at his death was about $600,000, and this has almost entirely been wiped out by the depreciation in real estate.

The neat typographical appearance of the new republican daily, the New York Republic, will commend itself at once to the reader. Republican in politics, the Republic is in able hands and shows from the start ability in its editorial columns and prosperity in its advertisements. It looks "solid" and has every appearance that it comes to stay. It has experienced managers and an open field to success.

A county treasurer in Alabama can neither read or write, but he has put $7,000 where no one but himself can find it.

During a secret session of a Chicago board of commissioners, one of the members was astonished to see an auger-tip projecting through the carpet, and, upon an examination, found that a party of reporters had bored through from the cellar for the purpose of hearing what was said.

Rev. W. H. H. Murray read a letter to the congregation at Park-street Church, Boston, Sunday morning, resigning his pastorate, to take effect on November 12, at the close of his sixth year.

Twin sisters living at South Bethlehem, (Penn.,) each gave birth to twins several nights ago within a few hours of each other. These sisters were married on the same day; their first children were born in the same month, their second in the same week and their third in the same hour.

The democrats of New Orleans have been attempting to buy up Governor Kellogg and thus get control of the State. Overtures have been made to him before and since the emeute of the 14th, by the leaders of that movement, offering him a most tempting reward if he will betray his people into the hands of the conservatives and yield up his patronage to their control. These offers have been repeatedly made verbally, and in at least one case in writing.

Belfast Journal: Another Washburn has got into office. His front name is Elmer, and he is the new chief of the secret service bureau. The recommendation of Gen. Butler, Col. Whitely and Allen Pinkerton nearly lost him the place.

Speaker Blaine criticised the "home rule" doctrine of the democrats, in Cleveland, the other night, when serenaded, and argued that the Federal Government should give as much protection to citizens in one of the States as it would give them in a foreign country.

A despatch from Brownsville says the organization of bandits to invade Texas has been partially suspended on account of the high water. The country on this side is almost impassable. Information from undoubted sources indicates that their plan of operation is to strike the detachment of troops which has been stationed to prevent the crossing of stolen cattle and then to murder and rob generally. General Cortina heads the movement. The people on this side are organizing to defend themselves. The military are in possession of the facts, and are on the alert. Mounted men are held ready to move at short notice. A border war has never been more imminent.

Gen. MacKenzie's command surprised and destroyed a Cheyenne camp of 100 lodges on the 28th of September on Jute Creek, near the Fork of the Red River, Texas. Four Indians were killed.

William H. Wickham, a wealthy jeweller, is the Tammany candidate for Mayor of New York.

State News.

Mr. Joshua Hall, an old and much respected citizen of West Rumney, on the 28th ult., while husking corn in his barn apparently in the best of health and spirits, fell from the chair in which he was seated to the floor and instantly expired.

The Stevens Woolen mill at Franklin, where 225 hands are employed, has reduced its time one-half—running every other week.

A staging gave away at the new Catholic Church in Suncook, a few days since, while four men were at work on it. They all held fast to the frame—and there they hung—until their collected senses permitted them to climb down.

Newton Grant and four others were capsized from a boat in the Dover Narrows, Sunday night, and Grant was drowned. He was twenty-four years old.

A barn and contents, including a horse owned by Charles W. Farrar, in Belmont, were burned on Friday night. Loss $1000, insured.

The proprietors of the old gold mill at Lisbon find that their ore has averaged $14 a ton for the past year. They stamp about five tons a day, of ten hours. The new gold mill, which has recently been put up in the same town, was put in operation, last week. It has a capacity of stamping twenty tons of ore every twenty-four hours, which is double the capacity of the old mill.

A horse belonging to Daniel Clay of Strafford broke his leg at Bow Pond on the 4th by stepping on a small loose stone which was laying in the road near the Post Office. He was travelling at a moderate pace, and driven by Mr. Clay. The animal was subsequently killed.

A boy named Johnny LaFayette lost a finger in a hay cutter in Suncook on Thursday evening.

A teamster named Edwin Ray, who lives in Manchester, was badly injured at Lawrence, on Thursday, by falling between the cars, while loading a water pipe. He was taken upon the train to his home.

Manchester was too lively Saturday evening. A fight was going on in John Murphy's saloon on Merrimac street. Murphy received frightful gashes about the face, John L. Barter was stabbed over the eye, and Ira Bryant was stabbed in the head by a jack-knife, the blade entering an inch and penetrating the brain. About the same time John Moriarty was stabbed in the leg and abdomen on Bridge street by some unknown person.

Gen. Butler was renominated for Congressman from the Sixth Massachusetts district on Monday by a vote of 100 to 16.

A Comical Dental Test.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

A young man, living on Cumberland Street, in this city, had, for many days, suffered with the toothache, and as a dernier resort, he decided to go to a dentist and have the offending bi-cuspid taken out. With that resolution well fixed in his mind and one dollar in his pocket, he sought a well-known "tooth-carpenter" on Greene Avenue. The dentist at once decided that two teeth would have to be drawn. The young man had not the nerve to stand the "double extract," so he told the dentist to bring forth the nitrous-oxide bag, and he would quaff himself away into insensibility.

He took the mouthpiece and drank away at the gas. The dentist at last thought he had enough. He spoke to him. A rational answer was returned. He must have more gas and the mouthpiece was again inserted between his lips. When he had taken gas enough to render two men insensible to pain, the dentist thought he would apply a well-known dental test to see if he was "gone."

"Billy?"

No answer.

He then touched the patient's eyelid to see if there was any muscular contraction, and, in so doing, accidentally touched the eye itself. No twitching of any kind. He must be insensible. The forceps at once brought out a tooth with tremendous roots, and at the same time brought the young man to his feet with a yell.

"Why in the deuce, Doc., didn't you wait until I had sucked some more gas?"

"More gas? You took enough to put two men to sleep, and besides I touched your eyelid and even put my hand in your eye, you never showed a twinge, and that is considered an infallible test."

"That's good, by George; I wondered what in thunder you were fooling around my glass eye for."

The valve, which was found to be out of order, was repaired, the man's second tooth drawn, and he soon went away chuckling to himself: "That's good, feeling of my glass eye to see if I'd twitch."

Cleansing Casks.

[Journal of Chemistry.]

The inquiry is often made regarding the best method of deodorizing and cleansing old cider and beer barrels, bottles, etc. Chemistry furnishes an agent in the permanganate potassa which fully meets this want. A pint of the permanganate turned into the most musty, filthy cider or beer cask, and rinsed about a few moments, will entirely decompose all fungoid growths and fermenting matter and render the cask as sweet as those that are new. The deodorizing, disinfecting power of the permanganate, holding as it does five equivalents of oxygen, is wonderful; it will even deodorize carbolic acid. The only way to remove immediately the odor of carbolic acid from the hands, is to immerse them in the liquid permanganate.

New Jersey "Liz."

[New Orleans Picayune.]

Elizabeth, N. J., wants her name changed.

[New York Commercial Advertiser.]

And yet she's no nearer Marion than she was ten years ago.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

Yes she is, too; her very pavements are wooed.

[Newark Advertiser.]

Wasn't it expensive courting?

—A Detroit lady who has been in California for some months past started for home the other day, and one of her relatives went to the telegraph office in Sacramento and notified the husband in Detroit, saying: "Your wife starts this morning." So far so good, but he didn't have money to pay for the despatch, and feeling a little cheap over it, he added to the telegram: "I have not paid for this despatch—left my money at home; will make it all right the next time I write to you." The twenty-two extra words made a bill which caused the Detroiter to turn pale.

—"What can we do," inquire the Methodist ministers, 'to make Sabbath schools more interesting?" And an unregenerate publican suggests, "take the boys out fishing."

Sea-Side Science.

[Virginia City Independent.]

On the piazza of a Long Branch hotel the other evening the following conversation between a pretty young woman and her chevalier was overheard.

She—Why have the newspapers been making so much fuss about the transit of Venus? Who cares anything about it?

He—It's a matter of great interest to science; but you women neither know nor want to to know anything of science. Your sex would not make a voyage to the South Sea, except to find out how Venus might be dressed.

She—If I remember my mythology aright Venus didn't wear anything in particular; and now I understand why the men have gone so far to look at her. Almost any man would go several thousand miles to see a woman who had neglected to put on her clothes.

He was silent, having manifestly received new light on the subject.

—Civil rights—obliging answers.

Boys

Grow up now-a-days full of mischief and regardless of consequences. In olden times they were indentured as apprentices until they should become of age, to masters who generally succeeded in getting the money's worth out of the investment. One of these documents new in possession of George E. Hodgdon, Esq., reads as follows:

This Indenture Witnefseth, That Joseph White Son of Abigail White of Portsmouth in the Province of New Hampshire of His free will an accord & with the Consent of His said mother HATH put himfelf, and by thefe Prefents doth voluntarily,put and bind herfelf Apprentice to Joseph Brewster of Portsmouth afore'sd Cordwainer to learn his Art, Trade or Myftery, and with him the said Joseph and Elizabeth his wife After the manner of an Apprentice, to Serve from the Day of the Date Hereof for and during the Term of five years & six months & five days to be compleat and ended: During all which Term, the faid Apprentice his faid master & mistress faithfully fhall Serve, their Secrets keep, and lawful Commands gladly every where obey; he fhall do no Damage to His faid master or mistress nor fuffer it to be done of others, without Letting, or giving Notice thereof to his faid master or mistress he fhall not wafte his faid masters Goods, nor lend them Unlawfully to any, he fhall not commit Fornication, nor Contract Matrimony within the faid Term: At Cards, Dice, or any other unlawful Game, he fhall not play; he fhall not abfent himself by Day or by Night from his faid masters Service without their Leave; nor haunt Ale-Houfes, Taverns, or Play-houfes; but in all Things behave himself as a faithful Apprentice ought to do towards his faid master & mistress during the faid Term of five years six months & five Days. AND the faid Joseph Brewster & Elizabeth his wife Doth hereby Covenant and Promife to Teach and Infruct, or caufe the faid Apprentice to be Taught and Infructed in the Art, Trade, or Calling of a Cordwainer by the beft Way or Means they may or can (if the faid Apprentice be capable to learn) and to find and provide unto the faid Apprentice suitable meat & drink washing & good Lodging during the faid Term: And at the Expiration thereof to give unto the faid Apprentice two Suits of wearing apparrel one for work & the other for Holidays & to Learn or Cause Him to be Learnt to Read write & Cypher as far as is futable for such an apprentice to be Learnt.

IN TESTIMONY whereof the Parties to thefe Prefents have hereunto interchangeably fet their Hands and Seals the nineteenth Day of October In the thirty-first Year of the Reigne of Our Soverign Lord George the Second King of Great-Britain, &c. Annoque Domini, One Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty-Eight.

A Correction.

Messrs. Editors: Will you please correct an error which has got into all the city papers, concerning the Temperance meetings, to be held under the auspices of the clergymen of the city. They are to be held on Sunday evenings. The first one is to be held in the Temple on Sunday evening next, Oct. 18, at 8 o'clock P. M. There will be no set addresses, but remarks by the several clergymen and others. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

A. C. HARDY, for Com.

Laconics.

Surgeon Thomas Hiland is ordered to the Navy Yard at Washington. Surgeon Frederick E. Potter has resigned, the resignation to take effect April 1, 1875. His orders to the Plymouth are revoked and he is placed on waiting orders—says the Army & Navy Journal.

The lyceum tickets go like "hot cakes," the best seats having been sold on Monday, between 400 and 500 being disposed of.

The Manchester Dispatch says Senator Daniell of Franklin, who is mentioned for the democratic gubernatorial candidate, would prefer to see a good horse-trot rather than be President of the Senate. The Dispatch further says: Our democratic vote will be given primarily to the Rollinsford farmer, but that won't make his election sure. Col. Pierce of Nashua, J. A. Dodge of Plymouth, and last but by no means least, Frank Jones of Portsmouth, may be essential elements in the coming nomination.

Capt. Edward M. Baker, who for eleven years has commanded steamer Appledore and her predecessor, the Pioneer, left this city on Monday to take a position on the Old Colony Steamboat Co's. line. Capt. Baker's many friends who go to New York via the Fall River line will find him on duty on steamer Bristol.

The Newburyport Veterans will go to Dover on Thursday and may stop over one train here on their return. They are to be received by the Strafford Guards, and the city government will participate. The Naval Band will furnish the music. Another band offered their services for $75, the Naval Band charging $200, but the Veterans engaged the latter.

The event of the week will be the appearance of Maggie Mitchell in her celebrated role of "Fanchon, the Cricket." She seems to please everybody, and at a second appearance anywhere, usually attracts a larger audience than on a first visit. She is a favorite in every city she visits, large or small. Not for one night alone, but for a succession of nights, the people turn out to witness her performances. None of the "tragedy queens" attract night after night as do the lighter personations of this vivacious and charming actress. She thoroughly pleases the great public. Tickets are now for sale at Dr. Preston's drug store.

The Times had better look itself a little before announcing that Hon. E. Ashton Rollins "is not an inhabitant of this State." This will be news to Mr. Rollins, who is residing in Strafford county not fifteen miles from the Times office and is more likely to go to Congress from this district than any other man in it except perhaps Judge Doe. Try and keep better posted, smarty!

As John H. Slater, Esq., was driving the Union store team up Market street, Monday afternoon, the whiffle tree of the wagon became unhitched and striking the horse caused him to run away. Mr. Slater was thrown out and run over but suffered only a slight spinal injury.

We are glad to learn that we are to have at least two first class Lyceum courses, for our entertainment this fall and winter. The Methodist Society has made an arrangement to open a course of eight lectures and concerts, by some of the best talent in New England, commencing Wednesday evening, Oct. 21, with a concert by the celebrated pianists, Mrs. Martha Dana Shepard and Jennie P. Dana, assisted by a quartet of male voices from the Apollo Club. Season tickets, $1.50, reserved seats $2, single tickets 25 and 50 cents.

The Times deliberately lies in saying that the republicans of this city "have returned for a number of years from three to four hundred more majority than they had." The falsehood is not believed by one of its party here, but is told for effect abroad, otherwise contradiction would be unnecessary.

The newly installed democratic officials are especially hurt over the fact that there is very little money left in the city treasury for them to use in feeding their hungry followers, and so they cry and lament over the forethought of the six months officials whose terms they abbreviated, who seeing the evident intention of the democrats to use it for partizan purposes, very properly spent it for the purposes it had been appropriated for, spiking the guns before they abandoned them. The new city officials may draw their salaries, but they haven't much money to squander.

Mr. James S. Peirce, late of the Rockingham House, has abandoned the idea of going West, and will soon take charge of the Imperial Hotel, formerly kept by Job Jenness & Son, in Washington. Messrs. Edward S. Morrill and Sanford B. Woodward will occupy the positions of clerks at the Imperial.

J. M. Tebbetts has his Fall and Winter opening of pattern bonnets and hats at 14 1-2 Market street, on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

The Story Of Mrs. Barker.

[Max Adeler.]

The statement floating about in the papers to the effect that "a jealous Indianapolis woman has just made her thirteenth ineffectual attempt at suicide," reminds me of the case of Mrs. Barker, of Harrisburg. She attempted to poison herself twenty-three times, but was always saved by the judicious use of a stomach pump by her friends. She was life and hope and comfort and bread and butter to the newspaper reporters, and they thought so much of her that at last they got up a little testimonial in the shape of a silver-plated stomach pump, with a gutta percha piston and bell metal valves, inscribed with the sentiment, "May she never succeed!" Some of her friends gave a little collation at the time, and after it was eaten somebody proposed to test the apparatus on one of the reporters. They say that meeting then adjourned suddenly.

—Despite judicial decisions, English very-high-churchmen are determined to adhere to genuflexion, because it's rite.

Building Up the Weak.

Feeble constitutions cannot be physicked into health and strength. Invigoration, to be permanent and complete, must be effected by establishing a regular and harmonious action of the various bodily organs. Dosing will not accomplish this; but Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will. That admirable tonic and corrective regulates at the same time that it strengthens the stomach, liver and bowels, and while imparting vigor to the entire physique, purifies and enriches the blood. A good appetite, tranquil sleep, sound digestion and a regular habit of body—four grand essentials of health—are promoted by its use. It vitalizes, tranquilizes and equalizes. By a successful chemical combination of tonic, aperient and anti-bilious vegetable ingredients, held in solution and diffused through the system by a wholesome and agreeable stimulant, it is enabled to beneficially affect the various abdominal organs at one and the same time.

For Moth Patches, Freckles and Tan

Ask your Druggist for Perry's Moth and Freckle Lotion, which is harmless and in every case infallible. Or for his Improved COMEDONE and PIMPLE REMEDY, the great SKIN MEDICINE for Pimples, Black Heads or Flesh Worms. Or consult B. C. PERRY, the noted Skin Doctor, 49 Bond St., New York. a 19 D 6m

The Ancient Egyptians learned the art of preserving their bodies for many generations, but all the world have not been able to discover an infallible preventative that will stop the hair from falling off. Bearine is without doubt the safest dressing, and is also the most delightful preparation to use, ever made. 8

Sozodont.

All Dentifrices had their drawbacks, until the salubrious bark of the soap tree was brought from the Chilian valleys to perfect the fragrant Sozodont, the most wholesome, reliable and delightful article for the teeth that a brush was ever dipped into.

Piles can be cured only by ANAKESIS, the greatest discovery of the age and the sole, infallible remedy for the worst cases of Piles. Thousands of sufferers after trying in vain all manner of lotions, ointments and internal remedies, have been instantly relieved and permanently cured by Anakesis. It is the happy discovery of Dr. SILSBEE, a regular scientific physician, and doctors of all schools endorse and recommend it. Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere, and sent free by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walker street, New York.

How the Money Goes!

After November 30th, it will be easy to see how the money goes, for the drawing will take place of the Public Library of Kentucky, and at that Grand Gift Concert $2,500,000 in cash will be given away to ticket holders. The fortunate holder of the ticket drawing the first prize will walk off with $250,000; of the second prize, $100,000; of the third prize, $75,000; of the fourth prize, $50,000; of the fifth prize, $25,000, &c., &c., until 20,000 grand cash prizes shall all have been distributed. Truly, this distribution will tell how the money goes! 08

GILBERT'S LIVER LOZENGES.

WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT THEM.

CARLOTTESVILLE, IND., April 23, 1874.
S. GILBERT: A box of your Liver Lozenges have almost cured me of the Dyspepsia of 20 years standing. I have recommended them in many cases, and they have never failed to my knowledge of giving relief, and I have heard several say they were the best remedy they had ever used. A. H. ALLISON, 08 Eld. A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interspersion of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustain an unbated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $3,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union.

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, damp grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRINGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

CUSTOM HOUSE EXCHANGE,

PLEASANT STREET, PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

WILLIAM CHANDLER

—DEALER IN—

ALES, WINES, LIQUORS AND CIGARS.

THE BEST IN THE MARKET.

After an absence of more than two years, I have returned to Portsmouth and taken the stand formerly occupied by me, next door to the Custom House, where I should be pleased to meet all my old friends and everyone else in want of anything in my line of business. My LIQUORS are PURE, my CIGARS are of the best brands—in fact everything in my stock is first-class and WARRANTED.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

I WISH I WAS A PRINTER.

BY ANNIE M. SUTTON.

I wish I was a printer,
I really do, indeed;
It seems to me that printers
Get everything they need.
(Except money!—Western Editor.)

They get the largest and the best
Of everything that grows,
And get free into circuses
And other kinds of shows.
(By giving an equivalent!)

The biggest bugs will speak to them,
No matter how they dress;
A shabby coat is nothing
If you own a printing press.
(Policy!)

At ladies' fairs they are almost hugged
By pretty girls, who know
That they will crack up everything
That ladies have to show.
(A slander!)

And thus they get a "blow-out" free,
At every party feed;
The reason is because they write
And other people read.

NANCY JONES' BABY.

[N. Y. Sunday Times.]

The wind came howling down the mountain side, and with a hollow moan rushed through the canons. The tall pines tossed and beat their heads at each rude blast of the storm. Masses of black clouds hung like a funeral pall over the mountains, and the rain poured down in torrents.

Rabbit Creek bounded down its narrow bed, carrying all before it, whirling and writhing like a huge serpent, taking its way with rapid leaps, bearing on its foaming bosom a mass of rubbish. Great logs and stumps of trees, caught from their resting-places on some hillside, were borne on till lost to sight. Now and then a sluice-box came floating down till dashed to pieces against a bowlder, telling of disaster to some poor miner farther up the gulch. On, on, swept the rushing waters, taking in their rude embrace all that crossed the path of their fury.

Sudden and awful had been the coming of the storm, as if delay had strengthened its power and given new energy to its fierceness. Then came the change from warmth to cold—from rain to snow—and soon the rugged hills were clothed in white, and in the gulches were piled huge drifts. The whirling masses were borne on and scattered. The trees were heavy with their burden, and when some blast more rude than others stirred their branches, the grateful limbs lifted their heads and tossed about with joy at their relief.

The town of Rabbit Creek stands unsheltered on the hillsides, and in its unprotected state had been exposed to the fury of the storm. The small rude houses were rocked by heavy blasts till they trembled on their slight foundations. In the principal barroom of the town were gathered the greater part of the male population. It was a large room, with tables scattered around its sides; in the centre stood a billiard table the boast and pride of the proprietor, and he had been heard to say, "See that billiard table? It cost a fort'un to set that 'ere piece of furniture up in my saloon." And then, as surprise and wonder was depicted on the face of his listener, the owner of that "'ere table" would give the astonishing information that "she was packed across the mountains on a mule."

In the corner stood a mammoth stove, and alongside of it a pile of logs, for ample were the heating accommodations of "old McKenzie's" saloon, and the larger part of the crowd were gathered around its warm sides taking in cheering heat. The smiling host's rubicund countenance shone like a new brass tea-kettle, as he rushed around attending to the wants of his patrons. He finally addressed one of the crowd near the stove with, "I say, Jake, it's started in good. You were in luck; if you had been a day later you would have had to come over on snow shoes."

The answer came in a voice singularly low and sweet, for the person spoken to as Jake was a man of great size, and as he stood with his back to the stove, his heavy coat almost reaching the floor, he looked like a giant. There was an indescribable air of refinement and grace about the man, and the face that looked out from under the broad-brimmed hat was one handsome and yet sad.

"Yes, Mac, I was lucky, as you say, and if it keeps on in this way long, we shall be blockaded for a couple of weeks."

One or two more of the crowd here gave their opinion as to the chance for a hard winter, but their conversation came to an abrupt termination as the door of the saloon opened with a rush, and in came a figure which at first looked like a mass of snow, but by dint of much shaking and stamping of feet, it finally assumed the shape of a man, who, as he pulled off his heavy coat, disclosed to the crowd the well-known features of the only doctor on Rabbit Creek.

A run of salutations greeted him from all sides, for Dr. Holmes was a man respected by old and young. He had a pale, refined face, with the sharpest of gray eyes looking out from jet black eyebrows, and people said that when the doctor got riled those gray eyes snapped and glared, giving the person who met his displeasure some insight into the character of the man they had to deal with.

After the doctor had said, "How are you, boys?" he turned to McKenzie and called for a drink, when his eye caught sight of the tall figure by the stove, and then came,

"Why, Jake Morse, how are you?"

The same low, sweet voice answered, "Firs'rate, Doc, how are you? Come, get near the stove and put some warmth into your bones. Who is sick in town? It's a bad night for even a doctor to be out."

The doctor made his way to the stove, and as he did so, said:

"Well, I will tell you something that will surprise you and every one in Rabbit Creek."

The crowds which had been scattered in different parts of the large room, engaged in playing cards or in talking over the last news from 'Frisco, gathered round the doctor, or neglected their occupation, to hear what he had to say, for a surprise at Rabbit Creek was a novelty. McKenzie handed the doctor his drink, and as he stood with the steaming glass in his hand, he said, in a low voice:

"Nancy Jones has got a baby!"

For a moment everything was as quiet as the grave; the only sound was the click, click of the spoon as the doctor slowly stirred up the contents of the glass. It was only for a moment, and then jumped up Pat Moran, a little, red-whiskered Irishman, who had a face in which humor and good nature were the chief characteristics, and noted as being the noisiest and smallest man in the camp. Getting on one of the many tables, he, in a loud voice, called for "Three cheers for Nancy Jones' baby!" Then, as if every man's life depended on it, they one and all gave three such cheers as would have frightened a civilized being out of his wits. Then followed a scene of confusion. All manner of questions were poured in upon the poor doctor. "What was it—a boy or a girl?" and Pat Moran says—"If it is a boy, docther, darlint, call him after me." The doctor stated that it was a girl, and a very fine one. At this information Pat Moran expressed his disgust to the effect "that he had the divil's own luck," and that "he should niver rest in his grave till he 'stud' godfather to a baby, for sure it's next to being the father of one."

Then followed propositions to drink the health of mother and child, which were checked by the doctor, who, after continued efforts, made himself heard. Pat Moran, equal to the occasion, took the top of his favorite table, and yelled: "Whist! ye divils! an sure the Doc wishes to address yees on the topic of the day."

Then Dr. Holmes said:

"Boys, I am sorry to destroy all your pleasure, but I have seen that to-night down at the 'Log House' which has made me, doctor as I am, and used to sorrow and suffering, shed tears. It is with great pain I tell you that Nancy Jones and her baby must die."

As the doctor said this, a low hum passed around the room, and one could see the gruff and rugged faces of those men change color and grow pale, while their hands clenched together to prevent the feelings they wished to conceal. Then Jake Morse said, in a low voice:

"Doc, what's the matter? Can't you save one of them? Can we do anything? I don't think there is a man in the room that would not risk his life to do the poor woman and her child a service."

And from many a bearded mouth came words which, if not elegant, were forcible, of their will to do all and everything to save the mother and her child.

The doctor looked around for a moment, and then said:

"Boys, you know, as well as I, that Nancy Jones is what is called a fallen woman—and she is beyond the pale of respectability: but you will not contradict me when I say that if one of you were sick and needed some one to watch by your sick bed, she would be the first to offer her services. You all remember when Bill Childs lay dying at Sawpit Flat, how she nursed him for weeks, and when at last death came, she closed his eyes, and wrote to his friends, telling them of poor Bill's fate."

"You bet she did!" came from many a mouth.

Morse stood by the bar. Not a feature moved. His hand trembled where it rested, but his voice came low and calm as he said:

"Doc, can we do anything to assist yon?"

"I will tell you boys," said the doctor; "the poor woman is worn out with suffering, and her child lies dying by her side, and the mother is unable to nourish it. If there is one of you who dare, for their sakes, go to Port Wine and get some milk, we may save the life of Nancy Jones' baby."

Morse said at once: "I will go, Doc; and if I fall and Nancy lives, tell her Jake Morse risked his life to save her child." Then turning to one of the men he said: "Charley, will you lend me your snow shoes?"

In a moment all was confusion; the men rushed about as if mad. McKenzie busied himself putting up a flask of his favorite brandy for use, should Morse require it.

The arrangements were completed, and out into the street went the crowd. The houses were white with snow; the wind came tearing down the hill, dashing the falling flakes into their faces, cutting and blinding them. Morse strapped on the huge shoes, then stood erect, saying:

"Boys, if I don't get back, send my things to my mother—McKenzie knows the address and now here goes."

And at the word off he went in the night like a flash; only for an instant was he seen, then was lost to sight.

Brave heart! God, in his goodness, will not fail to watch your lonely path. His eye is on you, so breast on and fear not.

The men went back to the saloon, glad to return to its shelter and warmth. Their glasses were refilled, and silent prayers were offered for Jake's return.

The doctor said: "If Jake does not return in four hours, go out and meet him." And then, filling his flask, started on his way to visit the woman and her child.

With his hat pulled over his eyes, and his face closely muffled, he went out into the darkness and the storm. After plodding some time in the drifting snow, he said to himself, "I shall have to stop at Abe Stearns' and get warm; I can't be far from there."

Pushing on, he at length reached a house rude and small; out of the single window shone a light. In answer to the knock, a man's voice said, "Come in!"

He pushed open the door and stood within, white with snow. For a moment the light from the large fire dazzled his eyes. Abe Stearns, greeting him, said:

"Why, Doc, are you out on such a night like this? It's a wonder you're not dead. I say, Jessie, here's Doc Holmes," and from the other room came a young woman, with a fair, calm face, holding in her arms a bundle of clothing; from which issued a cry, telling that there was some one beside husband and wife.

"Give me the youngster," said Abe, "and give the doctor something warm; he is cold."

"Never mind me," replied the doctor. "I will be all right in a minute. I could not resist the temptation of your fireplace. But how is the baby? Let me see him, Mrs. Stearns."

The young mother, with proud look and tender hands, uncovered her sleeping babe. The doctor, looking at him for a moment, said:

"He is a fine baby, Mrs. Stearns, and worthy of his father and mother. How comfortable he looks in his warm nest, and how different from the poor babe I am on my way to see!"

"Why, doctor, is there any one sick? Who is it?"

The doctor answered in a low voice, "A poor unfortunate woman, Mrs. Stearns, who is cut off from every one, and who, in spite of every misfortune, is a woman, and lies at death's door, with a baby by her side; to add still more to her misery, nature has failed to give the nourishment necessary for her child."

For a moment the husband and wife stood speechless, and then in one breath they asked:

"Who is it, doctor?"

He answered, "Nancy Jones."

They repeated the words, "Nancy Jones," and the young mother clasped her child still closer to her heart, and, looking down on her sleeping baby, she inwardly thanked God, even though her home was small and rude, that her child was safe from such a misfortune as the doctor had related; and turning to him, her mother's sympathy shining on her face, she said:

"O doctor! can nothing be done to save the child? No matter what the mother's sin, the child at least is innocent; it is too terrible—something must be done. Abe, can't you think of something we can do?"

The doctor said, "The only cow for miles around is owned at Port Wine, and Jake Morse has gone on snow shoes in the midst of the storm, for milk. If God sees fit to let him return in safety, the child might be saved; but if he should fail, there is no hope."

"But, Doc," said Abe, "how long will it take Jake to go and return?"

"About four hours, if he does his best and meets with no accident."

Jessie asked in a low voice, as she clasped her baby closer to her breast:

"How long is it, doctor, since the mother failed to nurse the child?"

"She became unconscious about five o'clock, and since then it has been without food; and by the time Morse returns it will be seven hours."

Jessie did not speak—she looked down upon her child, wrapped the shawl closer about its little body, and out from under the bed drew the rude cradle—an old boot box, with rockers attached, no doubt made by Abe's hardy hands—and with tenderness placed the baby in its resting place. A soft flush covered her face, and her calm, sweet eyes lit up as she looked at her husband—the lover of her youth, the one for whom she had left her home—the father of her child—and drawing her slight form to its full height, she said:

"Doctor, the child shall not die, for I myself will go and nurse Nancy Jones' baby."

The doctor looked at her radiant face for an instant; the tears came to his eyes, and his voice trembled with emotion.

"You are an angel, Mrs. Stearns," and he lifted her hand reverently to his lips and kissed it.

Then the wife, with an indescribable grace, turned to her husband and said.

"Abe, have I your consent to go?"

And the great, strong, bearded creature picked her up in his arms like a child, while the big, manly voice shook and trembled in reply, "Yes, Jessie, my wife; God forbid that I should stand in the way of your angel mission. Go, my love, and God bless you."

And the doctor, after sundry coughs, ostensibly for the purpose of clearing his throat, managed at length to say.

"If you two young people don't have luck I shall turn infidel. —— if I don't. Excuse me, Mrs. Stearns, but I couldn't help it."

The preparations were soon completed; Jessie bent over the cradle for a moment, kissed her husband, charged him to be careful of the "boy," and then went out into the night.

The wind had ceased and the moon shone bright and clear; the cold, sharp air cut like a knife, but still they labored on, sometimes through the frozen crust, never stopping until they reached the "Log House." Jessie here spoke for the first time:

"Is there any one with her, doctor?"

"Yes, the old negress, Judith." And as he spoke he opened the door.

Jessie stood on the threshold for a moment—only for a moment, however, for the faint cry of a child was heard, and then all the woman came to her relief, and she stepped quickly into the room. The cry of the child came again. Going to the bed, she took it in her arms—it moaned; she seated herself in a low chair; the doctor turned his face away—a feeble cry of content from the child, and then all was quiet, and Nancy Jones' baby was saved.

Five years have come and gone since that night, and time has made many changes. Abel Stearns and Jessie are no longer in Rabbit Creek. One misfortune after another has happened to them, until starvation stares them in the face. They have one more mouth to feed since we saw them last, and Christmas night, 1853, sees them in San Francisco without food.

Jessie, unable to see her invalid husband suffer any longer, had made up her mind to beg. Out into the street she goes, trying to gain courage for her task. Faint and tired from fasting and overwork, she reaches the corner just as a fine carriage is driving past. She tries to avoid it, but her foot slips, and she falls on the crossing. The carriage stops, the windows are lowered, and a man's voice asks, "What is the matter?"

The bystanders replied that "a woman has fainted," and then a woman's voice asks "if she is hurt?"

"She is in the drug store," the same persons reply, "and is insensible."

The soft voice from the carriage speaks to her companion, saying: "I should like to see her, dear."

The door is opened, and passing into the store, and asking to see the lady who fainted, she is shown into the room. She glides up to the lounge and casts one look at the white face, and drops on her knees and puts the poor head to her shoulder. Only for a moment does she remain, then turning to the clerk she said:

"Carry the lady to my carriage; she is an acquaintance of mine; I will take charge of her."

The unconscious woman was lifted into the carriage, and it rolls away.

Abel Stearns waits for his wife, but she does not return. Fear at last overcomes him, and he resolves to start out and find her, when there is heard a knock at the door. A man's voice asks if Mr. Stearns lives there, and, if so, he is requested to come with him at once, as his wife has been taken ill and is with friends. Abel hardly recovers from his surprise when he finds himself in a fine apartment, and in a few moments he has his wife in his arms, pale, but smiling, in her night dress. There is heard a rustle of silk, and Abel turns and sees a beautiful woman behind him, amused at his embarrassment. She comes toward him, offering him her hands, as she says: "Why, Mr. Stearns, don't you know me?" and she looks at him with her great black eyes full of tears.

Abel still stands in doubt. She steps to the door, and leads in a little golden-haired girl, beautiful as a dream. She lifts the child up to Abel, and says:

"Don't you know Nancy Jones' baby?"

Comfort and plenty have come to Abel Stearns and Jessie since that night Nancy Jones found her in the street—Nancy Jones no longer, but Nancy Morse. She gave Abel the means to restart in life, and now he has one of the finest ranches in California, and he says the finest wife and children, and all because Jessie saved Nancy Jones' baby.

Mr. Fulton left Tremont Temple because the society wouldn't start a newspaper for him to gush in, and now Mr. Murray announces his intention of quitting the Park Street Congregational church because they don't provide an associate pastor. Mr. Murray was willing to preach, but he desired to shove off what he no doubt considers the drudgery of the profession—visiting the sick, burying the dead, etc.—upon an associate pastor. He had other irons in the fire, such as stock raising, and lecturing, which demanded his attention.

The Biddeford Times says: There were three grand temperance demonstrations Sunday—two in Biddeford and one in Saco. The tremendous attendance evinced the wildly increasing interest in the cause; and the presence of visitors from other cities among the audiences and on the platforms, showed the newspaper reports of previous meetings had commanded attention in distant parts of the country, and induced a desire on the part of those elsewhere than in Biddeford and Saco, to witness the excitement here.

The government of Spain has presented a long note to the French government in regard to immunity from interference enjoyed by the Carlists in the reception of supplies and munitions of war across the border and other violations of the frontier by the royalists. A battle lasting ten hours was fought at Arioja di Navarra, at the end of which the Carlists withdrew to Estella.

Monday afternoon, Deputy United States Marshal Orson Pratt, son of Apostle Pratt, attempted to serve a subpœna upon Brigham Young to appear before the grand jury, but was resisted. United States Marshal Maxwell then took the subpœna, and started with Deputy Marshal Pratt to serve the process. On entering, Brigham Young's private office, adjoining Young's room, the door-keeper assaulted Maxwell, kicking him in the back unseen, and knocking the officers prostrate, over 100 armed Mormons, headed by Mayor Wells and other apostles, assisting in the resistance. Maxwell immediately summoned a posse, and arrested the doorkeeper and others, and finally made the service on Brigham Young. Great excitement prevails over the arrest. Governor Wood, on hearing that Maxwell was being resisted, issued an order for troops.

In reply to the request of Governor Brown of Tennessee, that the prosecutions of the Gibson county outlaws by the United States courts be discontinued, on the ground of non-jurisdiction, the attorney-general has written a letter sustaining the jurisdiction of those courts and announcing that the trials will be resumed.

Robbins, the "Annie B." murderer, was acquitted on the ground of insanity. He will be committed to an insane asylum.

The Springfield Republican shows that there is a reduction in rents of the higher class, a considerable in clothing and all dry goods to nearly ante-war prices. It thinks, moreover, that the time has come for such a re-adjustment of wages and of prices as shall insure an adequate market and constant employment.

President Grant is on a visit to the Indian Territory, and made a short speech to the Kiowas who assembled in large numbers to see the "Great Father."

Hon. D. W. Gooch is renominated in the fifth Massachusetts congressional district, and Hon. Henry L. Peirce in the third district—both by acclamation.

Of Dawes, the Brooklyn Eagle says: "His mental qualities and working habits are of the first order. A steel rod running right through his vertebra would make him one of the grandest men of his party. It would also make him Senator."

In Washington, Friday, a police officer had a desperate struggle with a colored fugitive from justice in the effort to handcuff him. The fugitive putting both hands against a bridge forced himself over into the river, after declaring that he would die before he would go with the officer. Efforts were made to rescue him, but without success, and he was drowned. He had been fined $20 for an assault, and had escaped from the cell in which he had been confined.

At a prayer-meeting in Springfield, Mass., on Sunday, a deacon had a lady and a cripple put out of church, because her bonnet happened to be in the way of his seeing the minister.

Hon. George F. Hoar was unanimously re-nominated for Congressman in the Worcester, Mass., district, Tuesday.

Laconics.

The Nashua Telegraph thinks "Portsmouth should be put in quarantine or annexed to Smuttynose island until the city can be restored to sobriety and to the republicans." It will not take more than a twelve-months' democratic rule to secure the restoration, Mr. Telegraph.

See advertisement of great sale of books (at auction and private sale) at store under the Franklin House, this evening.

Maggie Mitchell comes to-morrow evening, and the rush for reserved seats at the opening sale was great, Tuesday. A few more remain and will doubtless be taken to-day, as everybody wishes to see "Fanchon." It is entirely unnecessary, and would be superfluous, to offer anything of the nature of criticism upon it. It is the accepted standard, and no one hopes or desires to see a better, if a better can be conceived. Personally, Miss Mitchell seems to have lost none of that vivacity, sparkle and sprightliness which characterized her so pre-eminently in more youthful days, and she exercises over her auditors the same captivating influence as of old.

Auction of room paper by M. T. Betton & Co., this forenoon at ten o'clock. See advertisement.

Quocheco Encampment, I. O. O. F., of Dover, will be the guests of Mount Sinai Encampment of this city on Friday evening. A banquet is to be served to the visitors in the armory of the Independent Battalion.

The U. S. S. Plymouth has been ordered to sail October 18th, for Key West, for service in the North Atlantic squadron.

Ordnance Sergeant Adolph Franz has been relieved from duty at Atlanta, Ga., where he had been stationed for several years, and ordered to Fort Constitution, in this harbor, to assume the duties of ordnance sergeant, made vacant by the death of Sergeant Davidson.

The democratic hand-organ endeavors to back its statement that the republicans of this city "have returned from three to four hundred more majority than they had," by the statement that old Wards One and Two returned 414 majority last March, and but 115 majority in September. The majority in September would have been a great deal more than twice 115 with selectmen in charge of the ballot boxes who had any degree of honesty or fairness. More than two hundred democratic voters are on the checklists who have no legal right to right to vote in Portsmouth. While the Times is figuring, won't it please explain why the democratic majority in Ward Three which was but about 50 in March should be 127 in September—the check-list being then as now in democratic hands?

Fearing that Hon. E. Ashton Rollins may defeat the democratic candidate for Congress in this district, the Times endeavors to locate him in Philadelphia. Mr. Rollins resides in Somersworth, pays his taxes there, voted there last March and has never lost a vote.

A rumor was current, Thursday evening, to the effect that the U. S. S. Plymouth had received orders for New Orleans, to proceed at once.

Some stupid rascal stole a horse belonging to Mr. Wood. Locke, which was left standing on Water street, Monday evening, by Hiram Manson; drove to Park street and hitched the animal. At ten o'clock, Mr. Wm. Plaisted saw him and supposed he was hitched there by some one calling in the neighborhood. Tuesday morning at six o'clock, he found the horse still there, shivering so that the harness rattled, the night having been the coldest of the season. He was put in Mr. Plaisted's stable and fed, but refused water for hours, being thoroughly chilled. In the afternoon, Mr. Plaisted notified the police, who had been telegraphing in all directions.

A Pleasant Anniversary.

On Tuesday evening, the children, grandchildren and many friends surprised Samuel W. Moses, Esq., and his estimable wife at their residence on Pleasant street, where the evening was spent merrily, the occasion being the close of their fortieth year of wedded life. The guests carried with them a number of valuable presents and some unknown friend sent the following "thoughts:"

"Brother Moses, it now appears you have lived together these forty years. This long time you have walked together, in stormy and in pleasant weather. In all the incidents of life there is nothing like a loving wife, to darn your stockings and to sew, and help you paddle your own canoe; to make your bread and rock the cradle, and do other things as she is able; and when the work of life is o'er and you approach the other shore, may it be to rest in heaven above, where all is peace—for God is love."

State News.

A year ago last spring a hen belonging to Mr. Jacob K. Bickford, of Rochester, set on turkey eggs, and three days after hatching her brood, died. A turkey gobbler took pity on the young turkeys, and took them under his especial care until they were large enough to "shirk" for themselves. This spring Mr. Bickford took the young from a hen when they were two days old, and shut the gobbler with them one day, when the attachment was mutual, and since that day he has been everything but a mother to them.

Building Up the Weak.

Feeble constitutions cannot be physicked into health and strength. Invigoration, to be permanent and complete, must be effected by establishing a regular and harmonious action of the various bodily organs. Dosing will not accomplish this; but Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will. That admirable tonic and corrective regulates at the same time that it strengthens the stomach, liver and bowels, and while imparting vigor to the entire physique, purifies and enriches the blood. A good appetite, tranquil sleep, sound digestion and a regular habit of body—four grand essentials of health—are promoted by its use. It vitalizes, tranquilizes and equalizes. By a successful chemical combination of tonic, aperient and antibilious vegetable ingredients, held in solution and diffused through the system by a wholesome and agreeable stimulant, it is enabled to beneficially affect the various abdominal organs at one and the same time.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,
—THE—
Art Journal of America,
ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the production of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interspersion of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustain an unbiased interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 500 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,000, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series so made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

AT PRIVATE SALE.

The convenient and well located HOUSE and the lot of 4000 feet at the corner of Lincoln Avenue and Broad Street, is offered for sale on easy terms. The house has a fine prospect, is located in a portion of the city where gentlemen are rapidly selecting sites for dwellings, and where the best houses are being erected. The house has well arranged rooms, a very cheerful outlook on either side, is supplied with excellent well water introduced into the house, and has garden plot and well built henery attached. The site is peculiarly pleasant, and the opportunity of purchasing a house built for a residence for the owner, and sold only because his business requires his presence in another city, is one that well deserves the attention of any one who desires a home for immediate occupancy. The premises may be examined on application to WILLIAM H. HACKETT.

LAWS

OF THE

UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

TREATY

BETWEEN

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND THE REPUBLIC OF PERU.

EXTRADITION.

Concluded September 12, 1870.
Ratification advised by Senate March 31, 1871.
Ratified by President April 11, 1871.
Ratified by President of Peru May 28, 1874.
Time for exchange of ratifications extended June 5, 1873.
Ratifications exchanged at Lima May 28, 1874.
Proclaimed July 27, 1874.

The time originally fixed for the exchange of the ratifications having unavoidably elapsed, was extended, by a formal agreement of the parties, to November 9, 1874, within which time that ceremony took place, in the usual form.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, a treaty for the extradition of criminals, fugitives from justice, between the United States of America and the Republic of Peru, was concluded and signed by their respective Plenipotentiaries at Lima, on the twelfth day of September, eighteen hundred and seventy, the original of which treaty, being in the English and Spanish languages, is, word for word, as follows:

Extradition-treaty between the United States of America and the Republic of Peru.

The United States of America and the Republic of Peru, having judged it expedient, with a view to the better administration of justice and the prevention of crime within their respective territories and jurisdictions, that persons charged with the crimes hereinafter enumerated should, under certain circumstances, be reciprocally delivered up, have resolved to conclude a treaty for this purpose, and have named as their respective Plenipotentiaries, that is to say: the President of the United States of America has appointed Alvin P. Hovey, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States of America near the Government of the Republic of Peru; and the President of Peru has appointed His Excellency Doctor Jose J. Loayza, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Peru; who, after having communicated to each other their respective full powers, found in good and true form, have agreed upon and concluded the following articles:

ARTICLE I.

It is agreed that the contracting parties shall, on requisitions made in their name through the medium of their respective diplomatic agents, deliver up to justice persons who, being accused or convicted of the crimes enumerated in Article II of the present treaty, committed within the jurisdiction of the requiring party, shall seek an asylum, or shall be found within the territories of the other: Provided, That this shall be done only when the fact of the commission of the crime shall be so established as that the laws of the country in which the fugitive or the person so accused shall be found would justify his or her apprehension and commitment for trial if the crime had been there committed.

ARTICLE II.

Persons shall be so delivered up who shall be charged, according to the provisions of this treaty, with any of the following crimes, whether as principals, accessories, or accomplices, to wit:

1. Murder, comprehending the crimes of parricide, assassination, poisoning, and infanticide.
2. Rape, abduction by force.
3. Bigamy.
4. Arson.
5. Kidnapping, defining the same to be the taking or carrying away of a person by force or deception.
6. Robbery, highway robbery, larceny.
7. Burglary, defined to be the action of breaking and entering by night-time into the house of another person with the intent to commit a felony.
8. Counterfeiting or altering money, the introduction or fraudulent commerce of and in false coin and money; counterfeiting the certificates or obligations of the Government, of bank-notes, and of any other documents of public credit, the uttering and use of the same; forging or altering judicial judgments or decrees of the Government or courts, of the seals, dies, postage-stamps and revenue-stamps of the Government, and the use of the same; forging public and authentic deeds and documents, both commercial and of banks, and the use of the same.
9. Embezzlement of public moneys committed within the jurisdiction of either party by public officers or bailees, and embezzlement by any persons hired or salaried.
10. Fraudulent bankruptcy.
11. Fraudulent barratry.
12. Mutiny on board of a vessel, when the persons who compose the crew have taken forcible possession of the same or have transferred the ship to pirates.
13. Severe injuries intentionally caused on railroads, to telegraph-lines, or to persons by means of explosions of mines or steam-boilers.
14. Piracy.

ARTICLE III.

The provisions of the present treaty shall not be applied in any manner to any crime or offense of a purely political character, nor shall the provisions of the present treaty be applied in any manner to the crimes enumerated in the second article committed anterior to the date of the exchange of the ratifications hereof. Neither of the contracting parties shall be bound to deliver up its own citizens under the stipulations of this treaty.

ARTICLE IV.

The extradition will be granted in virtue of the demand made by the one Government on the other, with the remission of a condemnatory sentence, an order of arrest, or of any other process equivalent to such order, in which will be specified the character and gravity of the imputed acts, and the dispositions of the penal laws relative to the case. The documents accompanying the demand for extradition shall be originals or certified copies, legally authorized by the tribunals or by a competent person. If possible, there shall be remitted at the same time a descriptive list of the individual required, or any other proof towards his identity.

ARTICLE V.

If the person accused or condemned is not a citizen of either of the contracting powers, the Government granting the extradition will inform the Government of the country to which the accused or condemned may belong of the demand made, and if the last-named Government reclaims the individual on its own account for trial in its own tribunals, the Government to which was made the demand of extradition may, at will, deliver the criminal to the State in whose territories the crime was committed, or to that to which the criminal belongs. If the accused or sentenced person whose extradition may be demanded in virtue of the present convention from one of the contracting parties, should at the same time be the subject of claims from one or other Governments simultaneously for crimes or misdemeanors committed in their respective territories, he or she shall be delivered up to that Government in whose territories the offense committed was of the gravest character; and when the offenses are of like nature and gravity, the delivery will be made to the Government making the first demand; and if the dates of the demands be the same, that of the nation to which the criminal may belong will be preferred.

ARTICLE VI.

If the person claimed is accused or sentenced in the country where he may have taken refuge, for a crime or misdemeanor committed in that country, his delivery may be delayed until the definitive sentence releasing him be pronounced, or until such time as he may have complied with the punishment inflicted on him in the country where he took refuge.

ARTICLE VII.

In cases not admitting of delay, and especially in those where there is danger of escape, each of the two Governments, authorized by the order for apprehension, may, by the most expeditious means, ask and obtain the arrest of the person accused or sentenced, on condition of presenting the said order for apprehension as soon as may be possible, not exceeding four months.

ARTICLE VIII.

All expenses whatever of detention and delivery affected in virtue of the preceding provisions shall be borne and defrayed by the Government in whose name the requisition shall have been made.

ARTICLE IX.

This treaty shall commence from the date of the exchange of the ratifications, and shall continue in force until it shall be abrogated by the contracting parties or one of them; but it shall not be abrogated, except by mutual consent, unless the party desiring to abrogate it shall give twelve months' previous notice.

ARTICLE X.

The present treaty shall be ratified in conformity with the constitutions of the two countries, and the ratifications shall be exchanged at the cities of Washington or Lima, within eighteen months from the date hereof, or sooner if possible.

In witness whereof we, the Plenipotentiaries of the United States of America and the Republic of Peru, have signed and sealed these presents.

Done in the city of Lima, in duplicate, English and Spanish, this the twelfth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy.

[SEAL.] ALVIN P. HOVEY.
[SEAL.] JOSE J. LOAYZA.

And whereas the said treaty has been duly ratified on both parts, and the respective ratifications were exchanged at Lima on the twenty-eighth day of May last:

Now therefore, be it known that I, ULYSSES S. GRANT, President of the United States of America, have caused the said treaty to be made public, to the end that the same, and every clause and article thereof, may be observed and fulfilled with good faith by the United States and the citizens thereof.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this twenty-seventh day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, and in the ninety-ninth year of the Independence of the United States of America.

[SEAL.] U. S. GRANT.

By the President:
HAMILTON FISH,
Secretary of State.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.
—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!
NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters relating to the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.
PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.
THE ALDINE,
—THE—
Art Journal of America,
ISSUED MONTHLY.
"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."
The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.
THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times the cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!
The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.
The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interspersion of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustain an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.
PREMIUM FOR 1875.
Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.
"Man's Unselfish Friend"
Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.
THE ALDINE ART UNION.
The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $7,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.
TERMS.
One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,
SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.
(No charge for postage.)
Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.
THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.
CANVASSERS WANTED.
Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to The Aldine Company,
58 Maiden Lane, New York.

THE PHANTOM.

BY MARTHA REMICK.

The rain was dripping fast on the shore,
The half-spent shower the thick grass bore—
That its clover-heads and blossoms fair
Bent to the earth in the motionless air,
And the grove that stood on the river-side,
Reflected deep in the mirrored tide.

Just then on the rocks, high-heaped and gray,
Where the river sped in its rushing way,
We saw a maiden motionless stand,
With flowers held in her slender hand—
Or something else—we could hardly say;
From the shore she seemed t have made her way.

There were three of us who were watching there
A summer storm, in the summer air;
It had left the garden where we stood,
And dripped on the edge of the little wood;
But the light was strange that before us lay
On the rugged rocks, in the dying day.

Slowly the maiden vanished quite,
Or passed in the gloom from our wondering sight;
But we saw with awe that her pale pink gown,
And her shining locks of glossy brown,
Were matched in the group in the garden there.
In another maiden as slight and fair.

We called the men from the cottage door;
With their faithful dog they hurried o'er,
But near and far was their quest in vain,
As they searched the grove in the summer rain;
And with other brows they turned them back.
They had gone in vain on a phantom's track.

Our maiden faded within a year,
(Our tale is true as our tale is drear;)
In the garden we stood when the bright May bloom
Was draped o'er the sides of the gray old tomb,
And we saw her laid in the tomb to rest,
With flowers strewed on her peaceful breast.

New Publications.

The premium engraving issued by Peterson's Magazine, for 1875, is beautiful and costly. It is a first-class line and mezzotint engraving, executed in the highest style of art, after an original picture by J. W. Ehninger. The subject is Washington's first interview with his wife. The story is quite romantic. Washington, on his way to join Gen. Braddock, in the great French and Indian war of 1755, stopped, with his orderly, at the White House, since so celebrated in the Virginia campaigns of McClellan, Lee and Grant. Here he met a young and beautiful widow, with whom he was so fascinated, that the orderly, instead of being summoned within half an hour, as he had expected, led Washington's horse up and down, nearly all day, while his enamored master was listening to the gay sallies of the charming Mrs. Custis. The result is a matter of history. Mrs. Custis became the wife of the great hero, and was known in after years, as Lady Washington.

The Diamond Bracelet is by the author of "East Lynne," and will be read with interest by all who delight in the marvellous and intricately-constructed plots which are characteristic of the writings of this author. Mrs. Henry Wood has a remarkable faculty of charming her readers with the skill with which she puts all her characters on the stage, of multiplying her plots, of sustaining her dialogues, and of intensifying all her minor incidents. "The Diamond Bracelet" will not be laid aside without eager perusal to the end, for the interest never flags for a moment. It is in these respects lies the secret of Mrs. Wood's great popularity as a novelist, and the cause of her works becoming so immensely popular.

The Story Of Mrs. Barker.

[Max Adeler.]

The statement floating about in the papers to the effect that "a jealous Indianapolis woman has just made her thirteenth ineffectual attempt at suicide," reminds me of the case of Mrs. Barker, of Harrisburg. She attempted to poison herself twenty-three times, but was always saved by the judicious use of a stomach pump by her friends. She was life and hope and comfort and bread and butter to the newspaper reporters, and they thought so much of her that at last they got up a little testimonial in the shape of a silver-plated stomach pump, with a gutta percha piston and bell metal valves, inscribed with the sentiment, "May she never succeed!" Some of her friends gave a little collation at the time, and after it was eaten somebody proposed to test the apparatus on one of the reporters. They say that meeting then adjourned suddenly.

—The American Agriculturist for October says to farmers: "If there is one admonition that is more timely than another just now, it is to push the fall work ahead. Some kinds of work must be done, whatever the weather may be. There is other work that may be postponed. Out-door work may be done in the fine October weather for half the same work would cost during sleet and cold rains in November. The fore-handed man always has the most leisure. He is never in a hurry. Hurried work is always poorly done. The farmer who is hurried and behind time works twice as hard as he needs to do, never has a leisure day, and yet loses money. Late sown or late gathered crops are always deficient, or defective in quality. With our magnificent autumn weather, there is no excuse for being caught with necessary work on hand, when snow and storms are in season."

—The people on the Androscoggin, Me., still tell the story of a man who, some fifty years ago, called at the house of a neighbor, half a mile from his own house, early in the morning, when the family were at the breakfast table, and, after the usual salutation, seated himself in a chair, and on being asked to sit up and eat some breakfast, answered: "I don't suppose I ought to stop, for our house is on fire, and they sent me to tell you!"

—Professor Purser believes that the speed of the earth's revolution is gradually being retarded by the moon's influence upon the tides, that the days and nights will some time become a month long. The "night owls" of the present generation will hardly bring the latter part of the theory to a demonstration, however, as a thousand million years or so must first elapse.

—Civil rights—obliging answers.

Daily Chronicle.

The Elections.

Returns from Tuesday's elections are incomplete. In Ohio, the temperance issue had much to do with the campaign, as the democratic platform favored license while the republican platform took strong grounds in favor of the enforcement of the liquor laws. This question no doubt has caused the loss of many votes to the republicans in the cities, but again in the rural districts in many counties independent tickets were in the field, and much scratching has been the result, which will greatly delay the getting of trustworthy figures. The republicans concede the State to the democrats by 15,000 majority. Seven republicans and thirteen democrats are elected to Congress, a democratic gain of six. The Cincinnati Gazette says: "On the platform of repudiation, inflation, anti-temperance and general cussedness the democratic party has carried Ohio by a decided majority."

In Indiana, the contest is close. The republicans carry both branches of the legislature, which is to choose a U. S. Senator. Seven republicans and six democrats are probably elected to Congress, a republican loss of two.

In Iowa, the republican State ticket has 30,000 majority. The nine Congressmen elect are republicans, the democrats and independents failing to elect any.

In West Virginia, the republicans elect one Congressman, Hon. Nathan Goff, Jr., in the first district, and Hon. Alex. R. Boteler, independent democrat, in the second. Hon. Charles J. Faulkner, democrat, is chosen in the third district—a republican gain of one.

The republicans carry Nebraska by 10,000 majority. Two republican Congressmen are chosen. The legislature will have 28 republican majority, securing a republican U. S. Senator in place of Tipton.

Arkansas adopts the new constitution by 15,000 majority.

In Dakota Territory, Kidder, republican, is chosen delegate to Congress by 2000 majority.

Newark, New Jersey, gives 649 majority to the republican city ticket. The city councils are democratic.

Thus far the democrats have made a net gain of seven Congressmen in a total of fifty-four already chosen.

Readables.

Large bodies of hot water are struck by the workmen in the Consolidated Virginia mine in Nevada, making the atmosphere very oppressive.

An air-brake, designed to prevent the "racing" of the engines on steamships when the propeller is lifted out of the water by a heavy sea, has been invented in England and is said to have been successfully tested.

Lowell has suffered, and is now suffering, less from the depression in business than most of the cities of the country. None of the mills have wholly stopped; the reduction of wages has not been great; and there is no such number of shops and dwelling houses vacant as in most other cities.

Pittsburg, Pa., has forbidden all sidewalk traffic within the city limits, and proprietors of peanut stands and other temporary business places are in grief.

The London Times, commenting on the iron trade of South Staffordshire, says that makers of tubes and other classes of heavy wrought iron work affirm that they cannot successfully compete with American and Belgian firms until the standard for marked bars is reduced to £9, it now being £12.

There is a firm of brass and copper wire manufacturers in Scotland who have made a penny go further than ever the thriftiest Scotchman could make it, having drawn it out into 2700 feet, or more than half a mile of wire.

Elizabeth Tilton's illness arises from mental anxiety which has depressed her whole system.

The Forest brothers, gymnasts, were performing at Music Hall, Portland, in the flying leap, where one of the men swings from a trapeze thirty feet above the audience, and is caught by the other. The latter did not catch him, and he fell among the audience beneath. His fall was partially broken by two attendants, who endeavored to catch him, and, fortunately he was but slightly injured. There was the greatest excitement, some women fainting and others shrieking.

Hon. Eli Thayer, formerly a republican Congressman from the Worcester, Mass., district, has been nominated to run against Congressman Hoar by the democrats.

A case is on trial in the United States Circuit Court, at Portland, Me., before Judge Fox, which involves the right to recover damages when injured while riding on a free pass. Ansel Stevens sues the Grand Trunk Railway to recover for personal injuries, alleged to have been occasioned by cars running off an embankment near Soixante, May 1, 1871, and which he alleges was caused by a defective track. At the time of the accident he was travelling on the road, with reference to mutual negotiations as to the adoption by the railway company of his patented coupler, and had an "employe's pass," on which is the usual endorsement. At the time of the accident, the plaintiff was in the Pullman car, and had paid the usual fare for a sleeping berth.

An attempt was made to wreck a train on the Eastern Railroad, between Wenham and Strangman's crossing, on the evening of the 13th, by placing a large stone on the track. The engine knocked it clear of the track.

The Montreal express train for Boston, by way of the Southeastern Railroad and Plymouth, was thrown from the track a little after midnight on the 13th, when about half a mile south of Woodsville. It was going at about 25 miles an hour. The engine went down a dump a distance of 30 feet and was turned completely over and badly smashed up. The engineer, Mr. Swazey, was stunned and bruised but not seriously injured. The whole train, excepting the sleeping car, went down the dump, but no passenger was injured. The cause of the accident is thought to have been the engine striking a joint in the track and climbing a rail.

Steam tug Topham exploded her boiler at Bath, Me., on the 14th, killing one man and fatally wounding another.

The papers in Tilton's suit against the Brooklyn Eagle for $100,000 damages have been filed.

A correspondent of the Memphis Appeal says that laziness is the cause of the want of prosperity in many districts of the South. In a distance of one hundred miles he saw only two persons at work in the fields, and one of them stopped to throw a stone at the train as it passed. Great numbers of whites and blacks were standing about doing nothing, while the fields were white with cotton, and the weather propitious for gathering it.

Sailing With A Kite.

[N. Y. Graphic.]

Some time ago the press despatches all over the country chronicled the execution of a most singular and interesting voyage in a small boat drawn by kite power some distance out upon Long Island Sound. The telegraphic accounts gave but a meagre description of the apparatus used, and told more fully of the excursion itself, the roughness of the water, the number of miles sailed, and what was more remarkable, the ability of the navigator to direct the boat so as to land at a desirable point on the shore. This information whetted the appetite of every reader who, never having heard since the famous voyage of Dædalus and Icarus of any aerial machine one-half so novel, yearned for further facts. With a view to satisfying this desire we present what is known of the machine and the trips. After making the first voyage from Seaside Park, Bridgeport, to Port Jefferson on the Sound, the inventor of the kite made many changes in its construction, and has since performed another even more remarkable feat. The inventor is Mr. John F. Lacey, a citizen of Bridgeport, and an enthusiast over the experiments he is making. His kite is named the "Great Mogul," and is a very elaborate machine. When widespread and ready for service, its wings present a width of six and one-half feet and a length of nine feet. Its weight, without the tail, is only four pounds and it can be folded compactly like an umbrella. The tail which it unfolds has a length of 130 feet. The framework of this monster kite is constructed after the ordinary pattern, of white ash sticks, and these are held together in the centre by a pin or pivot upon which they turn, and are brought longitudinally together when the kite is folded and out of use. The cover is of white muslin, and can be drawn on and off the frame to which it fits by slits for the reception of the ends of the sticks. The cord is attached to the cover, and not, as in other kites, to the frame. This cord is very stout, and is about five hundred feet in length. The "Great Mogul" is gaudily ornamented with a classical bird upon which the critics disagree, although it is generally conceded to be an eagle. On Wednesday, when a light westerly breeze ruffled the surface of the Sound, Mr. Lacey prepared himself for a second trip, with a view to testing the working qualities of the apparatus in its improved condition. He attached the Great Mogul this time to a small boat named the Fancy, and at twenty-five minutes past eleven A. M. started from Seaside Park with only his faith in the kite and a knowledge of navigation to assure him of safety. A Mr. Ferguson accompanied him.

Early in the trip a westerly breeze was encountered and the Fancy was headed as far south as possible. She attained unusual speed. When four or five miles out beyond Stratford Point, the waves became turbulent, and every mile found them rougher. The little boat danced and tumbled, but the kite pulled them steadily on. A very little of this satisfied Mr. Lacey and his compagnon du voyage, and they considered it desirable to make a landing. They turned somewhat and the wind, too, shifted, so that in an hour Stratford Point was passed. An eastward-bound schooner here joined company with the navigators, and both vessels kept side by side, within talking distance, for some time. Soon the wind veered again, this time towards the south, and Mr. Lacey was enabled to head for the shore, and landed his little boat at half-past two, just three hours and five minutes from the time of starting—at Savin Rock—where the "Great Mogul" was pulled in, rolled up, and taken home. Mr. Lacey will make no more trips this winter, but next year, probably, with alterations and improvements, he will contine his experiments.

Business Notices.

The Prince of Wales' Last.

His Royal Highness has been detected in many an act which has startled the Queen, the last of which is said to be the ordering of $20,000 worth of tickets for the Public Library of Kentucky. Her Majesty, it is stated, did not object to his buying liberally, but in the present condition of the Prince's finances, she thought $20,000 worth was too much for him to invest. It is asserted that he insisted on sending his order to Governor Bramlette, assuring his royal mother that he knew what he was about, for that as $2,500,000 was to be distributed to the ticket holders on November 30, and in such gifts as $250,000, $100,000, &c., he would have a splendid chance at one of these splendid prizes, and thus easily pay his debts.

Well Worth Reading.

Who is there that does not desire to be always exempted from indigestion—to have a good appetite, a painless stomach, a clear head, a regular pulse, a healthy complexion? If this meets the eye of any who are not thus blessed, let them try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. We guarantee that this delightful tonic will restore any stomach, however weak, to a healthy condition; that it will bring back the truant appetite, and give permanent vigor to the whole system. The feeble and emaciated, suffering from dyspepsia or indigestion in any form, are advised, for the sake of their own bodily and mental comfort, to try it. Ladies of the most delicate constitution testify to its harmless and restorative properties. Physicians everywhere, disgusted with the adulterated liquors of commerce, prescribe it as the safest and most reliable of all stomachics.

The Ancient Egyptians learned the art of preserving their bodies for many generations, but all the world have not been able to discover an infallible preventative that will stop the hair from falling off Bearine is without doubt the safest dressing, and is also the most delightful preparation to use, ever made. 8

Piano and Singing.

THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. "Fanchon."

Maggie Mitchell, whose popularity in the large cities in the various characters she has assumed has been equalled by no lady on the American stage, makes her first bow to a Portsmouth audience this evening at the Temple. The fact that all but eighty reserved seats were taken in two days is evidence that Maggie needs no introduction, her fame having long preceded her. The character of "Fanchon" seems inseparable from her, and her greatest triumphs have been in its rendering. Piquant, vivacious and pathetic by turns, she takes audiences by storm, whether dashing in among the more favored peasants and leading the May-pole dance, or grieving over her hard lot while the merry scenes she has left are yet fresh in memory. The house will be crowded of course, and we hope the management will feel sufficiently encouraged by the reception accorded the sprightly little favorite to return again for more than one night.

Be Truthful.

If there is any one thing we do not enjoy it is being misrepresented. The organ of the new city government has of late been endeavoring to apologize for the extra city election last month, (which cost the taxpayers about $1000, and entailed on the city a constantly increasing expense,) by inventing tales of republican corruption that have no foundation except in imagination. Referring to the republican majorities in certain wards at the late election, it said in a recent issue: "The CHRONICLE boasted that to reach even that figure they resorted to buying committee men and others." We made no such statement and were not aware that any democratic committee men were for sale. If any were bought, why does not our neighbor mention their names, the prices paid, and the names of the purchaser; and prove the statement, instead of resorting to falsehoods such as the one we quote? We do not wonder that democratic "committee men and others" having an inside view of the outrages perpetrated by democratic selectmen should conclude to deposit their votes in a manner that would tend to rebuke such infamous proceedings.

Laconics.

When you come again Maggie, "The Pearl of Savoy" will be a very acceptable presentation to a Portsmouth audience.

Just as we predicted, the best tickets were all sold a week before the opening night. A few good reserved seats remain unsold. We hope the managers will not overcrowd the Temple by the sale of evening tickets after all the seating capacity of the Temple is occupied. They seem desirous of pleasing their patrons, and we have no doubt will take every precaution to avoid annoying the ticket holders by a too free issue of evening tickets.

Mate Hugh Kuhl has been detached from duty at the receiving ship Sabine and ordered to the steam tug Speedwell.

According to recent issues of the Times the republican majorities in old Wards One and Two were reduced from 414 to 125 solely for the reason that the republican ward officials formerly returned 300 or 400 majority "more than they had;" and solely for the reason that the "vote-mill" did not work well; while the increase of democratic majority in the Third Ward was due to "poor folks." Don't slop over, child, or you will overdo the thing. If there were 400 votes too many returned, there must have been quite a republican gain in spite of the 200 illegal voters on the September lists, and navy yard "intimidation" is proved an imaginary evil. If the navy yard work makes a great difference, however, then is the 400-votes-too-many yarn untrue.

On Wednesday, the 14th, workmen engaged in digging in the Franklin House yard unearthed an English copper piece of the size of an old-fashioned cent bearing date 1223. Ex-City Marshal Johnson became its happy possessor for two dimes and a half-dime.

Archibald A. Peterson, Esq., President of the New York Association of Sons of Portsmouth, died in that city on the 12th inst. Mr. Peterson took an active part in the Reunions of 1853 and 1873, being Chief Marshal of the New York delegation in 1853. He was one of the most earnest advocates of the celebrations and contributed freely toward their success by example and influence. His decease will be regretted by thousands who remember his kindliness of heart and generous impulses. Funeral services will be held to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock, at the Universalist church. Members of Piscataqua Lodge, No. 6, I. O. O. F., are notified by an advertisement elsewhere to attend.

—A company for the manufacture of paper barrels and similar utensils has been organized in San Francisco. The wheat straw which has hitherto been turned by the farmers may in future be used in making barrels for shipping the very wheat it bore.

—"What can we do," inquire the Methodist ministers, 'to make Sabbath schools more interesting?" And an unregenerate publican suggests, "take the boys out fishing."

—Despite judicial decisions, English very-high-churchmen are determined to adhere to genuflexion, because it's rite.

The Very Alps of Impudence.

Policeman Badger, of the Tenth Station, had a bit of experience the other night, which he is not fond of talking about. It was past midnight as he was leisurely pushing his beat through Jessops street, and as he came opposite to Drayton & Fogg's jewelry store he observed gleams of light through the chinks of the shutters, and he rapped at the door.

"Is that you, policeman?" asked a voice within.

"Yes," answered Badger.

"Well—it's only me—it's all right. Kind o'chilly out, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Thought so. I was just fixing the fire—good night."

Badger said "Good night," and pursued his way.

An hour afterward Badger passed through Jessops street again, and again he saw the light in the jewelry store. It didn't look right, and he banged at the door loudly.

"Hallo!" cried the voice within. "Is it you, policeman?"

"Yes."

"All right. Won't you come in and warm you? It won't hurt anything for you to slip from your beat a few minutes."

The door opened and Policeman Badger entered, and he found the inmate to be a very gentlemanly-looking man, in a linen duster.

"Come right up to the stove, policeman. Excuse me for a moment."

The man took the ash pan from the bottom of the stove and carried it down into the cellar and emptied it, and when he had returned and wiped his hands he said, with a smile:

"Chilly night, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Chilly outside and dull inside. [Another smile.] New goods for the spring trade, and have to keep our eyes open. Lonesome work, this watching all night, but I manage to find a bit of comfort in this. Won't you join me in a tip? You'll find it the pure thing."

And the man produced a black bottle and a tumbler.

Policeman Badger partook, and having wiped his lips and given his fingers a new warming, he left the store and resumed his beat, satisfied that all was right at Drayton & Fogg's.

But the morning brought a new revelation. Drayton & Fogg's store had been robbed during the night of $6,000 worth of watches and jewelry, and although Policeman Badger carries in his mind a complete daguerreotype of the robber, the adroit rascal has not yet been found.

A Bear in Court.

[Tiffin Tribune.]

Last week, in Clyde, a rather amusing incident took place. A man was in town with a performing bear—one of those burly, growling fellows, that look dangerous. Several horses were frightened by the animal, when the Marshal arrested the keeper and took him before the Mayor, the bear going along ostensibly to see fair play. The Mayor's office and the Council room are together, and the Council happened to be in session. The Marshal stated his complaint, and the keeper of the bear was asked what he had to say. Before answering the fellow stepped on one of the bear's feet, and ordered him to stand on his hind legs. The animal obeyed at once, and opened his meat destroyer to its fullest capacity. His demonstrations were so vicious that the Council retired in haste, some going by the windows. Stuffey, of the Independent, and Sweetland, of the Review, stood near the door, and when the bear opened his mantrap they ran a race to see who should get out the soonest. At the door their legs became entangled, and they rolled to the bottom of the stairs together, each one ahead half the time. When they landed they simultaneously exclaimed, "What in thunder are you running that way for?" In the meantime the Mayor was in a corner and could not escape, but he boldly spoke to the keeper in the following legal language: "Take your — bear and go to — with it." The fellow immediately retired, and taking the Mayor at his word, went straight to Fremont. He was arrested there, but got off by a similar move to the one above recited.

How Nice!

A paper published in Rockport, Texas, prints a notice of a marriage at a Methodist camp-ground near that place, and then uses up "flowery language" as follows:

The place romantic, under the wide spreading branches of the evergreen Live Oaks, where the wild savage once lit his council fire, and indulged in the scalp and war dance, but which for ten days or more had re-echoed with the preached word of God, with the lamps shedding their light on green leaf and sturdy trunk, and casting weird shadows around, this couple stood up before the venerable minister of the Most High, and with vows emphatic and solemn were made one. It was a scene to impress the mind, and which seen would scarcely ever be forgotten. May those most interested ever carry it in their hearts. We wish the happy pair many blessings, and return them thanks for favors.

"That Settles It."

Two clergymen of a certain city, one the rector of an Episcopal church, and the other a minister of the Methodist persuasion, bore precisely the same name. The similarity of address led to some unfortunate contretemps. Letters and parcels addressed to one J. C. B., went often to the other J. C. B. On one occasion the rector became angry on opening a parcel not intended for him, and wrote a note, which he addressed to "Mr." J. C. B.: "Sir; If you had not assumed a title to which you had no right this mistake could not have occurred. Your obedient servant, J. C. B., rector, etc." Our Methodist friend bided the time in silence. Not long after, he, too, opened a parcel intended for his high church brother. It contained a considerable supply of manuscript sermons, on returning which the dissenting brother addressed the following retort courteous to his opponent: "Rev. Sir: If you had not undertaken an office for which you are wholly unfit, this accident could not have occurred. Your obedient servant, J. C. B."

—Mrs. Giaccommetti Prodgers is a London female with a mission, which is to resist the unlawful demands of exorbitant cabmen. She takes a ride in a cab, and then, if the driver charges her one penny more than the legal fare, she summons him, and he is punished according to the statute. If Mrs. Prodgers could be induced to emigrate to America, she would find an abundant field for the exercise of her talents.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school or the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 2 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 2. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. LAWS

OF THE

UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

TREATY

BETWEEN

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND THE REPUBLIC OF PERU.

FRIENDSHIP, COMMERCE, AND NAVIGATION.

Concluded September 6, 1870.
Ratification advised by Senate March 31, 1871.
Ratified by President April 11, 1871.
Ratified by President of Peru May 28, 1874.
Time for exchange of ratifications extended June 5, 1873.
Ratifications exchanged at Lima May 28, 1874.
Proclaimed July 27, 1874.

The time originally fixed for the exchange of the ratifications having unavoidably elapsed, was extended, by a formal agreement of the parties, to November 9, 1874, within which time that ceremony took place, in the usual form.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas a treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation, between the United States of America and the Republic of Peru, was coacluded and signed by their respective Plenipotentiaries at Lima on the sixth day of September, in the year eighteen hundred and seventy, the original of which treaty, being in the English and Spanish languages, is, word for word, as follows:

Treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation between the United States of America and the Republic of Peru.

The United States of America and the Republic of Peru, being equally animated with the desire to render firm and permanent the peace and friendship which have always so happily subsisted between them, and to place their commercial relations upon the most liberal basis, have resolved to fix clear and precise rules, which shall in future be religiously observed between the two nations, by means of a treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation. To attain this desirable object, the President of the United States of America has conferred full powers on Alvin P. Hovey, the accredited Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the said State to the Government of Peru; and the President of Peru has conferred like full powers upon Doctor Jose Jorge Loayza, Minister of Foreign Affairs; who, after exchanging their respective full powers, found to be in good and true form, have agreed upon and concluded the following articles:

ARTICLE I.

There shall be perfect and perpetual peace and friendship between the United States of America and the Republic of Peru, and between their respective territories, people, and citizens, without distinction of persons or places.

ARTICLE II.

The United States of America and the Republic of Peru mutually agree that there shall be reciprocal liberty of commerce and navigation between their respective territories and citizens; the citizens of either republic may frequent with their vessels all the coasts, perts, and places of the other, wherever foreign commerce is permitted, and reside in all parts of the territory of either, and occupy the dwellings and warehouses which they may require; and everything belonging thereto shall be respected, and shall not be subjected to any arbitrary visits or search. The said citizens shall have full liberty to trade in all parts of the territories of either, according to the rules established by the respective regulations of commerce, in all kinds of goods, merchandise, manufactures, and produce not prohibited to all, and to open retail stores and shops under the same municipal and police regulations as native citizens; and they shall not in this respect be liable to any other or higher taxes or imposts than those which are or may be paid by native citizens. The citizens of either country shall also have the unrestrained right to travel in any part of the possessions of the other, and shall in all cases enjoy the same security and protection as the natives of the country wherein they reside, on condition of their submitting to the laws and ordinances there prevailing; they shall not be called upon for any forced loan or extraordinary contribution for any military expedition, or for any public purpose whatever, nor shall they be liable to any embargo, or be detained with their vessels, cargoes, merchandise, goods, or effects, without being allowed therefore a full and sufficient indemnification, which shall in all cases be agreed upon and paid in advance.

ARTICLE III.

The two high contracting parties hereby bind and engage themselves not to grant any favor, privilege, or immunity whatever, in matters of commerce and navigation, to other nations, which shall not be immediately extended also to the citizens of the other contracting party, who shall enjoy the same, gratuitously if the concession shall have been gratuitous, or on giving a compensation as nearly as possible of proportionate value and effect, to be adjusted by mutual agreement, if the concession shall have been conditional.

ARTICLE IV.

No higher or other duties, or charges on account of tonnage, light-houses or harbor dues, pilotage, quarantine, salvage in case of damage or shipwreck, or any other local charges, shall be imposed in any ports of Peru, on vessels of the United States, than those payable in the same ports by Peruvian vessels; nor in any of the ports of the United States by Peruvian vessels, than shall be payable in the same ports by vessels of the United States.

ARTICLE V.

All kinds of merchandise and articles of commerce which may be lawfully imported into the ports and territories of either of the high contracting parties in national vessels may also be so imported in vessels of the other party without paying other or higher duties or charges, of any kind or denomination whatever, than if the same merchandise and articles of commerce were imported in national vessels; nor shall any distinction be made in the manner of making payment of the said duties or charges. It is expressly understood that the stipulations in this and the preceding article are to their full extent applicable to the vessels, and their cargoes, belonging to either of the high contracting parties arriving in the ports and territories of the other, whether the said vessels have cleared directly from the ports of the country to which they appertain, or from the ports of any other nation.

ARTICLE VI.

No higher or other duties or charges shall be imposed or levied upon the importation into the ports and territories of either of the high contracting parties of any article, the produce, growth, or manufacture of the other party, than are, or shall be, payable on the like article, being the produce, growth, or manufacture of any other country; nor shall any prohibition be imposed upon the importation of any article, the produce, growth, or manufacture of either party, into the ports or territories of the other, which shall not equally extend to all other nations.

ARTICLE VII.

All kinds of merchandise and articles of commerce which may be lawfully exported from the ports and territories of either of the high contracting parties in national vessels, may also be exported in vessels of the other party; and they shall be subject to the same duties only, and be entitled to the same drawbacks, bounties, and allowances, whether the same merchandise and articles of commerce be exported in vessels of the one party or in vessels of the other party.

ARTICLE VII.

It is hereby declared that the stipulations of the present treaty are not to be understood as applying to the navigation and coasting trade between one port and another, situated in the territories of either contracting party, the regulation of such navigation and trade being reserved respectively by the parties according to their own separate laws. Vessels of either country shall, however, be permitted to discharge part of their cargoes at one port open to foreign commerce in the territories of either of the high contracting parties, and to proceed with the remainder of their cargo to any other port or ports of the same territories open to foreign commerce, without paying other or higher tonnage-dues or port-charges in such cases than would be paid by national vessels in like circumstances; and they shall be permitted to load in like manner at different ports in the same voyage outward.

ARTICLE IX.

The Republic of Peru, desiring to increase the intercourse along its coasts by means of steam-navigation, hereby engages to accord to any citizen or citizens of the United States, who may establish a line of steam-vessels to navigate regularly between the different ports of entry within the Peruvian territories, the same privileges of taking in and landing freight and cargo, entering the by-ports for the purpose of receiving and landing passengers and their baggage, specie and bullion, carrying the public mails, establishing depots for coal, erecting the necessary machine and work-shops for repairing and refitting the steam-vessels, and all other favors enjoyed by any other association or company whatsoever. It is further-more understood between the two high contracting parties that the steam-vessels of either shall not be subject in the ports of the other party to any duties of tonnage, harbor, or other similar duties whatsoever, than those that are or may be paid by any other association or company.

ARTICLE X.

For the better understanding of the preceding articles, and taking into consideration the actual state of the commercial marine of Peru, it is stipulated and agreed that every vessel belonging exclusively to a citizen or citizens of the said republic, and of which the captain is also a citizen of the same, though the construction or the crew is or may be foreign, shall be considered, for all of the objects of this treaty, as a Peruvian vessel.

ARTICLE XI.

The merchants, commanders, or masters of vessels, and other citizens of either contracting party, shall be wholly free to manage their own business and affairs in all the ports and places within the jurisdiction of the other, or to commit their business and affairs to the management of any person whom they may choose to appoint as agent, factor, consignee, or interpreter. They shall not be restrained in the choice of persons to act in such capacities, or be compelled to pay any salary or remuneration to any one whom they do not wish to employ. Absolute freedom shall be given, as well with respect to the consignment and sale of their merchandise and articles of commerce, as to the purchase of their returns, unloading, loading, and sending off their vessels. The buyer and seller shall have full liberty to bargain together and fix the price of any merchandise or articles of commerce imported into or to be exported from the territories of either contracting party, the regulations of commerce established in the respective countries being in every case duly observed.

ARTICLE XII.

The citizens of either of the high contracting parties shall have the full power and liberty to dispose of their personal and real estate and effects of every kind and description, within the jurisdiction of the other, by sale, donation, testament, or otherwise; and their heirs or representatives, being citizens of the other party, shall succeed to the said personal and real estate and effects, whether by testament or ab intestato, and may take possession of the same themselves or by others acting for them, and dispose of the same at their pleasure, paying such dues only as the citizens of the country wherein said estate and effects may be shall be subject to pay in like cases.

ARTICLE XIII.

If any vessel belonging to the citizens of either of the high contracting parties should be wrecked, suffer damage, or be left derelict on or near the coasts, within the territories of the other, all assistance and protection shall be given to such vessel and her crew; and the vessel, or any part thereof, and all furniture and appurtenances belonging thereto, together with all the merchandise which shall be saved therefrom, or the produce thereof, if sold, shall be faithfully restored to the owners or their agents, they paying only the expenses incurred in the preservation of the property, together with the rate of salvage which would have been payable, in like case, by national vessels; and it shall be permitted for them to unload the merchandise and effects on board, with the proper precautions to prevent their illicit introduction, without exacting in such cases any duty, impost, or contribution whatever, provided the same be exported.

ARTICLE XIV.

When through stress of weather, want of water or provisions, pursuit of enemies or pirates, the vessels of one of the high contracting parties, whether of war, (public or private,) or of trade, or employed in fishing, shall be forced to seek shelter in the ports, rivers, bays, and dominions of the other, they shall be received and treated with humanity; sufficient time shall be allowed for the completion of repairs, and while any vessel may be undergoing them, its cargo shall not unnecessarily be required to be landed either in whole or in part; all assistance and protection shall be given to enable the vessels to procure supplies, and to place them in a condition to pursue their voyage without obstacle or hindrance.

ARTICLE XV.

All vessels, merchandise, and effects belonging to the citizens of either of the high contracting parties, which may be captured by pirates either on the high seas or within the limits of its jurisdiction, and may be carried into or found in the rivers, roads, bays, ports, or dominions of the other, shall be delivered up to the owners or their agents, they proving, in due and proper form, their rights before the competent tribunals, it being understood that the claim thereto shall be made within two years by the owners themselves, their agents, or the agents of the respective Governments.

ARTICLE XVI.

The high contracting parties promise and engage to give full and perfect protection to the persons and property of the citizens of each other, of all classes and occupations, who may be dwelling or transient in the territories subject to their respective jurisdiction; the shall have free and open access to the tribunals of justice for their judicial recourse, on the same terms as are usual and customary with natives or citizens of the country in which they may be; and they shall be at liberty to employ, in all causes, the advocates, attorneys, notaries, or agents, of whatever description, whom they may think proper. The said citizens shall not be liable to imprisonment without formal commitment under a warrant signed by a legal authority, except in cases flagrante delicti; and they shall in all cases be brought before a magistrate or other legal authority for examination within twenty-four hours after arrest; and if not so examined, the accused shall forthwith be discharged from custody. Said citizens, when detained in prison, shall be treated, during their imprisonment, with humanity, and no unnecessary severity shall be exercised toward them.

ARTICLE XVII.

It is likewise agreed that perfect and entire liberty of conscience shall be enjoyed by the citizens of both the contracting parties in the countries subject to the jurisdiction of the one or the other, without their being liable to be disturbed or molested on account of their religious belief, so long as they respect the laws and established usages of the country. Moreover, the bodies of the citizens of one of the contracting parties who may die in the territories of the other shall be buried in the usual burying-grounds, or in other decent and suitable places, and shall be protected from violation or disturbances.

ARTICLE XVIII.

The citizens of the United States of America and of the Republic of Peru may sail with their vessels, with entire freedom and security, from any port to the ports or places, of those who now are, or hereafter shall be, the enemies of either of the contracting parties, whoever may be the owners of the merchandise laden in the said vessels. The same citizens shall also be allowed to sail with their vessels, and to carry and traffic with their merchandise, from the ports and places of the enemies of both parties, or of one of them, without any hindrance, not only to neutral ports and places, but also from one port belonging to an enemy to another enemy's port, whether they be under the jurisdiction of one power or of several. And it is agreed that free ships shall give freedom to goods, and that everything shall be deemed free which shall be found on board the vessels belonging to the citizens of either of the contracting parties, although the whole lading, or a part thereof, should belong to the enemies of either, articles contraband of war being always excepted. The same liberty shall be extended to persons who may be on board free ships, so that said persons cannot be taken out of them, even if they may be enemies of both parties, or of one of them, unless they are officers or soldiers in the actual service of the enemy. It is agreed that the stipulations in this article declaring that the flag shall cover the property shall be understood as applying to those nations only who recognize this principle; but if either of the contracting parties shall be at war with a third, and the other shall remain neutral, the flag of the neutral shall cover the property of enemies whose Governments acknowledge this principle, and not that of others.

ARTICLE XIX.

When the neutral flag of one of the contracting parties shall protect the property of the enemies of the other, in virtue of the preceding article, neutral property found on board enemies' vessels shall likewise be considered as enemies' property, and shall be subject to detention and confiscation, unless it shall have been put on board before the declaration of war, or, even afterwards, if it were done without knowledge of such declaration; but the contracting parties agree that ignorance cannot be alleged after the lapse of six months from the declaration of war; on the contrary, in those cases where the flag of the neutral does not protect enemies' property which may be found on board, the goods or merchandise of the neutral embarked in enemies' vessels shall be free.

ARTICLE XX.

The liberty of commerce and navigation stipulated for in the preceding articles shall extend to all kinds of merchandise, except the articles called contraband of war, under which name shall be comprehended:

1. Cannons, mortars, howitzers, swivels, blunderbusses, muskets, fusees, rifles, carbines, pistols, pikes, swords, sabres, lances, spears, halberds, grenades, bombs, powder, matches, balls, torpedoes, and everything belonging to the use of these arms.

2. Bucklers, helmets, breast-plates, coats of mail, accoutrements, and clothes made up in military form and for military use.

3. Cavalry belts and horses, with their harnesses.

4. And, generally, all offensive and defensive arms made of iron, steel, brass, copper, or any other material, prepared and formed to make war by land or at sea.

ARTICLE XXI.

All other merchandise and things not comprehended in the articles of contraband explicitly enumerated and classified as above shall be held and considered as free, and subjects of free and lawful commerce, so that they may be carried and transported in the freest manner by both the contracting parties, even to places belonging to an enemy, excepting only those places which are that time besieged or blockaded; and to avoid all doubt in this particular, it is declared that those places only shall be considered as besieged or blockaded which are actually invested or attacked by a force capable of preventing the entry of the neutral.

ARRICLE XXII.

The articles of contraband, or those before enumerated and classified, which may be found in a vessel bound for an enemy's port, shall be subject to detention and confiscation, but the rest of the cargo and the ship shall be left free, that the owners may dispose of them as they see proper. No vessel of either of the contracting parties shall be detained on the high seas on account of having on board articles of contraband, whenever the master, captain, or supercargo of said vessel will deliver up the articles of contraband to the captor, unless, indeed, the quantity of such articles be so great, or of so large bulk, that they cannot be received on board the capturing vessel without great inconvenience; but in this, and in all other cases of just detention, the vessel detained shall be sent to the nearest convenient and safe port for trial and judgment, according to law.

ARTICLE XXIII.

And whereas it frequently happens that vessels sail for a port or place belonging to an enemy without knowing that the same is besieged, blockaded, or invested, it is agreed that every vessel so circumstanced may be turned away from such port or place, but shall not be detained; nor shall any part of her cargo, if not contraband, be confiscated, unless, after having been warned of such blockade or investment by a commanding officer of a vessel forming part of the blockading forces, she again attempts to enter; but she shall be permitted to go to any other port or place the master or supercargo may think proper. Nor shall any vessel of either party that may have entered into such port or place before the same was actually besieged, blockaded, or invested by the other, be restrained from leaving it with her cargo, nor if found therein before or after the reduction or surrender, shall such vessel or her cargo be liable to seizure, confiscation, or any demand on the score of redemption or restitution, but the owners thereof shall remain in the undisturbed possession of their property. And if any vessel having thus entered the port before the blockade took place shall take on board a cargo after the blackade be established and attempt to depart, she may be warned by the blockading forces to return to the blockaded port and discharge the said cargo; and if, after receiving such warning, the vessel shall persist in going out with the cargo, she shall be liable to the same consequences as in the case of a vessel attempting to enter a blockaded port after having been warned off by the blockading forces.

ARTICLE XXIV.

To prevent disorder and irregularity in visiting and examining the vessels and cargoes of both the contracting parties on the high seas, they have agreed mutually that whenever a vessel of war, public or private, shall meet with a neutral of the other party, the former shall remain at the greatest distance compatible with the possibility and safety of making the visit, under the circumstances of wind and sea, and the degree of suspicion attending the vessel to be visited, and shall send one of her small boats with no more men than may be necessary to execute the said examination of the papers concerning the ownership and cargo of the vessel, without causing the least extortion, violence, or ill-treatment, in respect of which the commanders of said armed vessels shall be responsible with their persons and property; for which purpose the commanders of said private armed vessels shall, before receiving their commissions, give sufficient security to answer for all the injuries and damages they may commit. And it is expressly agreed that the neutral party shall in no case be required to go on board of the examining vessel for the purpose of exhibiting the ship's papers, nor for any other purpose whatever.

ARTICLE XXV.

Both contracting parties likewise agree that when one of them shall be engaged in in war, the vessels of the other must be furnished with sea-letters, patents, or passports, in which shall be expressed the name, burden of the vessels, and the name and place of residence of the owner and master, or captain thereof, in order that it may appear that the vessel really and truly belongs to citizens of the said other party. It is also agreed that such vessel, being laden, besides the said sea-letters, patents, or passports, shall be provided with manifests or certificates containing the particulars of the cargo, and the place where it was taken on board, so that it may be known whether any part of the same consists of contraband or prohibited articles; which certificate shall be made out in the accustomed form by the authorities of the port whence the vessel sailed, without which requisites the vessel may be detained, to be adjudged by the competent tribunals, and may be declared good and legal prize, unless it shall be proved that the said defect or omission was owing to accident, or unless it shall be satisfied or supplied by testimony equivalent in the opinion of the said tribunals, for which purpose there shall be allowed a reasonable length of time to procure and present it.

ARTICLE XXVI.

The preceding stipulations relative to the visit and examination of vessels shall apply only to those which sail without convoy; for when said vessels shall be under convoy, the verbal declaration of the commander of the convoy, on his word of honor, that the vessels under his protection belong to the nation whose flag they carry, and when they are bound to an enemy's port, that they have no contraband goods on board, shall be sufficient.

ARTICLE XXVII.

It is further agreed that, in all prize-cases, the courts specially established for such causes in the country to which the prizes may be conducted shall alone take cognizance of them. And whenever such courts of either party shall pronounce judgment against any vessel, merchandise, or property claimed by citizens of the other party, the sentence or decree shall set forth the reasons or motives on which the same shall have been founded; and an authenticated copy of the sentence or decree, and of all the proceedings connected with the case, shall, if demanded, be delivered to the commander or agent of the said vessel, merchandise, or property, without any excuse or delay, upon payment of the established legal fees for the same.

ARTICLE XXVIII.

Whenever one of the contracting parties shall be engaged in war with another nation, no citizen of the other contracting party shall accept a commission or letter of marque for the purpose of assisting or cooperation hostilely with the said enemy against the said party so at war, under pain of being treated as a pirate.

ARTICLE XXIX.

If, which is not to be expected, a rupture should at any time take place between the two contracting nations, and they should engage in war with each other, they have agreed, now for then, that the merchants, traders, and other citizens of all occupations of either of the two parties residing in the cities, ports, and dominions of the other, shall have the privilege of remaining and continuing their trade and business therein, and shall be respected and maintained in the full and undisturbed enjoyment of their personal liberty and property so long as they conduct themselves peacenably and properly, and commit no offense against the laws. And in case their acts should render them justly suspected, and having thus forfeited this privilege the respective Governments should order them to leave the country, the term of twelve months from the publication or intimation of the order therefor shall be allowed them in which to arrange and settle their affairs, and remove with their families, effects, and property; to which end the necessary safe-conduct shall be given to them, which shall serve as a sufficient protection, until they arrive at the designated port and there embark; but this favor shall not be extended to those who shall act contrary to the established laws. It is, nevertheless, understood that the respective Governments may order the persons so suspected to remove forthwith to such places in the interior as may be designated.

ARTICLE XXX.

In the event of a war, or of any interruption of friendly intercourse between the high contracting parties, the money, private debts, shares in the public funds, or in the public or private banks, or any other property whatever, belonging to the citizens of the one party in the territories of the other, shall in no case be sequestrated or confiscated.

ARTICLE XXXI.

The high contracting parties, desiring to avoid all inequality in their public communications and official intercourse, agree to grant to their envoys, ministers, charges d'affaires, and other diplomatic agents, the same favors, privileges, immunites, and exemptions that those of the most favored nation do or shall enjoy, it being understood that the favors, privileges, immunites, and exemptions granted by the one party to the envoys, ministers, charges d'affairs, or other diplomatic agents of the other party, or to those of any other nation, shall be reciprocally granted and extended to those of both the high contracting parties respectively.

ARTICLE XXXII.

To protect more effectually the commerce and navigation of their respective citizens, the United States of America and the Republic of Peru agree to admit and receive, mutually, consuls and vice consuls in all their ports open to foreign commerce, who shall enjoy, within their respective consular districts, all the rights, privileges, and immunities of the consuls and vice-consuls of the most favored nation; but to enjoy the rights, prerogatives, and immunities which belong to them in virtue of their public character, the consuls and vice-consuls shall, before exercising their official functions, exhibit to the Government to which they are accredited their commissions or patents in due form, in order to receive their exequatur; after receiving which they shall be acknowledged in their official characters by the authorities, magistrates, and inhabitants of the district in which they reside. The high contracting parties, nevertheless, remain at liberty to except those ports and places where the admission and residence of consuls and vice-consuls may not seem to be convenient, provided that the refusal to admit them shall likewise extend to those of all nations.

ARTICLE XXXIII.

The consuls, vice-consuls, their officers and persons employed in their consulates, shall be exempt from all public service, and from all kinds of taxes, imposts, and contributions, except those which they shall be lawfully held to pay on account of their property or commerce, and to which the citizens and other inhabitants of the country in which they reside are subject, they being in other respects, subject to the laws of the respective countries. The archives and papers of the consulates shall be inviolably respected; and no person, magistrate, or other public authority shall, under any pretext, interfere with or seize them.

ARTICLE XXXIV.

The consuls and vice-consuls shall have power to require the assistance of the public authorities of the country in which they reside for the arrest, detention, and custody of deserters from the vessels of war or merchant-vessels of their nation; and where the deserters claimed shall belong to a merchant-vessel, the consuls or vice-consuls must address themselves to the competent authority, and demand the deserter in writing, proving by the ship's roll or other public document that the individuals claimed are a part of the crew of the vessel from which it is alleged that they have deserted; but should the individuals claimed form a part of the crew of a vessel of war, the word of honor of a commissioned officer attached to the said vessel shall be sufficient to identify the deserters; and when the demand of the consuls or vice-consuls shall, in either case, be so proved, the delivery of the deserters shall not be refused. The said deserters, when arrested, shall be delivered to the consuls or vice-consuls, or, at the request of these, shall be put in the public prisons, and maintained at the expense of those who reclaim them, to be delivered to the vessels to which they belong or sent to others of the same nation; but if the said deserters should not be so delivered or sent within the term of two months, to be counted from the day of their arrest, they shall be set at liberty, and shall not be again apprehended for the same cause. The high contracting parties agree that it shall not be lawful for any public authority or other person within their respective dominions to harbor or protect such deserters.

ARTICLE XXXV.

For the purpose of more effectually protecting their commerce and navigation, the two contracting parties do hereby agree to form, as soon hereafter as may be mutually convenient, a consular convention, which shall declare specially the powers and immunities of the consuls and vice-consuls of the respective parties.

ARTICLE XXXVI.

Until the conclusion of a consular convention, the high contracting parties agree that in the absence of the legal heirs or representatives the consuls or vice-consuls of either party shall be ex officio the executors or administrators of the citizens of their nation who may die within their consular jurisdictions, and of their countrymen dying at sea whose property may be brought within their district. The said consuls or vice-consuls shall call in a justice of the peace or some other judicial authority to assist in taking an inventory of the effects and property left by the deceased, after which the said effects shall remain in the hands of the said consuls or vice-consuls, who shall be authorized to sell immediately such of the effects or property as may be of a perishable nature, and to dispose of the remainder according to the instructions of their respective Governments. And where the deceased has been engaged in commerce or other business, the consuls or vice-consuls shall hold the effects and property so remaining until the expiration of twelve calendar months, during which time the creditors, if any, of the deceased, shall have the right to present their claims and demands against the said effects and property; and all questions arising out of such claims or demands shall be decided by the laws of the country wherein the said citizens may have died. It is understood, nevertheless, that if no claim or demand shall have been made against the effects and property of an individual so deceased, the consuls or vice-consuls at the expiration of the twelve calendar months, may close the estate and dispose of the effects and property in accordance with the instructions from their own Governments.

ARTICLE XXXVII.

As a consequence of the principles of equality herein established, in virtue of which the citizens of each one of the high contracting parties enjoy in the territory of the other the same rights as natives, and receive from the respective Governments the same protection in their persons and property, it is declared that only in case that such protection should be denied, on account of the fact that the claims preferred have not been promptly attended to by the legal authorities, or that manifest injustice has been done by such authorities, and after all the legal means have been exhausted, then alone shall diplomatic intervention take place.

ARTICLE XXXVIII.

The United States of America and the Republic of Peru, desiring to make as durable as possible the relations established between the two parties in virtue of this treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation, declare solemnly and agree as follows:

1st. The present treaty shall remain in force for the term of ten years from the day of the exchange of the ratifications thereof, and further until the end of one year after either of the high contracting parties shall have given notice to the other of its intention to terminate the same, each of them reserving to itself the right of giving such notice to the other at the end of the said term of ten years. And it is hereby agreed between the parties that, on the expiration of one year after such notice shall have been received by either of them from the other party, as above mentioned, this treaty shall altogether cease and terminate.

2d. If any citizen or citizens of either party shall infringe any of the articles of this treaty, such citizen or citizens shall be held personally responsible therefor, and the harmony and good understanding between the two nations shall not be interrupted thereby, each party engaging in no way to protect the offender or offenders, or to sanction such violation, under pain of rendering itself liable for the consequences thereof.

3d. Should, unfortunately, any of the provisions contained in the present treaty be violated or infringed in any other manner whatever, it is expressly stipulated and agreed that neither of the contracting parties shall order or authorize any act of reprisals, nor declare nor make war against the other on complaint of injuries or damages resulting therefrom, until the party considering itself aggrieved shall first have presented to the other a statement or representation of such injuries or damages verified by competent proofs, and demanded redress and satisfaction, and the same shall have been either refused or unreasonably delayed.

4th. Nothing contained in this treaty shall, however, be construed to operate contrary to former and existing public treaties with other nations or sovereigns.

The present treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation shall be approved and ratified by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate thereof, and by the President of the Republic of Peru, with the approbation of the Congress thereof, and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Washington or Lima within eighteen months from the date of the signature hereof, or sooner, if possible.

In faith whereof we, the Plenipotentiaries of the United States of America and of the Republic of Peru, have signed and sealed these presents.

Done at the city of Lima in duplicate, English and Spanish, this the sixth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy.

[SEAL.] ALVIN P. HOVEY.
[SEAL.] JOSE J. LOAYZA.

And whereas the said treaty has been duly ratified on both parts, and the respective ratifications of the same were exchanged at Lima on the twenty-eighth day of May last:

Now, therefore, be it known that I, ULYSSES S. GRANT, President of the United States of America, have caused the said treaty to be made public, to the end that the same, and every clause and article thereof, may be observed and fulfilled with good faith by the United States and the citizens thereof.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this twenty-seventh day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, and in the ninety-ninth year of the Independence of the United States of America. [SEAL.]

Last week the Fairbanks' Scale Company manufactured over 1100 scales. Since the opening of the year they have run their factory on orders, and at the present time they are far behind their orders. The business so far this year is in excess of any expectation of the firm, being in advance of any previous year. It is a fact worthy of note, and highly flattering to American enterprise, that the manufactures of this company have gained such a world-wide reputation and sale. At the Royal Agricultural show, held a few weeks since in Bedford, England, a silver medal offered "for articles in which the judges think there is any especial merit," was awarded to the Fairbanks' hay scale, or, as it is called in England, the "Fairbanks' weigh bridge for carts and wagons." This coming from conservative England, in appreciation of American manufactures, must be considered the highest testimonial of the merit of these scales.

Which Guns?

The Holmes County (Ohio) Farmer gives counsel to its political friends as follows:

"Democrats, stand by your guns! Let them give no uncertain sound."

Upon which the Ackron (Ohio) Beacon bases the following conundrum:

"Which guns? Those that bristled from Fort Napoleon? The democratic guns of Richmond, Atlanta, and Vicksburg? The stolen Remington rifles of the ten thousand New Orleans democratic mob? The guns of White Leaguers and Ku Klux? Are the democracy to be rallied around these blood-stained implements of death? Well, they are as reliable as the party; they have pointed in the same direction, and given out the same treasonable sound ever since 1861. A Confederate flag and the rebel yell will complete the organization. 'Men may change but principles never do,' and the guns are made of pretty solid material."

Horace Inspecteth the Bubiers.

[Lewiston Journal.]

The careful and now aged student of the annual reports of the overseers of the poor in Lewiston, for the past thirty or forty years, has probably read for so many times, little items of expense for the support of the Bubier family, that in all likelihood he has ceased to reflect upon the Bubiers as anything but an inevitable visitation of Divine Providence on the public flour barrel. So, when the tax-payer counting the items of public expenditure, has read the Bubier passages in the statistical column of the overseers of the poor, he has felt certain that the overseers had done their duty nobly—for were not the good appetites of the Bubiers still assuaged?

Something quite as vague, if not even mystical, has been our own impression of the Bubier family. Some, as much in the woods on this question as ourselves, might have supposed that an eternal fire burned on the Bubier altar, and that its sacred flames had to be perpetually fed by tender lambs from the public corral. But it is not in worship of ancestors; not in any more or less mythologic genesis that these entries in the overseers' records take their origin. On these dry statistics hang a sorrowful story, which has been continued through forty years of ignorance, poverty and humiliation—longer than Sylvanus Cobb, jr., ever dared to protract terrible things in the Ledger. Let us now address ourselves to history and go back two score years to find Daniel Bubier, wife and children migrating from Lewiston to the Wilderness in what is now called Dallas Plantation. They proceeded ever-so-many miles from anybody into the forest, where they built a log hut, and commenced the course of life hereafter detailed. This was the prelude.

Soon the town of Lewiston was called on to aid them. The Bubiers did not forget to increase and multiply; for the colony was soon numerous with little Bubiers, and it now numbers forty souls, including twenty-seven children. Nearly all of them are more or less dependent on the city of Lewiston. Were Dallas Plantation a town, this might, could, would and should not have been, but situated as they now are, and as they have been for forty years, the Bubiers have called on the neighboring town for supplies when needed. Rangeley has sent the supplies, and Lewiston has footed the bills. How many thousand dollars this city has invested in the Bubiers of Dallas Plantation, that excellent arithmetician, the City Treasurer, by prolonged observance of the musty records of the city, might tell if you would give him time enough. It is obvious that this city has cast at least a good deal of bread and beef upon the wilderness. Having endured this state of affairs for forty years the overseers of the poor in Lewiston sent a committee to the Dallas wilderness to investigate and see what manner of creatures they were who for so many years had enjoyed our hospitality. Messrs. D. Horace Holman and S. W. Cook were deputed for this investigation, and through them our readers may be allowed to proceed in imagination eighty-five miles due north of Lewiston, twenty-five miles north of Phillips and to within twenty-five miles of the Canada Wilderness. Messrs. Holman and Cook having penetrated the forest as far as a highway led and to apparently the furthermost hamlet, found that the Bubier colony was still half a day's forest journey to the north.

A man named Ellis was obtained as guide Ellis is a half-famished, uncivilized creature, who has as his wife one of the Bubiers and hence is well informed as to the precise part of the map of Maine adorned by this colony. Ellis has a generous appetite; for he ate nearly all the provisions which the overseers of the poor carried into the woods with them. Indeed, Ellis thought nothing of consuming a basket of biscuit, two mince pies and a pound of cheese, a brief time after it was supposed every creature had already had a large breakfast. Among the yarns which Ellis had to relate was one ever memorable in his career of ill-fortune, as a day of great good luck. It was the day when he walked to the Canada line and back and bore home, partly under his waistcoat and partly in a jug, a gallon of rum as the reward of his day's service. The Lewiston officials found that the Bubiers resided near Saddleback Mountain. There is the forest primeval of which we read so much and see so little, immense evergreens, and maples prevailing, while enormous cedars tower on every hand. Things generally there, are heavy and ten acre lots can be bought for a pint of cider. On arriving at the homes of the Bubier Colony the sight which presented itself to the Lewiston officials was one which we cannot well describe. Let us look into a series of miserable log huts, separated by a few miles from one another, in the midst of the wilderness, and through the official eye, let us see what we must see while we omit most of what must be heard; for delicacy has here no home and woman's speech is matter-of-course obscenity.

We will first introduce the fastidious citizen to Mr. Audrew Bubier, who sits on a three-legged stool, yawning, with a black pipe threatening to drop from his teeth. The overseers of the poor put their handkerchiefs to their nostrils and inspect the cabin, whose interior consists of two rooms, one for a cow and the other for Mr. Andrew Bubier, Mrs. Andrew Bubier and five small Bubiers. There is not a chair in the house, not even a bed. The only edible thing in the establishment is a peck of potatoes. Vermin swarm, and the City of Cologne for smells cannot rival the room. The apartment occupied by the cow, is the pleasanter of the two, whether the nostrils or the eyes be invited to pass judgment. On the bare floor this poor man and wife and their five children are wont to sleep. Mrs. Bubier at this particular moment, is sewing some rags together to make a covering for her children. No member of the family can read. There is no book or newspaper or shred of printed page in the house. Two or three wooden spoons and a few bits of broken crockery, a cook-stove, in which fire burns night and day to keep the family warm, a few rude stools,—these are all the contents of the room, save the unhappy human beings who dwell there. The overseers of the poor notice the children cuddled timorously, like scared kittens, behind their mother. "What makes them hide?" asks Mr. Holman. The woman's reply is obscene. On pulling the cubs forth it is found one boy of ten or twelve years, is absolutely naked; a girl of eight years, nearly so, having only a rag over her shoulders and hips, while the balance of the children are not much better off. The sight is one which could be believed only on the testimony of the senses, say the overseers, difficult to credit in the relation, and not to be exaggerated in the description.

Andrew can have work, the overseers say, but he won't work until he is hungry. If he has half a dollar he will eat and smoke up all that it will buy, and when his pipe and his stomach are empty, he will begin to ask what he can do. What Ellis had spared of the overseers' luncheon, Andrew consumed like a famished man. Andrew's wife wept over her sorry plight and the nakedness of her children. The sight was one which might well move any over—or any other seer. We honor Mrs. Bubier for her tears.

The smells of the Andrew Bubier establishment were so offensive that the overseers had to invite the family out under a tree in the open air, before they could complete the interview.

The overseers could notice but one beautiful sight—that was Andrew's teeth, which were white as pearls, perfect as most exacting dentistry could ask. "It is because Andrew never ate anything to hurt him," suggest the overseers. Then let the world gum it through all the cycles of time!

The overseers then proceeded to the hut of Horace Bubier. He and two others of the forty in the colony can read, but they have no books, and so far as could be seen, no disposition to have any. Not a Bible could be found in the colony. Yet Horace Bubier is the literary Bubier in Dallas if any literary Bubier in Dallas there is. He learned to read before he went to the wilderness. Being asked why he did not teach his children to read, he replied he "hadn't no time 'xcept Sundays," and Sundays of course he slept over. Horace has five children. Says he: "I never had 'nuff ter eat, but I'm bound my five children shall, some way or nuther." Literary culture, even in such small doses as the primer, must needs succumb when the wolf is at the door. The overseers gave Horace Bubier some papers. None of the colony had any idea of what was going on in the world, if indeed they had any notion of the world at all, save as "a lodge in some vast wilderness."

There were openings in the vicinity of the huts, where the families planted a few potatoes and cabbages and a little wheat. They also had the use of some young cattle from the neighboring town. The only sources of support which the colony have, are from fish caught in the Dead River which flows near them, from hunting, from their scanty crops, and from the provisions which they purchase by the sale of shaved cedar shingles. When these resources fail, as they may of necessity or from shiftlessness, the city of Lewiston comes in to help. That by the practice of diligence they could earn a good livelihood, there is no doubt. They make shingles, hitch a pair of steers to a sled,—summer and winter, alike—and drag half a thousand shingles, selling at $1.50, six or eight miles through the woods to the nearest store, where they exchange the shingles for a good deal of tobacco, among other things. Fortunately the gentleman most interested as a property owner at the nearest settlement, uses his influence to keep whiskey out of the way, and with good success, as we learn. There is no doctor within twenty miles of the Bubiers, and no doctor ever visited them. Of course the Bubier people are in dense ignorance of every thing pertaining to religion or morality. It was ascertained that people in the adjacent town of Rangeley had no notion of the extent of the poverty and ignorance of their Bubier neighbors—never having visited them.

The girls go a-fishing. Horace Bubier's girl caught fish for supper, in the Dead River that runs by his house, and brought them in while the overseers were there—a fine lot of trout, but she didn't invite the overseers in to take a fry. Daniel, the first settler, 70 odd years old, has been there 40 years. He is blind of an eye. His wife is a little younger than Daniel. They live alone. Their children have married and departed. Daniel is in poor health. On learning who his visitors were, Daniel with a promptness truly admirable, demanded a barrel of flour, on the spot. Daniel's children were wise enough to emigrate. Daniel is proud of them, as well he may be, and says, "One of my boys is well off and owns five acres of land." Daniel's hut looked neater than those previously visited. There was one old fashioned chair in his place, in which two happy kittens blissfully blinked upon the amazed overseers of the poor of the city of Lewiston. Daniel sleeps, not on his floor, but he has a bed, a few dishes, a stove, and his hut looked rather clean and comfortable. Daniel reports that a few years ago the fire raged through the wilderness, burned the Bubier huts and drove them into close quarters. This calamity of course still further impoverished the already impoverished family.

Now, oh! Muse! Sing the hero who in Dallas forests smoked his peaceful pipe, when approached the humble hut of Alfred Bubier two benignant City Fathers craving Bubier illumination. It is the ninth of September. Mrs. Alfred Bubier is striding among the blackened stumps, swinging a scythe through the scanty grass. Follows her at a respectful distance Mr. Alfred Bubier, mowing also. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bubier are smoking, as they mow. It is the custom of the country to do haying leisurely; so be it is done by the time snow flies, all is well. Picture to yourself Mrs. Alfred Bubier in great cowhide boots; hanging over her broad hips, a painfully stranded petticoat; volumes of tobacco smoke rising around her bare head as she swings a heavy scythe, ably shying stumps. Patronizingly remarks one of the overseers of the poor: "You are striking out good, ain't you?" Deliberately, drawing a voluminous column of smoke through her noisome pipe, and resting one cowhide boot on a high stump, quoth Mrs. Alfred Bubier, with that confident air which is itself persuasion: "God never made a man that could beat me with a scythe." Ah! ye incredulous citizens of Lewiston, unless ye have visited Dallas, ye have never travelled!

Messrs. Holman and Cook ventured to put their heads under the lintel of the Alfred Bubier homestead. Let not the Muses be again invoked! Inside the hut, on what might pass for a bed, laid an infant a year old; beside it a child three years old; beside the three year old, a lad of perhaps eight years. All laid across the bed, and all were asleep. It was two o'clock in the afternoon. The drowsy god here is not invoked in vain.

Alfred Bubier's wife is a strong-minded woman. If you have never heard of the woman who could hoe her own row, allow us, at this moment, to introduce you to the very lady you are seeking. Allow us to present, with all deference, Mrs. Bubier, in her cowhide boots, with her hard, toilsome hands, her masculine gait and build, and her baritone voice.

As a result of the excessive energy of Mrs. Bubier, no doubt ably supported by Mr. Bubier, acting under orders, we are allowed to report that Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bubier are the aristocracy of the colony. They have oxen, a horse, a cow, a log cabin of one room, a small bed, a few dishes, a good frame barn—a "sight" better than the house—a ten acre lot and eight children. To Alfred's credit, be it said, he has rarely or never been driven to call on the town for aid. So far as we can give in our adhesion to any Bubier of the Dallas colony, we decidedly admire Alfred, especially at this safe distance, while our admiration for Mrs. Alfred is unlimited.

There is a widow Bubier, about 35 years of age. Her name is Mary Ann. Her husband has been dead eleven years. She has two children, one about 12 years, and one about one year of age. By giving the 12 years old girl a pair of shoes, her mother was induced by the overseers to allow her child to go to school, a few miles from home.

It is needless to suggest that in such a colony as this, one is likely to find in unrestrained freedom of exercise and application the social doctrines of Theodore Tilton. We refer the curious in socialistic science to the overseers already alluded to, who would doubtless be glad to quench the curious with information in this direction, which it is hardly our province to give.

Isaac Bubier is the son of Alfred. He has two children. This family seems quite thrifty. Sewall Bubier is a neighbor of Horace and lives in rather a better way, it was inferred, from the appearance of the outside of his hut. The interior of Sewall's house was not examined, as a persuasive and huge black dog, chained at the door, made savage plunges toward the Christian overseers as they turned toward the house. Lest the city of Lewiston might lose two excellent citizens, the gentlemanly overseers denied themselves the pleasure of bidding Mr. Sewall Bubier and wife that greeting which it was in their hearts to have proffered.

On returning from the Bubier settlement and relating these experiences at the frontier settlement, the hearing people were astonished. Some New York sportsmen were so moved by the story as to visit the colony, and they returned expressing their amazement at the sight and at the fact that in a country which is exporting so many bibles and missionaries, such ignorance and poverty should exist.

The overseers found a bill of sixty-nine dollars awaiting them at Rangeley, against the city of Lewiston, for September supplies furnished the Bubiers. This year their crops have been cut short, and it is estimated that it will require $500 or $600 of aid from this city to get them through the winter. The overseers ask the benevolent to furnish clothing—any old articles for children or adults—as it is designed to gather a box of articles and forward it, for distribution among the Bubiers.

In a communication to the City Council, the overseers of the poor will briefly recapitulate the points we have entered upon, and close by saying: "We desire to call attention to the matter, and ask if it is not advisable to remove the families from the plantation, to give the twenty-seven children an opportunity to become educated and civilized."

Let us recapitulate and allow the Bubier colony to briefly condense itself into a battalion as follows:

Andrew Bubier and 5 children.
Mary Ann Bubier, 2 children.
Alfred Bubier, 8 children.
Horace Bubier, 5 children.
Daniel Bubier and wife, no children.
Isaac Bubier, 2 children.
Sewall Bubier, 5 children.

"What is to be done with the Bubier colony?" is a question which addresses itself alike to the humanitarian and the unhumanitarian in Lewiston. They cannot be removed this winter, but it occurs to us that to allow a colony of paupers to increase and multiply in that distant region, their children debarred the privilege of schools and of religious and moral training, is a stigma on this city, a shame on our civilization. To remove such of them as are not self-supporting to this city this winter, may not be feasible, but on the arrival of next year's robins, if these Bubiers cannot be schooled and educated where they are, let them be transported hither, the children clad, fed and taught, and this noisome life of poverty, ignorance and immorality stifled by the primer and the catechism. Let not one missionary the less be dispatched to the Fejee Islands, but let not the Heathen at home be perpetuated.

—It is an error to suppose but few women would vote if they could. We have facts to the contrary in England, and from the better classes, so called. It is said none but the lowest order of women would vote. We know better—the high character of the women earnestly demanding the ballot refutes the assertion. The London Examiner says: "In sixty-six municipal elections, out of every 1000 women who enjoy equal rights with men on the register, 516 went to the polls, which is but 48 less than the proportionate number of men. And out of 27,949 women registered, where a contest occurred, 14,416 voted. Of men there were 166,781 on the register, and 90,080 at the poll." The Examiner thereupon draws this conclusion: "Making allowance for the reluctance of old spinsters to change their habits and the more frequent illness of one sex, it is manifest that women do exercise the franchise as freely as men."

Maggie Mitchell.

The "merry little cricket" made her debut in this city to an enthusiastic and delighted audience, Thursday evening, in "Fanchon." We have seldom seen her better supported, but the best of supports adds little to the charm which "Fanchon" always possesses. Years pass lightly over the petite Maggie, who looks as near sixteen as she did a decade ago, while the cares of matrimony and the possession of an infantile "Fanchon" make few inroads upon Mrs. Paddock. Everybody went to the entertainment prepared to be pleased and as a matter of course went away satisfied. "Fanchon" was first dramatised from the German by August Waldam. Miss Mitchell brought it out in 1862, and has played it more than 1200 times, netting her a half million dollars, it is said. The play without Maggie's restless vivacity in the leading part would be like Hamlet without the Prince. The great desire to witness "Fanchon" is never appeased with one performance, which is the secret of its frequent repetition. Miss Mitchell may be sure of another crowded house if she comes again, and of course she must come again and play "The Pearl of Savoy."

Run Down.

Mr. Jedediah Perkins of Wells, Me., had a narrow escape from drowning on the morning of Tuesday, Oct. 13th, while fishing about four miles from Boon Island. Schooner Petrel of Fremont, Me., loomed up in the dark, heading directly for his boat. Mr. Perkins shouted until he was hoarse to attract notice, and when within a vessel's length he was seen and the Petrel sheered off, but not soon enough to prevent a collision. As his boat was struck the mast went by the board, Mr. Perkins jumping into the schooner's bob-stays. The boat was crushed under the Petrel's forefoot and went down, carrying with it four fishing nets and other gear. Mr. Perkins climbed aboard the schooner and induced the captain to stop and put him aboard another boat in which his son had been fishing. The accident happened just before daylight. The owners of the Petrel feel disposed to settle the matter without a suit at law.

Six Years of Fighting Enough.

When news of the insurrection in Louisiana reached Atlanta, Ga., its citizens failed to sympathize unanimously with the headstrong Robert Toombs. Gov. Smith while taking his morning walk, says the Atlanta Herald, was accosted by a personal friend, and asked his views. Mr. B. H. Hill, Jr., bluntly asked him: "Would you allow our Georgia troops to go there if the White League was to issue an address asking for help?" And he replied: "Not as organizations, of course. I could not do so if I wanted to, and I would not if I could. I am inclined to think that I will need every soldier under my command to keep Georgia under control. I very much fear that bad men and incautious editors will get up trouble in our own State during the present campaign. I shall esteem myself fortunate if I can protect my own State during the crisis. I sympathize with Louisiana, of course, as much as I am able. As Governor of Georgia my first duty is to her."

"You cannot prevent volunteers from going to Louisiana, though," suggested Alderman Young, who had announced himself ready to go "on the first call."

"Oh, of course not," replied the Governor; "and I should not try to. If any of the boys wanted to take their guns and go hunting, why," and here the Governor smiled, "I, of course, could not say anything to prevent."

"How many do you think would go from Georgia to Louisiana as volunteers in case an appeal was made from New Orleans for help?"

"I think probably fifty or one hundred from the whole State," replied the Governor.

"Fifty!" responded Capt. Newman hotly, "I can raise a company of two hundred to leave here to-night. There'd be nearer five thousand from the State."

"Ah, well," says the Governor, "when I said 'fifty,' I meant to say that very few would go—not more than a hundred or so—very few men over twenty-five years of age would go. The men who stood six years of fighting in the last war aren't anxious to try it again—not soon."

Ex-Mayor Hammock—"I was fool enough to try it once. I reckon I would again."

Gov. Smith—"I think the only thing we can do is to keep cool, and keep down disturbances. The only result of all this strife will be to give the radicals a new lease of power. It is very unfortunate, I think, that there should be rash and inconsiderate people to advise or encourage any resistance to what it is simply impossible for us to resist with any chance of success." And the Governor walked off leisurely with Judge Collier.

The Prince of Wales' Last.

His Royal Highness has been detected in many an act which has startled the Queen, the last of which is said to be the ordering of $26,000 worth of tickets for the Public Library of Kentucky. Her Majesty, it is stated, did not object to his buying liberally, but in the present condition of the Prince's finances, she thought $20,000 worth was too much for him to invest. It is asserted that he insisted on sending his order to Governor Brumlette, assuring his royal mother that he knew what he was about, for that as $2,500,000 was to be distributed to the ticket holders on November 30, and in such gifts as $250,000, $100,000, &c., he would have a splendid chance at one of these splendid prizes, and thus easily pay his debts.

Well Worth Reading.

Who is there that does not desire to be always exempted from indigestion—to have a good appetite, a painless stomach, a clear head, a regular pulse, a healthy complexion? If this meets the eye of any who are not thus blessed, let them try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. We guarantee that this delightful tonic will restore any stomach, however weak, to a healthy condition; that it will bring back the truant appetite, and give permanent vigor to the whole system. The feeble and emaciated, suffering from dyspepsia or indigestion in any form, are advised, for the sake of their own bodily and mental comfort, to try it. Ladies of the most delicate constitution testify to its harmless and restorative properties. Physicians everywhere, disgusted with the adulterated liquors of commerce, prescribe it as the safest and most reliable of all stomachics.

The Ancient Egyptians learned the art of preserving their bodies for many generations, but all the world have not been able to discover an infallible preventative that will stop the hair from falling off. Bearine is without doubt the safest dressing, and is also the most delightful preparation to use, ever made. 8

A Life Doubly Assured.
A resident of Bangor, Maine, writing to C. N. UNTERSTENON, 7 Sixth Avenue, for a supply of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, mentions incidentally that three months ago a New England Life Insurance Company refused to grant him a policy, on the ground that he was consumptive. "But," he adds, "thanks to the healing properties of that invaluable preparation, my lungs are now perfectly sound, and I yesterday passed a medical examination, without an objection being made, and insured my life for $5,000." dawlw014

ADVICE.

If you wish for a Bonnet both stylish and neat,
That will surely eclipse every other you meet,—
Or a Hat with abundance of outside show
To make up for absence of brains below,—
Or Flowers and Feathers of every hue,
And other things equally useful and new,
At the lowest possible prices, too,
You had better call without further ado

STOVES! STOVES!
NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!
Great Bargains!
HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of
COOKING and PARLOR STOVES
To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.
We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.
Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.
For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves
Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.
SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.
We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Piano and Singing.
THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy boisters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—if solicits orders.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

sep14 3w PORTSMOUTH SCHOOL COMMITTEE

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of these want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a period of great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary interest or ephemeral character of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chrome, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious intersersion of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustains an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Faithful Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series at made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union.

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, 50ty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

WILLIAM CHANDLER

—DEALER IN—

ALES, WINES, LIQUORS AND CIGARS.

THE BEST IN THE MARKET.

After an absence of more than two years, I have returned to Portsmouth and taken the stand formerly occupied by me, next door to the Custom House, where I should be pleased to meet all my old friends and everyone else in want of anything in my line of business. My LIQUORS are PURE, my CIGARS are of the best brands—in fact everything in my stock is first-class and WARRANTED.

FORTY-CENT TEA,

AS GOOD as is sold elsewhere at 70 cents. Sold only by the pound. J. RIDER & SON.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely an moonlight warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specided in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder, shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

POINT OF GRAVES.

Dear, sacred place, tho' thou may'st seem
A lone, neglected spot,
Yet memories of childhood's scenes
Are not so soon forgot.
In silent watches of the night
How vividly they seem
As phantoms in their airy flight,
Beheld in golden dreams.
Within those antiquated walls
Two verdant graves are seen,
So near alike in length and form
We fail to judge between
Which is my mother's—none doth know—
(Yet I remember well
The shadowy veil, deep-fringed with woe,
Which o'er her pathway fell,)
No tablet of recorded worth,
No monument of love
To tell the name, and age, and death
Of her,—who rests above,
Forever freed from harrowing woes,
From despot's cruel power,
Stern penury, neglected love
In life's most needy hour.
Dear, sainted one, thy rest above,
Is sweet;—that net on yonder strand
The sharer of thy grief—thy love
Who sleeps in foreign land?
Sweet songsters come with sweetest lay
In summer's early dawn,
And crickets chirp their roundelay
As autumn hours draw on;
Years, many years have swiftly sped,
And we, thine orphaned ones,
Will linger near thy lowly bed
Till thou shalt greet us home.

[GREENLAND, Oct., 1874. I.

Did Moses Cross the Red Sea?

A convention of historians and Oriental scholars has recently been held in London which has attracted very wide attention. The addresses of Sir Henry Rawlinson and Max Muller were bold and iconoclastic, and defiant of many cherished opinions. But the paper read by Brugsch Bey, a distinguished scholar of Egypt, on the question of the site at which the Israelites crossed from Egypt into the Promised Land, was of unusual interest. Monumental inscriptions have been collected, geology studied, notes compared, and maps prepared to authenticate the history recited. The following is a brief resume of the positions arrived at:

I have chosen for my theme (said Brugsch Bey) the exodus of the Hebrews from Ramses to their arrival at Elim. All savants who have previously occupied themselves with the reconstruction of this route have taken as the basis of their researches the geography of Egypt, during the time of the Dower Empire, comparing it with that of our days. So many savants, so many different opinions concerning this route; but all, with the exception of two, agree that the Jews went through the Red Sea. My own researches are founded on the geographical indications of Egyptian monuments, contemporary with the time of the exodus. I was able to reconstruct the Egypt of this epoch, with its forty-two provinces, with its chief towns, and with a very great number of very curious details of the topography and also of its divine rites. From this I have arrived at the following conclusions, which I consider unquestionable:

1. That the town of Ramses "differs in no way from the town of Zoan," which is spoken of in the Bible as the place where Moses performed his miracles before the Pharoah of his time. This is the same town which the Greeks called Tanes, and which was the chief town of the district Tanitis.

2. That the town of Pithora, likewise mentioned in the Bible, was the chief town of the adjoining districts called by the Greeks the district of Sethroites. The Semitic name of this same town, cited in the papyri of the British museum, was Suko, or Sukoth, which corresponds exactly with the second station at which the Hebrews camped after their exodus from Ramses.

3. The third station, called in the Bible Etham, bears the name of Hetham in the Egyptian texts; the name means "the fortified." This fort was situated westward from the place el-Kantareh (i. e., the bridge) of to-day on the confines of the desert. After having arrived at Etham the Hebrews turned to the North, and arrived then at (4) Migdol, which was the fourth station. The name is completely Egyptian, and means the fortress of Magdolon of the Greek and Roman authors, situated at Tel-e-Semout of our day. Setting out from Migdol, the Hebrews camped between Migdol and the sea (i. e., the Mediterranean) before the entrance of the Hiroth. (Pihahiroth,) in the face of Baal Zephon. The Hiroth, an Egyptian term, denotes the fearful abysses situated between the Mediterranean sea and the Sirbonis. The place of Baal Zephon, in Egyptian, Baali Zapouna is the name of a sanctuary situated at the Casian Mount. As Pharoah and his army pursued the Hebrews on this isthmus, between the sea and the lake of Sirbonis, to which the inscriptions give, as to all lakes, even to the Red Sea, the name of Sea of Algæ, (jam Suph.) there befell the Egyptians at those places the same fate which, in the course of history, befell single travellers as well as whole armies—they were swallowed by the abysses of the sea of Agal or Weeds. Once arrived at Mount Kaslas, where was the eastern frontier of ancient Egypt, and where the "way of the Philistines" begins, the Hebrews traversed, in a southern direction, the desert to Marh, "where the water was bitter." These are the Bitter-water lakes of our day. The sixth station, Elim, is called in Egypt "A-lim." (i. e., the town of "fishes,") to the north of the Red Sea. All these indications exactly correspond in Hebrew and in Egyptian. No savant can separate them from one another, nor alter the site now fixed once for all.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1874.

Stand Back.

It is so evident that "he who runs may read," that the irresistible current of events will bring to grief any candidate who seeks nomination at the hands of republicans at the coming election against the expressed wishes of the people. The republican press is a unit in the matter, faithfully reflecting the opinions of the masses. The Dover Enquirer has a pungent article, a portion of which we copy:

"On another point there needs to be plain speaking. The republican party has its foundation in principles. The contest before us is on questions of public policy and measures in which all the people have an interest. Before such interests all personal considerations should be set aside. In the matter of candidates no man has any claims adverse to the general good. Whatever is best for the success of the great principles we advocate must be paramount to the claims of any man whatever. Before such interests all precedents even may and should be set aside. Every true man will see this. If he loves the cause he advocates he will step aside or be set aside without a murmur to insure its success. No man is ever so truly great as when he can sacrifice all personal ambitions to the public good.

But if there are those who will hang upon the party to its injury, or thrust themselves upon it against its highest interests and endangering its success, then it becomes the duty of the republican masses to take the reins into their own hands. Let the people assume the responsibility, and in the selection of candidates for every office act independently and firmly, and against all dictation and chicanery and selfish appeals, and if need be against all precedents or hostile considerations from whatever quarter, put only such men into the field as shall command the respect and confidence and satisfy the just expectations of their fellow citizens, and who through their eminent fitness for their various positions and well-known popular qualifications will ensure an enthusiastic and successful support at the polls. In every selection of candidates the question should be who is the best man for the position, not who is the present incumbent, nor who is seeking the nomination, nor whom do the politicians prefer.

If the republicans as a party take such a course as this they will make the road to success far easier than it has been for many years. It is true some men now in office may be disappointed in their expectations and feel aggrieved, but if they have made themselves essential to the public service there will be little danger of their being overlooked. The people are ever prompt and willing to recognize and reward true merit. If they are mere drones, or incapable or dishonest in their trusts, the sooner they are relieved the better. In these days none but men of tried integrity and proved ability should be kept in positions involving the highest public interests."

The Exeter News-Letter also joins in the protest against forestalling nominations by a rehearsal of claims for office, in the following pertinent remarks:

"There is no reasonable doubt that New Hampshire can be redeemed from democratic rule at the next election. There is a clear majority of republican voters in the State, even after deducting our losses by reason of the unjust law to disfranchise students at literary institutions, and reckoning against us all the democrats can gain by the equally unjust law authorizing police courts to grant naturalization. Nor can the late democratic gerrymandering of wards and districts prevent our party from recovering the control of the State government, if we use our entire strength. Yet there is no disguising the fact that in the contest before us, we cannot afford to throw away any advantage. It is an emergency in which every personal consideration should yield to the demands of the party. The best republican is he who is willing to make the greatest sacrifice for the good of the cause.

Lake Steamers.

The question whether steam vessels plying in lakes, ponds and inland waters are subject to inspection has several times been brought before the United States Inspectors of this district, Messrs. Burnham and Savage. Having some doubt as to their jurisdiction in the matter, a letter was addressed to the Treasury Department, asking an answer to the following question:

Are the waters of Lake Winnipesaukee, or lakes or ponds the waters of which are exclusively within the limits of a State, and do not form a boundary or have any navigable outlet to other waters, held to be navigable waters of the United States, within the meaning of section 41 of the act of Congress relative to steam vessels, approved February 28, 1871?

In response, Secretary Bristow has sent the following important decision, which seems to settle finally a much discussed subject:

Gentlemen: Referring to your communication of the 7th ultimo, addressed to the supervising inspector of the second District, relative to the application of the steamboat inspection laws to lakes or other waters which are exclusively within the limits of a State, you are now informed that in a recent case this question was considered and definitely settled by the Supreme Court of the United States. The object of the proceeding in the case referred to was to recover two penalties alleged to have been forfeited to the United States, one by the neglect of the owners of a steamer to procure the enrolment and license of their vessel while it was employed in navigating Fox River, in the State of Wisconsin, between Oshkosh and Portage City, and the other for a failure to comply with the inspection laws. It was held by the court that if the river was not, of itself, a highway of commerce with other States and foreign countries, or did not form such highway by its connection with other waters and was only navigable between different places within the State, then it was not a navigable water of the United States, but only a navigable water of a State, and the acts of Congress for the enrolment and license of vessels had no application. In another similar case, the Supreme Court defines what are navigable waters of the United States, in contradistinction from navigable waters of the States, as follows: "Waters which form in their ordinary condition by themselves, or by uniting with other waters, a continued highway over which commerce is or may be carried on with other States or foreign countries in the customary modes in which such commerce is conducted by water."

Applying these tests to Winnipesaukee Lake, it would appear that steam vessels navigating the waters of that lake are not subject to inspection under the laws of the United States.

Very respectfully,

B. H. BRISTOW, Secretary.

It will be remembered that by the order of Collector Howard, three small steamers plying on Lake Winnipesaukee were seized for violation of the inspection laws, the large steamers on the Lake having complied with the orders for inspection. Had either of the small steamers been blown up, the Collector might have been blamed for dereliction of duty. The decision of the Secretary relieves him of any responsibility in the matter. The State should now pass a law requiring inspection of boats and boilers, for the better protection of the travelling public on the navigable waters of this State. If the United States has no jurisdiction in the matter, this State certainly has, and the sooner the "ounce of prevention" is applied, the better.

The Elections.

The democrats estimate, from the returns already in, that 105,000 votes were cast in Arkansas, being the largest number ever polled in the State, and that the constitution and democratic State tickets were carried by 75,000 majority.

The democratic majority in Ohio is about 20,000. Thirteen democrats and seven republicans are elected to Congress.

The democratic majority in Indiana will reach 15,000. Eight democrats and five republicans are elected to Congress.

West Virginia elects three democratic Congressmen.

The republican majority in Iowa is 40,000. In the Dubuque district, Ainsworth, democrat, is elected to Congress by 19 majority.

Sixty-two Congressmen have been chosen thus far—from Maine, Vermont, North Carolina, Oregon, Indiana, Iowa, Ohio, Nebraska and West Virginia—20 republicans and 33 democrats. Democratic gain 14.

Readables.

Ourcucumber-sunbeam-extractor reminds us that the republicans of Ohio and Indiana will have a splendid margin for gains in the Congressional elections preceding the Presidential election of 1876. So!

They say" that Rev. W. H. H. Murray remarked "That's too devilish bad" when his horses failed to take the first premium at the New England Fair, and that he soon withdrew them from exhibition thereafter, a piece of petty spite. This story is a good deal like another we heard of him, in which he was made to say, as a trotter passed, on being met at the door of a lady friend who had sent for him to attend a dying husband: "Mrs. ——; that's the best piece of horse-flesh in Boston." If such things be true, it is not to be wondered at that William Henry Harrison Murray could not see it his duty to remain as pastor at "Brimstone Corner" and perform such trivial duties as consoling the sick, attending funerals, and making pastoral calls. Let us hope these stories have a shade of untruth in them, and that Mr. Murray runs not wholly to horses and "gab."

By the Western elections, the inflationists lose a half dozen votes in Congress.

Zack Chandler of Michigan calls the New Hampshire democracy "raw." He can't say as much for the old pelter whom the Ohio democracy raised last year.

Burlington has small pox.

A child of Mr. L. E. Strong died in Rocky Hill, Conn., from poisonous matter used in vaccination. This is the second death in that town from this cause.

H. Deering and twelve workmen were arrested, while building a bridge at Saco, on the charge that the work was not done according to contract. The City Solicitor of Saco appeared before Judge Virgin of Portland, and asked that an injunction might be issued to restrain Mr. Deering from proceeding in his work. After giving a full hearing in the case, Judge Virgin refused.

The republicans of the eighth district of Massachusetts have renominated Congressman J. M. S. Williams.

Speaking of the election in Ohio the Cincinnati Enquirer says: In this triumph we are indebted not alone to the democratic party but to the aid of the men who heretofore have been its opponents. This election means opposition to the national bank monopoly, that the volume of currency should be enlarged, and that there should be a tariff for revenue only.

Says the Lawrence American: It grieves us to note that such an ingenious, painstaking calculation as that by which the Boston Journal demonstrated to us a week ago, that under no circumstances could General Butler obtain more than 45 of the 116 votes in the nominating caucus of his district, should have come to naught. We never saw any figures that took such firm hold on us as those did, and for the General to score a clean 100 in the face of all the journalistic cyphering to the contrary, is a new and saddening evidence of his disregard for newspapers.

As Mr. B. F. Scott was passing through Pitts street, Boston, a large Newfoundland dog dashed at his face and nearly severed his nose.

The "bolt" against Tammany Hall in New York is assuming more dangerous proportions. It is now thought the republicans will combine with such democrats as are disaffected.

Every one of the eleven candidates upon the Arkansas democratic State ticket are ex-rebel officers.

The British ship Kingsbridge, came in collision in the British Channel with the ship Candahar, and was sunk. Eleven of the crew of the Kingsbridge were drowned.

State News.

The Patriot says: "Mr. Frank Fellows of Lebanon lost a valuable mare recently by its being hooked in the pasture." Wonder who hooked "it."

James A. Edgerly, an attorney of Great Falls, employed by parties in Exeter to prosecute those engaged in the sale of spirituous liquors, complained against Nathaniel Welsh, Wm. Robinson, Levi G. Towle, Thornton B. Hoyt, A. S. Wetherell and Charles B. Merrill. A hearing was had before P. Webster Locke, Esq., and Nathaniel Welsh was adjudged guilty and ordered to recognize in the sum of $200 for his appearance at the Circuit Court; Thornton B. Hoyt was discharged on the ground that the warrant was issued and served by the same officer; A. S. Wetherell was discharged on the ground of a malicious prosecution; the cases of Wm. Robinson, Levi G. Towle and Charles A. Merrill were continued till Oct. 30th.

At Milford a large stone rolled upon John Dame, inflicting serious wounds on his body and breaking his leg.

The following tough story, by the Courier is told and vouched for by one of Rochester's oldest and best citizens, who was an eye-witness. In the early day of staging, when Mrs. Odiorne kept the tavern where Dodge's hotel now stands, J. T. Dodge drove the stage from Dover to Ossipee, and had two leaders, one a brown one-eyed horse, and the other a gray. The brown horse was a wonderful animal, and would have done credit as a performer in a circus. On arriving at Mrs. Odiorne's, this horse would take himself right up and over the other side of the gray, and after remaining a short time would go back the same way and without disarranging the harness.

Mr. Andrew Wiggin, of Stratham, has presented to that town a two-acre lot of land, situated upon the main road, a few rods north of the First Baptist church, for a public cemetery.

A horse belonging to Tappan S. Carter, met with a singular and at the time it was supposed fatal accident, while drawing a load of flour from Plaistow depot to Hampstead. In ascending a hill the draw-iron broke; the horse went out of the shafts instanter, but was suddenly brought up, for the reins were tied to a stake on the cart, (Mr. Carter walking to relieve the heavily loaded animal,) and one of the shafts was driven completely through the thigh of the off hind leg. Strange to say, the horse is now, as far as lameness is concerned, entirely well.

William G. Jewett, of Barrington, had his horse and wagon stolen from the vicinity of the fair ground, in Rochester, where he had been hitched, on the first day of the fair. He made several inquiries after he was missed, and the next day started in pursuit of the thief, and found him at a place called Mink Brook, in Wolfeboro. The horse had been exchanged for a poorer one and some boot, with one Henry Bradbury. The thief was arrested, and taken to Rochester for trial, and gave the name of Charles Clark, of Great Falls. He was afterwards committed to Dover jail to await trial.

TO THE HON. JUDGE OF PROBATE FOR THE COUNTY OF ROCKINGHAM, IN THE STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

RESPECTFULLY SHOWS Charlotte M. Seavey of Portsmouth in said County of Rockingham, State of New Hampshire, that she is Guardian of ELLA M. SEAVEY by the appointment of the Judge of Probate for said County of Rockingham: that her Ward is seized of one common and undivided third part of the homestead farm of EDWARD SEAVEY, late of Rye in said County, deceased, which farm is situated in said Rye, and that it is necessary for the support of her said Ward and will be conducive to her interest to have the premises sold; wherefore she prays that she may be licensed and authorized to sell the same at public auction, according to the statute in such cases made and provided.

CHARLOTTE M. SEAVEY, Guardian.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, } Rockingham, ss. }

Probate Office at Exeter in said County, Oct. 3, A. D. 1874.

UPON the foregoing Petition, it is Ordered, that a hearing be had thereon at a Court of Probate to be holden at Portsmouth in said County, on the second Tuesday of November next; and that the Petitioner notify all persons concerned to appear at said Court, and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted, by causing said petition and this order to be published three weeks successively in the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE, a newspaper published at Portsmouth in said County, the last publication whereof to be at least one week prior to said Court.

By order of the Judge.

The Prince of Wales' Last.

His Royal Highness has been detected in many an act which has startled the Queen, the last of which is said to be the ordering at $20,000 worth of tickets for the Public Library of Kentucky. Her Majesty, it is stated, did not object to his buying liberally, but in the present condition of the Prince's finances, she thought $20,000 worth was too much for him to invest. It is asserted that he insisted on sending his order to Governor Bramlette, assuring his royal mother that he knew what he was about, for that as $2,500,000 was to be distributed to the ticket holders on November 30, and in such gifts as $250,000, $100,000, &c., he would have a splendid chance at one of these splendid prizes, and thus easily pay his debts.

Mrs. Grundy Says

That SOZODONT eclipses all other preparations for the teeth and gums. And what Mrs. G. says is reiterated most emphatically by ninety-nine one-hundredths of the beauty and fashion of the land.

Well Worth Reading.

Who is there that does not desire to be always exempted from indigestion—to have a good appetite, a painless stomach, a clear head, a regular pulse, a healthy complexion? If this meets the eye of any who are not thus blessed, let them try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. We guarantee that this delightful tonic will restore any stomach, however weak, to a healthy condition; that it will bring back the truant appetite, and give permanent vigor to the whole system. The feeble and emaciated, suffering from dyspepsia or indigestion in any form, are advised, for the sake of their own bodily and mental comfort, to try it. Ladies of the most delicate constitution testify to its harmless and restorative properties. Physicians everywhere, disgusted with the adulterated liquors of commerce, prescribe it as the safest and most reliable of all stomachics.

The Ancient Egyptians learned the art of preserving their bodies for many generations, but all the world have got been able to discover an infallible preventative that will stop the hair from falling off Bearine is without doubt the safest dressing, and is also the most delightful preparation to use, ever made. 3

Licenses.

We regret to learn that Mr. Paddock, by whose kindness our citizens were enabled to see Maggie Mitchell's performance of "Fanchon," was made to pay more than the usual sum for a license. Seven dollars has been the fixed amount for years, except for circuses, an ordinance of the city providing that the license shall be not less than five dollars for each performance and not more than fifty; yet Mr. Peddock was confronted by a bill from the City Clerk for twenty dollars! Of course he objected, and the case being referred to the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, then in session, the license was granted for ten dollars. First class entertainments such as that given by Maggie Mitchell are too rarely seen here, and should be encouraged. If any distinction be made let it be in favor of rather than against the better class of entertainments. Citizens generally cannot understand why the "Black Crook" should be licensed for seven dollars and "Fanchon" for more. If the city treasury needs replenishing, an increase of the price of licenses will hardly furnish the desired result, for managers generally give a wide berth to cities where they are treated illiberally. The poorest of all policies is that which "kills the goose that lays the golden egg."

A Revere Legacy.

Mr. Jeff. C. Rowe obtained $12,000 from the Eastern Railroad in settlement of his claim for damages at Revere in 1871, whereby he lost his right arm and received other severe injuries while in performance of his duties as brakeman on the ill-fated express train. A Miller platform would have saved Mr. Rowe his arm and the company $12,000 at the time, the old-fashioned platform on which Mr. Rowe was standing while setting the brakes being crushed like pasteboard. We understand that Mr. Rowe pays his own expenses, which are in the vicinity of $2000. The preliminary points of the case being settled in the U. S. court in favor of Mr. Rowe, the railroad officials were desirous of settling, in preference to a continuance of the suit (which was entered for $35,000 damages) and a possible judgment establishing a precedent by which employees could obtain damages for injuries caused by the carelessness of other employees of the same corporation. Mr. Rowe was an employee of the P. S. & P. R. R. Co. at the time of the accident, the Eastern Railroad having practically leased the P. S. & P. R. R. and the services of its employees.

City Councils.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, leave was granted Alfred Stavers to encumber Fleet and Congress streets for building purposes.

Andrew J. Smith, Thomas Glazebrook, Chas. W. Holmes Wm. Lear, Samuel J. Horton and Nathaniel F. Pinder were appointed supernumerary policemen.

John Murray was appointed special police without pay.

Daniel H. Trefethen was elected 1st. Assistant Engineer of the Fire department. Richard T. Call, J. Frank Shannon, and Willard J. Sampson, were appointed Assistant Engineers.

Petition of Joseph Parry for sidewalk on Fleet street was granted.

The committee on Finance submitted a report showing an excess of expenditures over the appropriations in several departments.

The same committee reported a bill entitled, "An ordinance authorizing the transfer of certain appropriations."

The following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That the City Solicitor be directed to take charge of the several suits now pending against the city and confer with the Mayor in regard to the disposal of them.

Resolved, That the Street Commissioner, under the direction of the Mayor, be instructed to cause to be built the new highway from Sagamore Road to the line of the town of Rye, near the new bridge to Newcastle, recently laid out by the County Commissioners.

In convention with the Common Council, Uriah Blaisdell was elected Sealer of Weights and Measures; Josephus W. M. Spinney was elected Keeper of Pound.

Laconics.

Tastes differ. The Manchester band played in Dover for the Strafford Guards, Thursday, and the Portsmouth Band for the Newburyport Veterans. On Friday, the Dover Band played here for the Odd Fellows, the Naval Band being otherwise engaged.

The Dartmouth glee club will give a concert here soon.

We would suggest that when persons in a public audience such as that which was in attendance at the Temple, Thursday evening, have not the good taste to refrain from loud talking, the police would merit the thanks of all who go to listen, by repressing the disturbance.

The eleventh clam-bake closed the season at Dover Point.

With waving banners and the best of all good music, that of the Naval Band, the Newburyport Veterans marched about town, Friday, arriving here from Dover at 11.30 A. M., dining at the Rockingham, and leaving for home at 5.32 P. M. The Veterans are a fine looking set of men and were worthy of better attention than was accorded them. It is in the memory of man that an organization called the Independent Battalion had a gratuity of $500 from the city but a little more than a year ago, and it might have been expected that the Battalion would show some courtesy to the visitors; but it did not. The police force did no escort duty, being without a uniform.

The Odd Fellows procured the Dover Cornet Band for attendance at the funeral of the late Archibald A. Peterson, Friday afternoon.

The second lecture in the course at the Universalist church will be given by the pastor on Sunday evening. Subject "The Woman Question."

The demand for tickets to the lyceum has induced the managers to measure off and number the seats in the Temple gallery, a plan of which will be made and submitted to the public Monday morning, when reserved tickets to the gallery will be for sale at Preston's store. Particular attention will be paid to warmth and ventilation, thus making the gallery as desirable as any portion of the Hall.

Mayor Horton of Dover and Mayor Currier of Newburyport were in town with the Veterans, Friday.

Because William Dimond refused to stand treat in a saloon Richard Kingsley broke his nose and jaw, Thursday evening, and is likely to pay dearly for it.

At Rechabite Hall, Market street, two lectures will be delivered, Sunday afternoon and evening, on Shaker Faith and Practice.

The Laconia Democrat insults the party it boards with by stating that democratic aldermen and councilmen in Portsmouth are "petty officials." O. A. J. seems to think the erring brethren should be shown no mercy.

While picking apples in a garden on State street, Friday, Mr. Frank Shores fell from a tree and broke an arm.

"But," he adds, "thanks to the healing properties of that invaluable preparation, my lungs are now perfectly sound, and I yesterday passed a medical examination, without an objection being made, and insured my life for $5,000." dawlw014

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented.—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

Desirable Estate

AT PRIVATE SALE.

The convenient and well located HOUSE and the lot of 4000 feet at the corner of Lincoln Avenue and Broad Street, is offered for sale on easy terms. The house has a fine prospect, is located in a portion of the city where gentlemen are rapidly selecting sites for dwellings, and where the best houses are being erected. The house has well arranged rooms, a very cheerful outlook on either side, is supplied with excellent well water introduced into the house, and has garden plot and well built henery attached. The site is peculiarly pleasant, and the opportunity of purchasing a home built for a residence for the owner, and sold only because his business requires his presence in another city, is one that well deserves the attention of any one who desires a home for immediate occupancy. The premises may be examined on application to

Piano and Singing.

THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and masterful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy boilers to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Per Order,

sep18 3w PORTSMOUTH SCHOOL COMMITTEE

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed every attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial success—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior chapeaux, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in a comprehensive sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interposition of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, exciting an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical self-assertion as to do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Hon's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 500 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or clubbing rates; club subscriptions must be sent to the publisher direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cause of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

Piano and Singing.

THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inborn talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favorites where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

[T. W. Parsons.]

What made the greatness of our great man gone?
Facts about fishes?—reading laws that rule
The glacier's march and move the black moraine?
An eye whose gaze with equal reverence glowed
At a small star-fish, or his Alpine throne?
Or that he founded for our land a school?—
Never to see that harvest which he sowed!—
His large companionship with men, shell, stone,
And every type of the most High? The fool
Who thinketh in his heart there is no God
Stands here in silence. 'Mid our tears and pain
This joy was uppermost: beneath His rod
Bowing, we bless Him for each nobler mind
Whose highest vision science fails to blind.

Hospitality and Sunlight.

[From "Homes and How to Make Them"—published by J. R. Osgood & Co.]

Dear John: In arranging your plans, be generous if you can; not lavish or extravagant in expenditure, but generous in feeling and expression. Let your doors and windows be wide and your roof be high. A wide door is far more convenient than a narrow one, usually much better in appearance, and for the windows,—when shall we learn the unspeakable worth of the bountiful light of heaven? Does Mrs. John complain that the sunlight will fade her carpets? Let them fade, and know of a truth that all the colors of all the carpets of all the looms that ever throbbed are not worth to the civilized mortals who tread the dust-containing fabrics one single hour of unobstructed sunshine. Is it that our deeds are evil that we seem to love darkness rather than light; or is it through our ignorant exclusion of this glorious gift, "offspring of heaven's first born," that we are left to wander in so many darksome ways? Be generous, did I say? rather try to be just to yourself. Practically, the larger opening is scarcely more expensive than the small one. The work of construction is no greater, and the material for the door or window costs but little more than the thicker wall of wood, brick or stone.

I remember an old farm-house on the side of one of our rocky New England hills, a type of a fashion almost extinct, broad and brooding, low in the walls, small windows and far between, high roof, wide gables, pierced by windows of various sizes, and queerly located, as if the huge garret were inhabited by a mixed company of dwarfs and giants, each with his own particular window suited to his heighth; in the centre a massive chimney like the base of a tower, out of which the smoke rolled in lazy curves. At the east side of the house, under the narrow eaves, and opening I think, into the long kitchen, was one huge window, as high as the others, and as wide as it was high. How it found a place there I never knew, but nothing could be more benign in effect than its generous breadth. The panes were small and green and warped, after the manner of glass known to former times; but through it the sun poured a flood of warm light every morning, and on winter evenings the glow of the firelight within made a grand illumination far across the snowy hillsides, yet I don't think the old window was ever truly appreciated. The others seemed to despise it, and try to keep at a distance in their narrowness and regularity. The little square loop-holes in the gables lifted their diminutive eye-brows in contempt; even the green door looked blank and scowling, as though at a possible rival. I fancy the housekeeper fretted at the larger curtain covering the wide, unwinking eye, and the extra labor required on cleaning days. But this one great square window was the sole redeeming feature beneath the roof of the ancient farm-house.

Beneath the roof, I say. The roof itself was, and is, and ever shall be the great charm of those antiquated houses, not of the old alone, but if any new house shall ever rise, if you succeed in building your own so that it shall seem to be the abiding place of the incarnate genius of domestic happiness, the roof of your earthly paradise will be bold and high. Pierced by windows, it may be, and broken by gables, but steep enough to shed rain or snow, and high enough to be plainly visible to the coming guest, promising safety and welcome beneath its tranquil shade. Practically, the steep roof is better than any other, because a flat one cannot be as permanently covered with any known material at so little cost, the multitudes of cheap and durable patent roofings to the contrary notwithstanding. By steep roofs I mean any that have sufficient pitch to allow the use of slate or shingle. Such need not be intricate or difficult of construction to look well, but must be honest and useful. They can be neither unless visible, and here we see the holy alliance of use and beauty; for the character and expression of a building depend almost wholly upon the roof. You will lose, too, under the flat roof, the roomy garret of the old high-roofed houses. These have for me a wonderful fascination. Whether the rain upon the shingles, the mingled fragrance of seeds and drying herbs, the surprising bigness of the chimney, the mysteries hidden in the worm-eaten chests, the almost saintly charm of the long unused spinning wheels, crumbling mementoes of the patient industry of former generations, or the stars through the chinks in the shrunken boards, the old garret and all its associations are among the "long, long thoughts." I sometimes doubt whether the modern conveniences we are so fond of proclaiming are really an equivalent to the rising generation for this happiest of play-rooms, this storehouse of heir-coons, this silent but potent tie, that binds us to the life, the labor and the, love of the past.

Let there be light, too, in this upper story. Spinning-spiders and stinging-wasps are not half so terrible to the children, who will make a half-way paradise of the garret, as the darkness that is covered by an unlighted roof.

If you have been living in cottage chambers, rooms in which a full-sized man can hardly stand erect in the centre, and a well-grown baby scarcely creep at the sides; unventilated, heated beyond endurance during the hot, summer days, and retaining their heat through the long, wakeful nights; rooms in which the furniture must stand at various distances from the walls as if marshalled from the house-cleaning battle, but in which even the making of beds is a work of supreme difficulty,—if you've been living in such rooms as these, I don't wonder whatever architects or other men may say, that Mrs. John objects, and insists on good, square chambers. But good, square chambers no more require flat roofs than good, square common-sense requires a flat head. I don't believe you will contrive a house of whatever form or size that may not be covered more cheaply, more securely and more tastefully by a steep roof than by a flat one. Of course I'm supposing your house to be isolated. Buildings in crowded streets or in blocks require, on all accounts, entirely different treatment. By all means, then, have wide doors, generous windows and high roofs; and if you must build with strict economy, you may be morally certain that your house, though not perhaps as altogether lovely as you might wish, will still be cheerful and homelike.

Allow me to add, that while faithfully striving to build a house that shall be honest and cheerful, you will surely find yourself growing in the same direction.

Readables.

We have noticed in political life that when a man owed another man money and the creditor became a candidate for office, the debtor was sure to vote against him. It is a rule which we never knew any one to account for and has very few exceptions. A Massachusetts editor who is violently opposed to Gen. Butler turns out to be Butler's debtor for $1000. Instead of repaying his benefactor by the best means in his power, the debtor opposes him in every conceivable way. Such is gratitude in the nineteenth century!

Rev. A. C. Hardy in a letter to the Lebanon Free Press nominates Senator Cragin for the Presidency. A truer man could not be named. His Senatorial life has been creditable to his constituents and an honor to himself.

The Boston Globe says that "E. A. Rollins of Concord, treasurer of the Union Pacific Railroad, is talked of as a republican candidate for Congress from the first district." Concord is not in the first district; E. A. Rollins does not reside in Concord; neither is he treasurer of the Union Pacific Railroad. The Globe evidently thinks E. H. Rollins has Congressional aspirations, which is not known to be a fact. E. A. Rollins is the Ex-Commissioner of Internal Revenue. E. H. Rollins is an Ex-Congressman from the second district.

Kilpatrick is as unfortunate for his friends as a former editor of the New Haven Letter was. Kil. made a speech in Newark, N. J., recently, announcing his return to the republican party. Next day the city went heavily democratic!

A despatch from Fort Garry announces the declaration of outlawry issued by the court of Queen's bench in Manitoba against Louis Riel. This action disposes of the question whether Riel is or is not a fugitive from justice, and of any claim he might make to sit unmolested in the house of commons.

Florence Tilton, the eldest daughter of Theodore, has been appointed a teacher in a public school in Brooklyn.

"There is one fact," says the Dubuque Times, "which is worth volumes as exhibiting the difference between democratic and republican supremacy at the South. During the 30 years of democratic rule in Arkansas 26 school houses were built; while in four years of republican rule 1,140 school houses were built and 100,000 school children received instruction."

A Tennessee man wrote his will on a paper collar, and it passed through the Probate Court as well as any other will, though a little unhandy about filing.

A new use for the great piers of the Brooklyn bridge has just been discovered. Lewis Miller and John Cannon fought a brief battle on the summit of one of the piers, in the course of which victory perched upon Miller, and an iron bar descended upon Cannon.

Democratic orators are getting very explicit in their autobiographies. Dan Voorhees says he was "born in the ranks of labor." Another, courting the favor of the grangers, shouted: "Yes, I may truly say, I was born between two rows of corn." At this juncture a tipsy agriculturist at the further end of the house hiccoughed out: "A (hic) pumpkin, by —!"

With the loss of the British ship Kingsbridge, in the English Channel, Captain Symonds, an American, and his wife and daughter, were drowned.

The "oyster war" which has been waged for a number of years past between Virginia and Maryland is practically ended by a decision of Judge Bond of the United States Circuit Court at Richmond. He decides that the Virginia satute which prohibits the citizens of the other States from taking oysters in Virginia waters is in violation of the fourth article of the constitution of the United States, which declares that "the citizens of each State shall be entitled to all the privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States." This decision gives to every citizen of the United States the right to take oysters in Virginia waters, provided he pays the same amount of license as Virginians.

The total number of southerners now excluded from holding office by reason of political disabilities is less than 150.

Complete returns from all the legislative districts in Indiana show the following results. The senate stands, democrats 23, republicans 24, and independents 3. In the house the democrats have 52, republicans 37, and independents 11. The democratic majority on the State ticket will probably reach 18,000.

The Fiji Islands have been formally annexed to Great Britain.

A cool and daring robbery was committed in Boston by a man who drove up in a wagon to the public library building, and mounting to the roof of the extension, on which workmen were busily engaged, borrowed a hammer and a chisel, with which he deliberately proceeded to remove the copper lightning rods from the building. In this work he was engaged for several hours, no one suspecting but that he was acting under orders from the proper authority. After loading his wagon he drove away and the city will have to put up new lightning rods.

A suit of issue is served on the counsel of Henry Ward Beecher in the Tilton libel suit case and it will be placed on the November calendar.

The Graphic is severe upon the Tammany nominations for Aldermen, saying that in the list there is hardly one who represents the wealth, culture and decency of the community, and very few who can by any possibility be supposed to be connected with the interests of commerce, art, charity, religion, or education. Most of the men are ex-firemen, a good many of them are now keeping corner groggeries, more of them are rowdies, and a few of them should be in Sing Sing.

Dr. Ayer, of Lowell, will leave his handsome daughter $2,000,000 in greenbacks. There's a sugar-coated pill worth taking.

The grand jury of the oyer and terminer court of Brooklyn found an indictment against Demas Barnes for libel, for publication of an article in the Brooklyn Argus, intimating that improper relations had existed between the late Mrs. Henry C. Bowen and Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. By consent the case was transferred to the Brooklyn city court for a hearing at the next term.

State News.

Three sons of Samuel Hayden, of Hollis, have caught over twenty-seven hundred pigeons so far, this season.

The New Hampshire Board of Revenue, auxiliary to the National Board for raising funds in aid of the Centennial celebration at Philadelphia in 1876, met in Manchester, last week. Col. George W. Riddle of Manchester was appointed general agent for raising funds for the purpose in this State.

The Amoskeag Mills at Manchester shut down every Saturday of this month. Next month, all the mills there will run on full time.

A few days ago, one John Laws of Londonderry, borrowed a horse and carriage of George E. Fifield, on pretense of going to Windham, but instead, went to Nashua, and had the team sold by auction. It was purchased by William Melvin, of Hudson, for $27, and with the money in hand Laws decamped. Fifield got track of his team and reclaimed it.

A Milford man has a cousin who has lived within a mile of him for forty years and never had a call from that cousin until this year, and then the visit was made in fruit time.

A little child of William Campbell, who resides in Manchester, was very severely burned on Wednesday evening. It was left alone with several other children in a room in which there was an open fireplace, and in some way its clothing took fire, and when discovered the front part was nearly burned off, and the child was seriously injured in the face, breast and limbs.

The Nashua Gazette complains of the conduct of some of the female members of the "Black Crook" company when in that city on Sunday, and says they pitched coppers.

O. W. Hills walked out in the Nottingham woods and accidentally discovered two coons wrestling in a crow's nest. He went for David Rollins, who took his gun and put a charge of shot in the nest. It brought out two "ring-tails." Another shot brought down one coon, and two more shots brought the other. They weighed forty pounds.

G. W. Hughes, station agent at Windham depot, while shifting some cars, was caught by a wheel which undertook to climb his leg. The result was a compound fracture of the foot, and the small bone of the leg was badly broken.

Henry H. Hallam, formerly of Exeter, has been appointed United States consul at Honda, New Granada.

The Next Congress.

[Boston Advertiser.]

The members elected to the forty-fourth Congress from all the States which have thus far made choice compare as follows with the present delegations:

STATES	XLIIID CONG. Rep.	XLIIID CONG. Dem.	XLIVTH CONG. Rep.	XLIVTH CONG. Dem.
Maine	5		5
Vermont	3		3*
West Virginia		3		3
North Carolina	3	5	1	7
Ohio	13	7	7	13
Indiana	9	4	5	8
Iowa	9		8	1
Nebraska	1		1
Oregon	1			1
Total	44	19	30	33

*Including one yet to be elected in Judge Poland's district.

From this table it will be seen that rather more than a fifth of the next house of representatives has been chosen; and the democrats seem, by the returns received, to have gained fourteen members, counting twenty-eight votes on a division. A full house consists of 292 members. In the present Congress the republicans have 195, the democrats, including "liberals," 96, and there is a vacancy in the representation at large of the State of Louisiana. A majority of the whole house is 147. The democrats, therefore, have 114 members yet to elect in order to control the house, as they profess to be able to do. Can they get so many?

In the thirteen southern States yet to hold elections,—including Maryland and Missouri,—the democrats have already fifty-one out of ninety-four members. We suppose that by the policy of intimidation, which they have so unblushingly and so successfully practised during recent months, they will make some gains, probably not less than ten and possibly fifteen in that section. If the larger estimate should prove correct, they will have sixty-six members from the South in addition to those already elected, and they will require forty-eight more from the northern States to give them a bare majority. At present they have but twenty-seven, and they must make an absolute gain of twenty-one in order to succeed. We do not believe they can make such a gain. Two years ago many doubtful districts, particularly in New York and Pennsylvania, were carried unexpectedly by the republicans. It is more than likely that a considerable proportion of these will be lost again. In some strongly republican districts in the North, weak nominations have been made, and the party is likely to suffer seriously for that reason. Nevertheless, we doubt whether when the American people are confronted by the possibility of return of the democratic party to power, they will fail to put forth all their strength to prevent it. After the elections that have taken place the numbers of the two parties are sure to be uncomfortably close, and there is every reason for active exertion to save every doubtful district. For the first time in many years the republicans are called upon to fight, not for a large majority, but for a majority. We hope the lesson will not be lost.

Letter from Dartmouth.

HANOVER, October 14th.

One of the three class races took place this afternoon, that of the Senior and Junior crews. The colors of the different classes are for the Seniors, white; Juniors, Green; Sophomores, red; Freshmen, yellow. Until this morning, everything seemed to be favorable for the Junior crew, who seemed to be the favorites on account of having had the most practice. On going to the boat house the Juniors found their boat had been broken by some one breaking off the rudder. The only object of this contemptible trick was to put off the race so that the other crews might gain more time for practice. After working until 3 P. M., the rudder was at last fixed. The course was straight away, two and a half miles. At 4 P. M., the boats got started, the Seniors having the advantage of a half boat's length; after pulling five strokes Mitchell of the Junior crew, who pulled in our boat crew last summer, broke his oar.

The Seniors pulled to the end of the course in 21 minutes. The Junior crew came in 20 minutes later pulling with four oars.

The referee after hearing the testimony of outsiders alone decided that the race belonged to the Seniors. The fates seemed to have been against the Juniors, judging by the amount of ill luck that has befallen them to-day. They are still confident that they could have won the race. It is their purpose after the remaining races to row against the Seniors.

Portsmouth was represented on the Junior crew by E. C. Stimson, who pulled the bow oar. "BUG."

Liquor Selling a Bar to Naturalization.

Foster's Democrat (Dover) says: "A case somewhat novel in its character came before the circuit court this morning. John Durkan applied to be naturalized and admitted as a citizen. He was asked about his business and occupation and it came out that he was engaged constantly in the sale of intoxicating liquors in violation o law. We understand the Court held that a person engaged in criminal violation of law is not entitled to papers of naturalization and citizenship. The law we believe especially enjoins that a person applying for naturalization must show good moral character, and on this point it was substantially decided that an open and self-confessed law violator cannot be deemed as sufficiently clear within the meaning of the law: We are told that the same case came before Judge Ladd at the last term which he held here and he decided in the same way."

—Henry Haynes, of Peoria, who accidentally shot his mother-in-law, has made three attempts to commit suicide. Some folks may sneer at him, but when one sits down and calmly reasons the thing he must admit that it is hard to lose a mother-in-law just as the preserve season is at its height.

Mark Twain's Cold.

Mark Twain being invited to attend the anniversary exercises of a New York grammar school, lately, was obliged to decline, and sent the following letter, giving his reasons:

Hartford, Ct, October 5, 1874.

Miss K. W. White: Dear Madam—I regret exceedingly being unable to accept your kind invitation (also P. G. Duffy's) to be present at your commencement exercises, but the annoying and vexatious illness which still hangs about me, together with some business engagements, will prevent. The illness to which I refer is a severe cold which I took in New York, last winter, during the lecture season. Perhaps the recital of how I tried to cure this cold, may be of interest, and may serve instead of the few remarks you so politely asked me to make to the friends and pupils. The first time I began to sneeze, a friend told me to go and bathe my feet in hot water and go to bed. I did so. Shortly after another friend told me to get up and take a cold shower bath. I did that also. Within the hour, another friend assured me that it was policy to feed a cold and starve a fever. I had both. So I thought it best to fill myself up for the cold, and let the fever starve awhile. In a case of this kind I seldom do things by halves; I ate pretty heartily. I conferred my custom upon a stranger, who had just opened his restaurant on Cortlandt street, near the hotel, that morning, paying so much for a full meal. He waited near me in respectable silence until I had finished feeding my cold, when he inquired if the people about New York were much afflicted with colds. I told him I thought they were. He then went out and took in his sign. I started up toward the office, and on the way encountered another bosom friend, who told me a quart of warm salt water would come as near curing a cold as anything in the world. I hardly thought I had room for it, but I tried it anyhow. The result was surprising. I believe I threw up my immortal soul. Now, as I give my experience only for the benefit of those of your friends who are troubled with this distemper, I feel that they will see the propriety of my cautioning them against following such portions of it as proved inefficient with me, and acting upon this conviction I warn them against warm salt water. It may be a good enough remedy, but I think it is rather too severe. If I had another cold in the head, and there was no course left me but to take an earthquake or a quart of warm salt water, I would take my chances on the earthquake. After this everybody in the hotel became interested, and I took all sorts of remedies—hot lemonade, cold lemonade, pepper tea, boneset, stewed Quaker, hoarhound syrup, onions and loaf sugar lemons and brown sugar, vinegar and laudanum, five bottles fir balsam, eight bottles cherry pectoral, and ten bottles of Uncle Sam's remedy, but all without effect. One of the prescriptions given by an old lady, was—well, it was dreadful. She mixed a decoction composed of molasses, catnip, peppermint, aqua fortis, turpentine, kerosene, and various other drugs, and instructed me to take a wineglass of it every fifteen minutes. I never took but one dose; that was enough. I had to take to my bed, and remain there two entire days. When I felt a little better more things were recommended. I was desperate, and willing to take anything. Plain gin was recommended, then gin and molasses, then gin and onions. I took all three. I detected no particular result, however, except that I had acquired a breath like a turkey buzzard, and had to change my boarding place. At this new place they suggested a different remedy to any yet tried. A sheet bath was recommended. I had never refused a remedy yet, and it seemed poor policy to commence then; therefore I determined to take a sheet bath, though I had no idea what sort of arrangement it was. It was administered at midnight, and the weather was very frosty. My back and breast were stripped, and a sheet (there appeared to be a thousand yards of it) soaked in ice water was wound around me until I resembled a swab for a columbiad. It is a cruel expedient. When the chilly rag touches one's warm flesh it makes him start with sudden violence and gasp for breath, just as men do in the death agony. It froze the marrow in my bones and stopped the beating of my heart. I thought my time had come. When I recovered from this a friend recommended the application of a mustard plaster to my breast. I believe that would have cured me effectually if it had not been for young Clemens. When I went to bed I put the mustard plaster where I could reach it when I should be ready for it, but young Clemens got hungry in the night and ate it up. I never saw any child have such an appetite. I am confident that he would have eaten me if I had been healthy. After all this experience you cannot wonder that I dread going to New York, and feel obliged to decline your kind invitation. Wishing you a successful and pleasant time, I remain, very respectfully,

S. L. CLEMENS, (Mark Twain.)

A Careful Girl.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

A blooming country damsel, dressed in the height of fashion, came tripping along in company with her beau, and, while crossing a street, turned suddenly around to look at a passing object, just as the tip of her dainty shoe rested on the curb stone of the gutter. As she threw the weight of her body on the insufficient foothold, her toe slipped, and plump into the dirt went her little foot, and splash over her stockings and garments went the mud. Her gallant speedily helped her on to the sidewalk, where she presented a pitiable appearance and then endeavored to free her from her sudden acquisition of soil with his handkerchief.

"It's no use, Charley," sobbed the rural beauty. "It won't come clean; and—and—my st-stockings are ruined."

"Never mind the stockings," consolingly responded her swain; "I can buy you a new pair."

"Buy me a new pair; where would I put them on?" said she.

"Why, we can go to a hotel for that matter," replied Charley.

"Never," almost screamed the frightened girl; "I'd sooner jump into the river than go to a hotel with a man that I'm not married to."

Charley seemed conscience-stricken as the enormity of his proposition flashed upon his mind, and when last we saw the pair, they were in quest of a clean pair of hose and a proper place to put them on.

The Prince of Wales' Last.

His Royal Highness has been detected in many an act which has startled the Queen, the last of which is said to be the ordering of $20,000 worth of tickets for the Public Library of Kentucky. Her Majesty, it is stated, did not object to his buying liberally, but in the present condition of the Prince's finances, she thought $20,000 worth was too much for him to invest. It is asserted that he insisted on sending his order to Governor Bramlette, assuring his royal mother that he knew what he was about, for that as $2,500,000 was to be distributed to the ticket holders on November 30, and in such gifts as $250,000, $100,000, &c., he would have a splendid chance at one of these splendid prizes, and thus easily pay his debts.

Well Worth Reading.

Who is there that does not desire to be always exempted from indigestion—to have a good appetite, a painless stomach, a clear head, a regular pulse, a healthy complexion? If this meets the eye of any who are not thus blessed, let them try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. We guarantee that this delightful tonic will restore any stomach, however weak, to a healthy condition; that it will bring back the truant appetite, and give permanent vigor to the whole system. The feeble and emaciated, suffering from dyspepsia or indigestion in any form, are advised, for the sake of their own bodily and mental comfort, to try it. Ladies of the most delicate constitution testify to its harmless and restorative properties. Physicians everywhere, disgusted with the adulterated liquors of commerce, prescribe it as the safest and most reliable of all stomachics.

The Ancient Egyptians learned the art of preserving their bodies for many generations, but all the world have not been able to discover an infallible preventative that will stop the hair from falling off Bearine is without doubt the safest dressing, and is also the most delightful preparation to use, ever made. 8

Portsmouth democrats are not over-satisfied with the Western victories, as they fear that the administration will be more anxious to carry the New Hampshire election next March than if there were a large republican majority assured in the House of Representatives. Besides, the necessity of doing everything possible toward securing the House, will lessen the number of persons voting the regular republican ticket, and lead to more care in the selection of candidates.

Mr. C. N. Holmes advertises his readiness to recut, set and file saws of all kinds, to sharpen shears and scissors and to hone and concave razors, at No. 16 Penhallow street. There should be enough of such work in the city to keep him fully employed.

Mr. William Moses, of Sagamore Creek, was seriously injured in the hip and side, on Saturday last, by falling from a tall ladder while in the act of gathering fruit, the ladder being placed against a well loaded limb, which after being stripped of the fruit, sprung back to its natural position, tripping the ladder.

The Lyceum.

The sale of reserved seat tickets to the Gallery will begin this morning. The managers promise to attend to the proper ventilation and warmth of the Temple, and with proper care concerning these matters, and such a select audience as attends a lyceum course in this city, the gallery is really the best place in the Temple.

Rockingham County Conveyances.

List of conveyances in Portsmouth for the week ending Oct. 17, as per Rockingham Records:

Friend Chronicle: The Independent Battalion in consequence of the withdrawal of several officers and members is undergoing re-organization. In its temporary disorganized condition it would have been impracticable to furnish an escort respectable in numbers on the occasion of the visit of the Newburyport Veterans. A corporal's guard would hardly be in harmony with the spirit of the motto of the Battalion, "Pro Civitatis Honoris;" a military parade that is not very well carried out is worse than none. The friends of the Battalion will bear in mind the fact that a soldier can better endure the reproach of discourtesy (even though none were intended,) than the disgrace which would attach to a poor parade. Those who know the writer are aware that he is restrained from participating in every military pageant, only by the utmost violence to his feelings. Circumstances beyond control, Friday, alone prevented the appearance of the city militis. E. A. TILTON.

Republicanism in Kentucky.

Some idea of the feeling in Kentucky may be obtained from the following extract from a recent letter from that section: "The resolutions of '98 were read to us in childhood, committed to memory in our teens, and at twenty-one we swore by Calhoun and voted the democratic ticket. Our early piety did not embrace the commandment, "Love thy neighbor as thyself," irrespective of his political status; for how could we esteem the men who were "robbing us of our niggers?" Such was our training in general, and to deviate from these first lessons was no easy task, especially as the result was ostracism from that part of society which controlled business, and that on which we depended for employment. There are 80,000 men—white Kentuckians—who, notwithstanding all this, are loyal in every sense of the term. Our ranks are unshaken, though we fight to the front and rear. Between two fires—the taunts of the Southern rebel and the derision of Northern fanaticism—we are marching upward and onward in the cause we deem right. Are we deserving of no praise for our well-doing? Give us peace in the reconstructed States; do not deprive us of our common schools by forcing the civil rights bill upon us, and in less than another five years Kentucky will be under republican control. You may doubt this, but let me say we poll over double the vote now that we did in 1869, and our growth has been steady and healthy."

A Tribute.

The following address has been issued by the Portsmouth Society in New York and Brooklyn in connection with the recent death of Mr. A. A. Peterson, formerly of this city:

NEW YORK, Oct. 13, 1874.

The Executive Committee of the Society of the Sons and Daughters of Portsmouth have to announce to its members the death of their honored brother and President, Archibald A. Peterson.

To most of you our lamented friend was so well known as to make needless any eulogistic words of ours. His boy life and later development gave earnest of the rich, full manhood that has now its honored close. The varied pursuits of his business career, at all times involving large trusts and responsibilities, have been distinguished by a rare fidelity, dignity, and intelligence; yet undiminished has been his fond devotion to family and kindred, to whom his life was a constant benediction, — to the religious teachings of his youth—to the active work of the church of which he was so valued and esteemed a member, and to all of the obligations of the many tender friendships enlisted by his warm, genial, honest nature. His days have been ripe with the noblest characteristics which mark the husband, friend, and Christian gentleman.

If, to these, can be added one virtue, we, his fellow-townspeople, may find it in his ceaseless, loving loyalty to the home of his childhood.

Our deep sympathies go out to those to whom he was nearer and dearer, and our hearts will cherish his memory and his example.

Vanquished by a Cat.

[Kingston (Can.) Whig.]

Mr. Stebbins Peer, the funambulist or rope-walker, who has a cable stretched across the Niagara river, just below the new suspension bridge, and gives exhibitions of his skill in rope-walking, came near meeting with an accident, the other day, which, but for his agility, would undoubtedly have ended his career as a rope-walker. He conceived the brilliant idea of taking a cat on the rope, and starting it on ahead of him, in order to have two sensations at the same time. When about thirty feet from the shore he set the cat on the rope, expecting of course, that the feline would show how the thing was done as well as he could do it himself. But the cat was not at all anxious for funambulism, and instead of making a bee-line across turned upon Peer, climbed upon him, and fastened its teeth in his shoulder. In his efforts to disengage the cat he missed his footing, and had to drop his balance-pole, which fell on the rocks below, and was broken. Peer himself scrambled along the rope back to the shore the best way he could. He succeeded in reaching terra firma, but the exhibition for the day was brought to a close, as a funambulist without a balance-pole is of little account. The pole was subsequently recovered and spliced. Peer will walk again, but will not be likely to take any cats along.

—An excited railway man who shouts into the cars the name of the station, and who hears a great deal of complaint because the names are called indistinctly, wants to know if the public expects tenors for $40 a month.

Alvah Amazeen received a kick on the head from a horse, Saturday. John Chickering was kicked in the abdomen by a horse, Friday. Both were severely injured.

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oxen Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 41 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

sept4 3w PORTSMOUTH SCHOOL COMMITTEE

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with works of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and the magnificent plates are of a character appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interspersion of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustains an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a fitting and beautiful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful picture, in the same colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Faithful Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owes the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among its members. To every series of five subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,000, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; each for subscriptions sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the facsimile signature of James Sutton, President.

Smoked Halibut and Salmon.

600 lbs. Smoked Halibut and Salmon, For sale by BUTLER & LAIGHTON.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curatives he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,

Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,

Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Piano and Singing.

THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

THE PRAYER OF AGASSIZ.

JOHN G. WHITTIER.

On the isle of Penikese,
Ringed about by sapphire seas,
Fanned by breezes salt and cool,
Stood the Master with his school.
Over sails that not in vain
Wooed the west wind's steady strain,
Line of coast that low and far
Stretched its undulating bar,
Wings aslant along the rim
Of the waves they stooped to skim,
Rock and isle and glistening bay,
Fell the beautiful white day.
Said the Master to the youth:
"We have come in search of truth,
Trying with uncertain key
Door by door of mystery;
We are reaching, through His laws,
To the garment-hem of Cause,
Him, the endless, unbegun,
The Unnamable, the One,
Light of all our light the Source,
Life of life, and Force of force,
As with fingers of the blind
We are groping here to find
What the hieroglyphics mean
Of the Unseen in the seen,
What the Thought which underlies
Nature's masking and disguise,
What it is that hides beneath
Blight and bloom and birth and death.
By past efforts unavailing,
Doubt and error, loss and failing,
Of our weakness made aware,
On the threshold of our task
Let us light and guidance ask,
Let us pause in silent prayer."

Then the Master in his place
Bowed his head a little space,
And the leaves by soft airs stirred,
Lapse of wave and cry of bird
Left the solemn hush unbroken
Of that wordless prayer unspoken,
While its wish, on earth unsaid,
Rose to heaven interpreted.
As, in life's best hours, we hear
By the spirit's finer ear
His low voice within us, thus
The All-Father heareth us;
And his holy ear we pain
With our noisy words and vain.
Not for Him our violence
Storming at the gates of sense,
His the primal language, His
The eternal silences!
Even the careless heart was moved,
And the doubting gave assent,
With a gesture reverent,
To the Master well-beloved;
As thin mists are glorified
By the light they cannot hide,
All who gazed upon him saw,
Through its veil of tender awe,
How his face was lifted up
By the old sweet look of it,
Hopeful, trustful, full of cheer,
And the love that casts out fear.
Who the secret may declare
Of that brief, unuttered prayer?
Did the shade before him come
Of th' inevitable doom,
Of the end of earth so near,
And Eternity's new year?

In the lap of sheltering seas
Rests the isle of Penikese;
But the lord of the domain
Comes not to his own again;
Where the eyes that follow fail,
On a vaster sea his sail
Drifts beyond our beck and hail;
Other lips within its bound
Shall the laws of life expound;
Other eyes from rock and shell
Read the world's old riddles well;
But when breezes light and bland
Blow from Summer's blossomed land,
When the air is glad with wings
And the blithe song-sparrow sings,
Many an eye with his still face
Shall the living ones displace,
Many an ear the word shall seek
He alone could fitly speak.
And one name for evermore
Shall be uttered o'er and o'er
By the waves that kiss the shore,
By the curlew's whistle sent
Down the cool, sea-scented air;
In all voices known to her
Nature own her worshipper,
Half in triumph, half lament.
Thither Love shall tearful turn,
Friendship pause uncovered there,
And the wisest reverence learn
From the Master's silent prayer.

Muff Meredith.

A STORY FOR YOUNG FOLKS.

"I don't know what to make of the fellow," said Ralph Jenkins, the head boy at Mr. Branson's private school; "he's so quiet. I suppose he's one of the muff tribe."

Very little gives a lad a name, and young Charles Meredith was instantly dubbed "Muff Meredith" by his schoolfellows. He had arrived from his home in the south of France late in the half year, and the boys had not time to find out what he was made of before they separated for the holidays. Two or three, however, were sure he must be a muff, since he amused himself when out walking by botanizing. He had said aloud that he enjoyed the history lesson, and had been twice in conversation with Soft Sammy, the butt of the school.

Two boys beside himself were left at Mr. Branson's for the holidays—Jack Traverse and Sammy Wilkes. Jack looked very sad when the rest drove off, pitying him for being left with the Muff and the Softy; but his spirits were cheered when a dirty note was handed to him over the school gate by a grinning rustic, to the effect that Mr. Greerson's school in the next village, which did not break up for some days, was to have a paper hunt that morning through Brickley, Homewood, etc., and requested the pleasure of any gentleman's company who might be left at Mr. Branson's.

Jack politely passed the note to Mr. Meredith, saying: "I suppose you won't care?"

But Mr. Meredith said, "I should like it of all things, if Sammy doesn't mind being left."

Jack smiles scornfully at the idea of consulting Softy—just like the Muff, though!

"Come on to the study, then," said Jack.

And off they went to ask permission.

Mr. Branson was quite willing to let them go.

"It will be very tiring for you, Meredith," he said.

"I've read Tom Brown, sir," said Meredith, smiling, "and I should like to try."

"And you can drop off after a field or two," said Jack, patronizingly. "I always stick to it to the last."

"But the young fellows and the muffs are not expected to keep up," said Meredith.

Jack looked hard at his companion; but, no! it was impossible the new fellow—the Muff—could be laughing at him.

He was rather a pleasant fellow, Muff, to beguile the tedious highroad walk to the place of meeting. Of course he knew nothing about English sport, but he had travelled and seen queer things, of which he spoke modestly enough. He was far better than the Softy to spend the holidays with, Jack decided.

The paper hunt once begun, the Muff began to show signs of spirit, which surprised Jack. He often put them on the right scent, and grew intensely interested in the matter, although Jack thought it foolish of him to wait once to help a very little lad over a high hedge, and again to caution another against taking long draughts of water from an icy-cold well.

The fun grew fast and furious. Jack, the Muff, and the little lad of all who was as fleet as a deer, were all together, when the small boy tripped and fell, rolling down a steep bank.

"Forward! every man for himself!" said Jack, running on. "Come on," he shouted angrily, for the Muff had stooped to pick up the boy.

"Come on; he'll shake right!" said Jack, who did not want to loose the Muff's company, he had such a capital nose for a scent! but just like him! the Muff would stay, would pick up the boy. Jack saw him no more; he could not lose the fun, whatever happened.

That evening, footsore, weary and jaded, Jack reached home to find no Meredith.

"He is at Fairholm Castle," explained Mr. Branson. "It seems that Sir John Fairholm's little boy met with an accident at the paper-chase, and Meredith picked him up, and carried him to the nearest farm house, which happened to be on his father's estate. Lady Fairholm has written to me requesting that Meredith may remain with them for a time as little Reginald has taken a great fancy to him. The boy's arm is broken and he is much bruised."

"Poor little chap!" said Jack. "Luck for Muff, if he knows how to use it," he added to himself. "Sir John has splendid horses, and the trout stream at Fairholm is a stunner. I wish I was there. Heigho! and now I'm left with Softy."

Next morning, however, came another note for Jack, less dirty than the one of the previous day. It ran:

"DEAR JACK: Ask Mr. Branson's leave to come over here for the day. Lady Fairholm wishes it. The little boy is better and we are to have some fun. Yours,

"CHARLES MEREDITH.

"P. S. The groom is to go for you with the pony and wait."

Mr. Branson readily gave Jack leave to go to Fairholm, and he enjoyed his day, mightily, riding, fishing, and lying on the grass with Meredith, who could do all three as well as Jack himself. Sir John was most kind, and Jack, who felt a trifle shy before him, was amazed at the quiet, gentlemanly way in which Meredith answered all his questions, seeming perfectly at home.

"You must come again soon," said Sir John, as Jack bade him good-bye; "and bring your other school-fellow with you. We can mount you all three, and I feel I can hardly do enough for my friend here, who makes such a capital head nurse."

Fairholm was a charming place to spend the holidays, as Jack found; and even Soft Sammy liked the change, though he declined to mount. Here Jack discovered, directed by Sir John, that Meredith was a first-rate rider, and an excellent shot, besides being gifted with a quiet presence of mind in danger, which was better than Jack's boldness.

There was one event which forever wiped out the ill-deserved epithet of "Muff" from Meredith's name. The keeper's thatched lodge took fire one night when Jack, too, was sleeping at the Castle. The whole place was roused, but it was Meredith who was first in climbing the slaty verandah and rescuing the twin children of the keeper at the risk of his life. There was much to tell the other boys when they returned from their holidays. Meredith was Jack's bosom friend and hero now, and the other boys were very dull not to have found him out before they left. Because a fellow liked flowers need he be soft? Because his lessons came easy to him was he a sap? So ran Jack's remarks on the subject, all the more glibly that Jack himself had at first shared the common error about the new boy.

And why shouldn't he say a word now and then to Soft Sammy if he liked? Mr. Branson said Sammy would turn out a clever man if he wasn't badgered; he would be a chemist! Yes, they might laugh! Not a blue-and-red-bottled chemist, but a fellow with a laboratory at Fairholm, and Sammy nearly blew himself up there once; but Sir John only laughed, and said it was in the pursuit of science; and so Jack rattled on. There is no space left to give more of the history of Charles Meredith, but he is first favorite in school now, and the lads have found out that to be fond of study, and to be kind to the young and ignorant, is no way beneath the dignity of a boy who can yet ride and play with the best of them. So ends my story of the Muff.

—A. T. Stewart, of New York, pays a tax of seventy-seven thousand and eight hundred dollars on his two stores and dwelling house. The assessed value of his retail store, at Broadway and Tenth Street, is $1,150,000; of his wholesale Store, at Broadway and Chambers street, $850,000; and of his mansion, in Fifth Avenue, $600,000. Besides these properties Mr. Stewart has several millions of real estate scattered about that city.

Daily Chronicle.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1874.

That Third Term.

The New York Herald has been sounding Congressmen on this "goose" question. Hear them talk:

Cragin, Senator, republican, says it is an abstract question, and ought to be treated in the abstract.

Wadleigh, Senator, republican. If any man ever had the remotest show for a third nomination it is Grant, but the Herald's discussion of Cæsarism killed the feeble chance he may have had. Before saying what he would do about supporting him he would have to know precisely the circumstances and all the facts, which conjecture or imagination could not now furnish.

Parker, Hosea W., democrat. Not a bit of respect for any advocate of a third term.

Pike, Austin F., republican. There was only one answer to Grant's prospective tenure, and that was if the people want him the people will nominate him and make his election doubly sure.

Small, William B., republican, is opposed to a third term, and could not give the candidate renominated a third time his support.

Readables.

The friends of Tilton and Moulton say they have excellent reason for believing that Beecher's suit for libel will never be prosecuted; that it was designed odly to influence public opinion temporarily in the pastor's favor. They deny the reports that Tilton has made any money by selling statements or letters. Prominent Brooklynites outside Plymouth Church declare that Beecher is rapidly sinking, notwithstanding the tremendous effort of his adherents to keep him up; that in less than six months he will be forced to resign; that inwardly he is full of fears, though he believes in his luck and is resolved to stick it out to the last.

The Baltimore American says: There will be the usual jubilation over democratic victory in Ohio. It will be hailed as a great revolution in public sentiment, a crushing rebuke to the administration, a mighty condemnation of the "third term." And yet nothing is further from the truth. Upon national issues parties stand in Ohio just as they did two years ago. Whatever glorification is indulged in by the inflationists is entirely legitimate and proper. They have achieved a great victory. But the democratic editor who throws up his hat and shouts himself hoarse over what he affects to call "a hard money victory," is playing the part of a melancholy clown, who, like Mr. Sergeant Buzfuz, finds it difficult to smile with an aching heart.

The State Treasurer of Pennsylvania has recently completed a purchase of bonds for that State, which brings up the total amount of bonds redeemed by him since december, 1873, to over $1,000,000. It is officially announced that an additional amount of $300,000 will be redeemed before the 30th proximo. The total reduction of the State debt of Pennsylvania, therefore, for the present fiscal year may safely be set down at $1,000,000, which is nearly up to the average of the last 13 years. Within the period beginning in 1861 and ending in 1874, the republican administrators of the State Government have paid off about $19,000,000 of the State debt—an average of nearly $1,500,000 yearly. In striking contrast to this stands the record that during the period from 1830 to 1861, when the democrats held almost undisputed sway, the State debt ran up from nothing to over $40,000,000. The people of Pennsylvania will decide in November from these facts which of the two parties is most worthy of their approbation.

The Utica Herald says: New York must not give quasi indorsement to inflation and repudiation by electing a State ticket which, like that elected in Ohio, calls itself democratic. The democracy of New York is not to be trusted when it claims a victory won as that in Ohio is won. It was a victory for patriots to laments. It was a republican defeat which will do more to elect the republican ticket in New York State than a republican victory could have done. We repeat with emphasis, republican defeat in Ohio makes doubly sure republican victory in New York.

The Chicago Times, under the heading "Next to the Deck Head," speaks of Vice President Wilson as "the left bower of the government."

The Cincinnati Enquirer is, of course, very happy over the result in Ohio. Here are a couple of the points it makes: "The democracy of Ohio didn't repudiate Pendletonism worth a picayune on Tuesday. The attention of the New York World and of several other newspapers is invited to the vote of the people of Ohio on the 13th inst." And again: "Augustus Schell proposes to have New York celebrate the democratic victory in Ohio. Sall in, Augustus. You are entitled to toss up your cap; but don't let those hard-money fellows appropriate any of the glory."

Mr. Pleasant Yell is a candidate for the Texas legislature. How'l he do?

Four prisoners escaped from the Auburn, Me., jail, Sunday afternoon, by knocking down the jailer, Mr. Littlefield, with a bottle and overpowering the turnkey, who accompanied him. One convict named Smith was shot and is reported dying. Three of the escaped jail-birds have been recaptured. Mr. Littlefield was badly hurt about the head.

Hon. Edward S. Estey, of Ithaca, N. Y., whom the democrats nominated for Congress under the supposition that he was a liberal, declines to run because he is a republican and intends to vote for Dix.

By a misplaced switch on the Baltimore Railroad, Sunday morning, part of an express train was wrecked, but the lives of all the passengers were saved by the fidelity of the engineer and fireman, who were killed at their posts, though they might have saved themselves by deserting the train.

Andy Johnson asserted, in a late speech in Tennessee, that the expenses of the present democratic State government for one year are more than the expenses of four years while he was Governor.

In view of recent democratic successes in Ohio it is pertinent to quote the Columbus (O.) State Journal, which states that in the following county offices in that State, democratic officials have lately defaulted in the amounts named: Wayne, $20,000; Holmes, $32,000; Darke $37,000; Fairfield $100,000; Butler, $150,000, and Monroe—just discovered—an amount not yet known.

Chelsea, Winthrop and Boston are to decide at the coming election whether the last-named city shall swallow up the other two.

Iowa did well. In spite of the independent and factional movements, the republicans gain 6,000 over the vote of last year.

Public lands were disposed of by the government during the last fiscal year, amounting to 9,530,873 acres, the cash receipts for which were $2,469,978.

Dr. Nathaniel B. Shurtleff, ex-mayor of Boston, died of apoplexy at his home on Satarday night.

Brigham Young's health is reported very poor, and his life is believed to be of short duration.

Susan B. Anthony's Leavings.

[N. Y. World.]

Of late years the world has found to its satisfaction or regret that a great many of its historical characters never existed, and the rest of them were not in real life all that popular fancy had painted them. With William Tell proved to have been as mythical as Mrs. Harris, Judas Iscariot a well-meaning and much-maligned individual, Pocahontas a copper-colored Topsy, and George Washington excessively human, we have been forced to entertain the conviction that nothing was to be depended upon when once we forsook the solid ground of total incredulity. Still we have always, as individuals, cherished a firm and steadfast hope that at least one article of humanity would be found equal to sample and according to invoice, that Miss Susan B. Anthony, at least, would prove to have been yesterday and the day before what she is to-day and bids fair to be forever. From the dusk and dew of the early Olympiads our convictions as to the character of her career have been consistent, and we have fondly fancied her devoted to single bedsteads and blessedness. She might have made snowballs of the first curled snow that ever hung on the original Dian's temple, or reproached her sister vestal Rhea, for that little lapse of virtue which providentially induced a she-wolf to inaugurate the baby-farming business. But were this so, or not so, no one has ever doubted that, while her twin brother, Mark, was in company with a woman whom he did not introduce as the daughter of a Radical ex-Congressman from Illinois, drinking the Libyan stars to sleep and lighting lamps that outshone Canopus, she was in the flush of her grim girlhood preaching celibacy and reconciling male humanity to its practice. True, when the curtain lifted at Brooklyn, and we beheld her—Susan B.—seated on the knee of Mr. Tilton, our confidence suffered a momentary shock, such as we should feel on waking some fine day to find that two and two had ceased to make four and that the solar system had reverted to its anti-Copernican errors. While all admit that Miss Anthony had a father and mother, and may have had a sister and a brother, how many are prepared to credit the statement that she had a nearer one still, and a dearer one? And yet there is no denying that the statement contained in our Chicago correspondence has an air of wonderful verisimilitude. If ever a woman could be depended upon to speak the truth and shame a fellow-worker in the cause of female suffrage, it would be when she was angry exceedingly; and nothing could possess a more spiteful air of veracity than the retort that though Miss Anthony "never had a husband, she might have had at least one if she had not been more particular than" Lucy Stone, Miss Anthony's accuser and chief engineer of the oppositfollowing Female Suffrage Association. The provocation Miss Anthony had received was amply sufficient to justify her in delivering so full a stroke on Mrs. Blackwell's headpiece as to cleave the same down to the waistband; had it not been great we doubt whether (as certain queen-bees' sting once and then perish) Miss Anthony would have availed herself of the supreme revenge which that woman always has who can remind another that had she, the speaker, so willed it, she, the listener, must have had her shopping charged up in another name. For that is how we understand it—not that Miss Anthony refused another man such as Dr. Henry B. Blackwell, but that she refused that gentleman himself, and that Miss Lucy Stone (being unable to take her time and wait with patience) had to "put up with her leavings," to quote the feminine formula applicable on such occasions. The thought of Miss Anthony refusing Dr. Blackwell does not impress us so strongly, perhaps, as the thought of Dr. Blackwell proposing to Miss Anthony, and the latter thought fades away utterly in the noonday glare of the discovery that one man should have had two such strings to his bow as Miss Anthony and Lucy Stone. Had Mr. Boucicault introduced us to such a situation on the stage the unanimous verdict would have been that the man from whom Mr. Boucicault had pirated it was one in whom uncommon sensationalism had been developed at the expense of common sense. Accepting the story as true, we find in it a great comfort for the unmarried and those not about to marry. Nothing could reconcile us to the idea of the existence of a man whom Miss Anthony refused quite so much as the thought that he subsequently was accepted by Lucy Stone. The discovery that Miss Anthony is at least a woman that can be wooed, even if not as yet one that may be won, is reassuring, and may stimulate a later Blackwell to press his suit, and perhaps—more fortunate—adorn his private hearth-stone at the expense of the public platform. But we would like the original Blackwell to favor us with a sketch of his courtship. The autobiography of the man who could make himself happy with Lucy Stone or Susan B. Anthony, when t'other dear charmer was away, would, we are convinced, create excitement in literary circles such as they have not known for years.

A Railway Under The Sea.

[Cinn. Times.]

For many years European people have talked freely of some way of getting themselves and their freights from the Continent to England, and back again, without the delay and discomfort of that horrible two hours passage from Calais to Dover. Swinging cabins tave been proposed—tried, if we are not mistaken—to relieve passengers of the prostrating nausea that they feel there, if nowhere else. Immense steamers were planned—we believe their building commenced—which would ferry over railway trains without change of load. One intellectual idiot spent much money in perfecting plans for a bridge to be erected on immense piers resting on the ocean bed rock, and finally the wild chimera (as we then called it) of a submarine tunnel was projected.

But the world has advanced since then, and the chimera has assumed a realistic appearance. We have forced a hole through the Hoosac range; we have tunneled Mont Cenis; we have run the sea through the Isthmus of Suez; we have stretched a telegraph wire round the world; and, finally, we begin to imagine, Why shouldn't we tunnel the British channel? It is only twenty-five miles of boring.

And so work, in the first stages, has commenced, quietly, but understandingly. Eminent geologists are making explorations to discover whether the rock strata are of a character to sustain the weight of the water above, without too much masonry. Upon that rests the whole question. If, as believed, it proves that the gray chalk which forms the Channel cliffs stretches across the Channel bed in sufficient thickness to encase the tunnel in its waterproof armor, the scheme has no insuperable mechanical obstacle. The expense is then the only question; and it is believed that that can be readily provided for.

—"Mamma, where do the cows get the milk?" asked Willie, looking up from the foaming pan of milk which he had been intently regarding. "Where do you get your tears?" was the answer. After a thoughtful silence he again broke out: "Mamma, do the cows have to be spanked?"

A Life Doubly Assured.

A resident of Bangor, Maine, writing to C. N. CRITTENTON, 7 Sixth Avenue, for a supply of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, mentions incidentally that three months ago a New England Life Insurance Company refused to grant him a policy, on the ground that he was consumptive. "But," he adds, "thanks to the healing properties of that invaluable preparation, my lungs are now perfectly sound, and I yesterday passed a medical examination, without an objection being made, and insured my life for $5,000." dawlw014

The Prince of Wales' Last.

His Royal Highness has been detected in many an act which has startled the Queen, the last of which is said to be the ordering of $20,000 worth of tickets for the Public Library of Kentucky. Her Maiesty, it is stated, did not objest to his buying liberally, but in the present condition of the Prince's finances, she thought $20,000 worth was too much for him to invest. It is asserted that he insisted on sending his order to Governor Bramlette, assuring his royal mother that he knew what he was about, for that as $2,500,000 was to be distributed to the ticket holders on November 30, and in such gifts as $250,000, $100,000, &c., he would have a splendid chance at one of those splendid prizes, and thus easily pay his debts.

Well Worth Reading.

Who is there that does not desire to be always exempted from indigestion—to have a good appetite, a painless stomach, a clear head, a regular pulse, a healthy complexion? If this meets the eye of any who are not thus blessed, let them try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. We guarantee that this delightful tonic will restore any stomach, however weak, to a healthy condition; that it will bring back the truant appetite, and give permanent vigor to the whole system. The feeble and emaciated, suffering from dyspepsia or indigestion in any form, are advised, for the sake of their own bodily and mental comfort, to try it. Ladies of the most delicate constitution testify to its harmless and restorative properties. Physicians everywhere, disgusted with the adulterated liquors of commerce, prescribe it as the safest and most reliable of all stomachics.

The Ancient Egyptians learned the art of preserving their bodies for many generations, but all the world have not been able to discover an infallible preventative that will stop the hair from falling off Bearine is without doubt the safest dressing, and is also the most delightful preparation to use, ever made. 8

Personal.

The opening of the Imperial Hotel at Washington, D. C., on Nov. 1st, with Mr. James S. Pierce as proprietor and Messrs. Edward S. Morrill and Sanford B. Woodward as clerks, is announced in another column. Mr. Pierce's long connection with the Sagamore House at Frost's Point and the Rockingham House in this city has made him known (and most favorably) to thousands of travellers who will not be likely to pass the "Imperial" when searching for a well kept hotel in Washington; and the two clerks are not only men of experience in their line but gentlemen as well, and almost as well known as mine host Peirce—Mr. Morrill having been clerk at the Rockingham for several years, and later one of the proprietors of the Atlantic House at Salisbury Beach, while Mr. Woodward was for years clerk of the Kearsarge House, and since Mr. Morrill's retirement from the office of the Rockingham has acceptably filled his place at that hotel. Mr. Peirce knows how to keep a hotel as well as the next man, and has secured the services of clerks who will ably second his efforts to make the "Imperial" a popular house, by their prompt and courteous attention to all guests. Many a traveller has growled eloquently over the crustiness or quiet insolence of the "flash" hotel-clerks of Washington, but they will never have a chance to growl at anything of the kind at the "Imperial" so long as Pierce runs it and has Morrill and Woodward for assistants in the office.

True Temperance Reform.

The first of a series of union religious temperance meetings was held Sunday evening at the Temple. A very large audience was in attendance, many standing, and the close attention paid to the speakers by all except one young gentleman (?) from out of town, was an evidence of their interest in the movement. The meeting was presided over by Mr. J. Horace Kent, President of the Washingtonian Society, and commenced by singing by the audience, followed by prayer by Rev. Mr. Goss, after which Mr. Kent spoke briefly upon the power of the church in the suppression of intemperance, maintaining that upon it rested a great responsibility, and that upon the administration of its laws as laid down by the Bible, and its teachers, and the practices of its communicants, the temperance reform depended much. He then in turn introduced Rev. A. C. Hardy, Rev. Carlos Martyn, Rev. W. H. Alden, and Rev. Lot L. Harmon, all of whom spoke earnestly and eloquently basing his remarks upon a religious and moral standpoint. The doxology was then sung by the audience and the benediction pronounced by Rev. Mr. DeNormandie. The second of the series will be held on Sunday evening, November 1st.

Attempted Suicide.

A lady whose name we did not learn, but who boards with the Misses Larkin on Middle street, walked down on Adams & Co.'s wharf at the foot of Daniel street, Monday afternoon, and jumped off into the dock, the water not being up to her shoulders. Mr. Martin Hayes, who was passing, ran into the water and waded toward her, while she walked farther out, plunging her head in just as he seized her. On being brought back on the wharf she asked Mr. Hayes why he did not let her alone. She has a husband in California who was expected here on the 15th. For several days she has been despondent and has been watched, her friends apprehending some such trouble as this. She was taken to her boarding house and kindly cared for.

The Opera.

The managers of the lyceum course have with their accustomed enterprise and desire to please their patrons procured one thousand printed programmes and arguments of the Opera of "Martha" (to be distributed to the audience gratuitously) giving a brief account of the adventures of "Martha," Maid of Honor to Queen Anne, upon which the opera is founded. The plan of offering reserved seats in the gallery meets with general approval. The most brilliant audience ever gathered within the walls of the Temple will greet "Martha" to-night.

Laconics.

Thanks to Joseph P. Marden, Esq., of Lafayette road, for a basket of the choicest fruit we have seen in this prolific season; bouncing big Fishers, monster Pearmains and pyramidical "rock" pears. This vicinity is teeming with apples, and the trees have been loaded down with them—but Mr. Marden carries off the palm for variety and size.

A term of the Circuit Court commences in this city to-day.

Ladies having crape veils defaced or kid gloves soiled will do well to read the advertisment of Mrs. Pickering, who also dyes and curls feathers at No. 5 High street.

Don't fail to attend the book sales held every evening at the store under the Franklin House. A rare opportunity is offered to purchase valuable books at very low prices. The ladies are especially invited to call and examine during the day. Books will be sold at private sale at very low prices.

A young man named Cazinc, a "commercial traveller," went off Pier wharf early Sunday morning, and would have been drowned but for Edward Shannon, Chas. Pearson and Michael Corcoran, who heard his cries and found him clinging to a pier. He was warmed up at the gas-house, having been previously warmed up with intoxicating liquor.

A freight brakeman named Aaron Laighton was struck by the bridge at Eliot, Saturday night, and severely hurt. He belongs in Great Falls.

U. S. S. Marion will be taken out of the dry dock this week, in which event the Plymouth, now lying in the lower harbor awaiting sailing orders, will probably be docked before going on her cruise. Preparations for launching the new sloop No. 1 are being made. The contractors for the machinery are now engaged in boring out the propeller shaft hole. The launching will probably be on the 26th.

U. S. S. Gettysburg from Washington, by way of New York and Boston, arrived at the Navy Yard on Monday. She brings stores for different departments.

The figure-head of the old "Franklin" seventy-four, which has rested on a pedestal in the Park at the navy-yard for twenty years—or at least ever since the old ship was brought here to be "repaired" into the splendid steam frigate now bearing the name—was taken down on Monday to be sent to be sent to the naval academy at Annapolis.

State News.

The Peterborough Transcript says: Not all of our readers are aware that there is a genuine gold mine within four miles of this village, yet such is the fact. It was accidentally discovered a few years ago, since which time several specimens of the quartz have been assayed by competent chemists and found to contain paying qualities of gold. Recently a committee consisting of experts from Boston, made a thorough examination of the premises and gave a very favorable report, the result of which is that there will be a company formed in a very short time, and active operations commenced for working the ore. Nearly one half of the $40,000 stock is already taken. There will be four hundred shares at one hundred dollars each.

F. R. Gammon recently got three nice coons from one tree in Belmont.

Mrs. Byron M. Davis, of Rumney, met with a severe accident some two weeks since, being thrown from a carriage backwards, injuring her spine so that her whole system became paralyzed to the extent that she cannot move a hand.

A meeting of the citizens of Keene is to be held on the 17th day of November to see if they will re-affirm the vote granting a gratuity of something like a hundred thousand dollars to the Manchester and Keene railroad.

Mr. Howland, in pulling down an old house in Orford that had been vacated some eight years, found in taking up the kitchen floor a portion that had the appearance of having been cut out, and after digging a short distance found a large coarse box containing a skeleton. From all appearances it was that of a man about forty years old. Quite an interest is felt in the matter.

"Law and Evidence" against Fact.

A singular case which occurred many years ago in one of the rural towns of Vermont is thus described by the Rutland (Vt.) Herald:

"Capt. A. shot and killed a dog belonging to his neighbor, Smith. This act was charged upon one G. and a suit was brought against him to recover damage. The case was tried by a jury before a Justice of the Peace, and Capt. A. sat as a juror. Circumstantial evidence was presented to prove that G. shot the dog, and the jury agreed to return a verdict of 'Guilty.' Several years after the trial, Capt. A. acknowledged that he killed the dog, and defended his course in rendering a verdict of 'Guilty' against G. on the ground that his juror's oath required him to decide the case according to law and evidence, and it was fairly proved, he said, that G. killed the dog."

—The Indestructible Rubber Company of Springfield is now making croquet balls of rubber. The balls are the same size as the wood ones, and their elasticity is not much, if any greater. They will be painted in the different colors and will be practically indestructible. Mallets are also made of the same material.

—A farmer in Carroll county, Indiana, treated his threshers to bread for supper from wheat which was standing in the field that morning. The wheat was cut, threshed, sacked, hauled to mill, ground and made into bread in less than twelve hours.

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, now and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

Tyndalism.

Messrs. Editors: As we have not in this locality any distinctively church journal, it seems necessary that you allow some portion of your sheet to be used as such.

No greater truism ever was uttered than that a scientist cannot err. If we by the light of the written word look out upon the universe we discover not only material but heavenly harmonies,—so if we search through the remotest bounds of the material we become only the better fitted to discover that "there is a path which no fowl knoweth," etc., etc. "God understandeth the way thereof and unto man He said, the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom, and to depart from evil that is understanding." "A highway shall be there, a way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it," etc. "Sacrifice and burnt offerings Thou wouldst not—but a body hast Thou prepared for me," a body to be trained, purified, consecrated. "Look how strait is the gate, and how narrow is the way." "I do always those things that please Him." "So fight I not with any certain aim but I keep under my body and bring it into subjection," etc. Now if Tyndal is guilty of extravagant and wild speech, and if the church is in the least degree alarmed thereat, the conclusion is inevitable that a false issue has been created, both parties are "off the track" and wasting their time in "beating the air." Yours respectfully,

GOSPEL HEARER.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

sep14 3w PORTSMOUTH SCHOOL COMMITTEE

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful lifeature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quality of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The article illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interspersion of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustains an unabated interest, imposed elsewhere the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. E. Ira Stephens writes us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) works at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. Every series of 500 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers, direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered by wandering in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train the talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been well and still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. LAWS
UNITED STATES
PASSED AT THE
FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 78.]

AN ACT making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department, and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes, for the year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-five, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums be, and they are hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the purpose of paying the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department, and fulfilling treaty stipulations with the various Indian tribes:

For pay of two superintendents of Indian affairs for the Central and Northern superintendencies, two thousand dollars each.

For pay of sixty-nine agents of Indian affairs, at one thousand five hundred dollars each, except the one at Iowa, namely:

Six for the tribes in Oregon, namely, Warm Springs, Klamath, Grand Ronde, Siletz, Umatilla, and Malheur agencies;

Five for the tribes in Washington Territory, namely, Neah Bay, Yakama, Colvil, Nisqually, Puyallup, and other tribes, and S'Kokomish agencies;

Three for the tribes in California, namely, Hoopa Valley, Round Valley, and Tule River agencies;

Two for the tribes in Nevada, namely, Pi-Ute and Walker River, and Pyramid Lake agencies;

Two for the tribes in Idaho, namely, Nez Perce and Fort Hall agencies;

Four for the tribes in Montana, namely, Flathead, Blackfoot, Crow, and Milk River or Fort Peck agencies.

Ten for the tribes in Dakota, namely, Red Cloud, Whetstone, Yankton, Ponca, Upper Missouri, Grand River, Cheyenne River, Fort Berthold, Sisseton, and Devil's Lake agencies;

One for the tribes in Wyoming, namely, Shoshone agency;

One for the tribes in Utah, namely, Uintah Valley agency.

Five for the tribes in New Mexico, namely, Pueblo, Abiquiu, Navajo, Mescalero Apache, and Southern Apache agencies;

Two for the tribes in Colorado, namely, Los Pinos and White River agencies;

Six for the tribes in Nebraska, namely, Great Nemaha, Omaha, Winnebago, Pawnee, Otoe, and Santee agencies;

One for the tribes in Kansas;

Eight for the tribes in the Indian Territory, namely, Kaw or Kansas and Kickapoo, Sac and Fox, Quapaw, Neosho, Kiowa and Comanche, Upper Arkansas, and Wichita agencies; and one for the Cherokees, Creeks, Choctaws and Chickasaws and Seminoles;

One for the tribes in Minnesota, namely, at the White Earth agency;

One for the tribes in Iowa, namely, at the Sac and Fox of Iowa agency, five hundred dollars; and twelve hundred dollars to build a school-house: Provided, That no salary be paid to the agent unless he lives near enough to the agency to teach and care for the tribe every day;

Two for the tribes in Wisconsin, namely, at the Green Bay and La Pointe agencies;

One for the tribes in Michigan, namely, at the Mackinac agency;

For vaccine matter and vaccination of Indians, two thousand dollars.

For presents to and provisions for Indians, five thousand dollars.

For contingencies, including travelling, incidental, current, and contingent expenses of superintendents and agents, and of their offices, thirty thousand dollars.

APACHES, KIOWAS, AND COMANCHES.

For seventh of thirty instalments, as provided to be expended under the tenth article treaty of October twenty-first, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, concluded at the Medicine Lodge Creek, in Kansas, with the Kiowas and Comanches, and under the third article treaty of the same date with the Apaches, thirty thousand dollars.

For purchase of clothing, as provided in the same treaties, twenty-six thousand dollars.

For pay of carpenter, farmer, blacksmith, miller, and engineer, five thousand two hundred dollars.

For pay of physician and teacher, two thousand five hundred dollars.

For transportation of goods, four thousand dollars: Provided, That the foregoing stated appropriations for the Apaches, Kiowas, and Comanches shall be expended only in behalf of those Indians who go and remains upon reservations and refrain from hostilities.

ARICKAREES, GROS VENTRES, AND MANDANS.

For this amount, to be expended in such goods, provisions, and other articles as the President may, from time to time, determine, including transportation thereof, in instructing in agricultural and mechanical pursuits, in providing employees, educating children, procuring medicine and medical attendance, care for and support of the aged, sick, and infirm, for the helpless, orphans of said Indians, and in any other respect to promote their civilization, comfort, and improvement, (including pay of one physician, one thousand five hundred dollars; one farmer, one carpenter, one engineer, and one blacksmith, at nine hundred dollars each; also, one teamster and one herder, at seven hundred dollars each per annum,) eighty-five thousand dollars.

APACHES.

For this amount, to subsist and properly care for the Apache Indians in Arizona and New Mexico who have been or may be collected on reservations in New Mexico and Arizona, namely, for those in Arizona, three hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars; and for those in New Mexico, one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars, five hundred thousand dollars: Provided, That this appropriation shall be expended only in behalf of those Indians who go and remain upon said reservations and refrain from hostilities.

ARAPAHOES, CHEYENNES, APACHES, KIOWAS, COMANCHES, AND WICHITAS.

For subsistence of the Arapahoe, Cheyenne, Apache, Kiowa, Comanche, and Wichita Indians, (and transportation of the same,) who have been collected upon the reservations set apart for their use and occupation, in the Indian Territory, three hundred thousand dollars: Provided, That this appropriation shall be expended only on behalf of those Indians who go and remain upon said reservations and refrain from hostilities: And provided further, That no troops shall be kept stationed on the reservation on which said Indians are located, but the northern line of Texas shall be guarded, so far as possible so as to prevent the Indians from roaming into that State or the whites from intruding on the Indian reservations, except such troops as may be necessary to preserve order.

ASSINABOINES.

For this amount, to be expended in such goods, provisions, and other articles as the President may, from time to time, determine, including transportation thereof, in instructing in agricultural and mechanical pursuits, in providing employees, educating children, procuring medicine and medical attendance, care for and support of the aged, sick, and infirm, for the helpless orphans of said Indians, and in any other respect to promote their comfort, civilization, and improvement, (including pay of one detective, nine hundred dollars; one cook, four hundred and eighty dollars; and two laborers, at six hundred dollars each,) thirty thousand dollars.

BLACKFEET, BLOODS, AND PIEGANS.

For this amount, to be expended in such goods, provisions, and other articles as the President may, from time to time, determine, including transportation thereof, in instructing in agricultural and mechanical pursuits, in providing employees, educating children, procuring medicine and medical attendance, care for and support of the aged, sick, and infirm, for the helpless orphans of said Indians, and in every other respect to promote their civilization, comfort, and improvement, (including pay of one blacksmith, one farmer, one carpenter, one teacher, and one detective, at nine hundred dollars each per annum and one assistant teacher, at six hundred dollars per annum,) fifty thousand dollars.

Party Unity.

Party divisions should be carefully avoided. Whenever they occur and are persisted in they generally result in the defeat of both branches of the division, and the opposition become the victors. It is difficult sometimes to decide between rival favorites, but a difference of sentiment should never be allowed to cause a disruption in the party organization. The principles of the republican party are patriotic and paramount to personal ambition.

In the main the republican nominating conventions in the different States held within the past few weeks or months have been harmonious. There have, however, been a few exceptions, but even these cases of a division in the choice of candidates have in most instances been amicably adjusted. A case occurred in the first Congressional district in Florida which resulted in a party split and in the nomination of two candidates; but after reflection and the exercise of a better judgment, the committees representing the two factions agreed to call another convention, which met in harmony and united upon a single candidate, the other nominee first handing back the nomination which had been conferred upon him, and withdrawing his name absolutely but with excellent feeling, as a candidate for renomination. This was patriotic manliness, and it placed the convention under obligations to recognize the act, which it did in a proper spirit in the following resolution, unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That this convention, appreciating the generous self-sacrifice of Hon. R. Meacham in withdrawing from the canvass, in order to secure unity and harmony in the ranks of his party, merits the warmest gratitude of every republican in this district and throughout the State, and the thanks of this convention are hereby tendered to him."

We commend this action as worthy of imitation in similar cases, and if followed it can not fail being productive of the very best results.

The general welfare of the country must always be held as paramount, and personal ambition should yield cheerfully to the claims of patriotism and the public weal.

Readables.

The insurgents in the Argentine republic are reported to be still gaining ground, and are constantly being strengthened by deserters from the government forces.

Park-street church voted to accept the resignation of Rev. W. H. H. Murray.

Information from various sections is to the effect that a strong effort on the part of leading republicans is in progress to rally the moneyed interest to oppose democracy on the ground that its success involves repudiation. It is quite evident that the battle will be fought upon this line in the East and that the republicans will bring all their big guns to bear upon this weak point in the democratic armor. It is understood that Speaker Blaine has already commenced to strip for the fight in New York and Pennsylvania, and there will doubtless be some heavy work done there during the coming fortnight in the contest for the supremacy in the next house and on behalf of the presidential campaign.

The prolonged neglect of Great Britain to notify this government whether or not Labrador is considered a part of the Dominion of Canada or of the colony of Newfoundland, is causing great embarrassment to business men, especially to fish dealers, as on the decision depends the settlement of the question whether or not fish brought from that country shall be admitted free of duty.

At Cincinnati, Monday, a successful balloon ascension was made by Professor Donaldson, accompanied by a bridal party of six persons. About a mile above the city the marriage ceremony was performed. The balloon landed safely about three miles from the place of ascension.

The unreconciled rebels ran up their old Confederate flags down South when they heard from Ohio. That's the way it works.

The leading liberal organ of the West, the Cincinnati Commercial, says that the "democracy have just about enough victory to spoil them and confirm the republicans in power. They will find their Congressmen divided and discordant on the issues of the day, with a strong tendency on the part of the leaders to retire to the political boneyards for safe-keeping, while bummers will revive all the old war cries and grow wild with fierce hunger for the spoils."

A meeting of the executive committee of the National Union League, to consider the condition of national affairs, is to be held at Baltimore, Oct. 29.

A reunion of the former members of the forty-eighth Georgia regiment was held recently, at which one of its commanders, Colonel Gibson, alluded to the talk about another rebellion, and said: "To any man who says 'I want to renew the war,' I will say, 'You did not do your duty in the last one.'" That regiment entered the Confederate service nearly a thousand strong, and surrendered at Appomattox Court-house with thirty-one men in the ranks. Let the southern people themselves say whether Toombs or Gibson is their truest representative.

The experiment of transferring the blood of a live lamb into the veins of a consumptive patient was successfully performed upon the person of Hermann Dubois at Fall River last week by Drs. Julius Hoffman and Weyland of New York city. Every vein which is connected with the jugular vein of the animal was severed and securely tied by the physicians, so as to allow the blood free egress to the arm of the patient. Dr. Hoffman used a small glass tube, about two inches and a half long, slightly curved, for the operation, thus bringing the neck of the lamb in very close proximity to the patient's arm. The operation occupied one minute and thirty-three seconds, about six ounces of blood being transferred in that time. Mr. Dubois has been afflicted with consumption more than two years, and his friends thought it best to try the experiment as a last resort for relief. At last accounts the patient was doing well.

A serious collision occurred Monday morning on the European and North American Railway, near Basin Mills, a few miles above Bangor. The Mattawamkeag freight train of twenty odd cars was detained and unable to make up the time. It was ordered to come along and pass the mixed train at Keosie. The superintendent says he verbally ordered the conductor of the mixed train to wait for the freight on Veazie siding. The conductor denies the knowledge of such an order, and drove along on his regular time. The two trains came together at full speed, smashing both engines to splinters, making kindling wood of seven or eight freight cars, and smashing, more or less, many more. The passenger cars in the rear of the up-train were well filled, but the freight cars in front took most of the shock, and the former were not thrown from the track or the inmates injured. The engineers and firemen jumped after reversing the engines, and none were seriously injured. The escape from frightful loss of life was almost miraculous. The loss is quite heavy.

State News.

The Peterboro Transcript predicts a large yield of cider in that locality, and apples are plenty at $1.50 per barrel.

A Westmoreland correspondent of the Keene Sentinel says: "Quite recently a Green Mountain man permitted his shadow to cast a gloom over the felicities of a rural home in this vicinity. His superabundance of charmingness persuaded the wife of the household to forsake her better half and baby, for the promise and hope of a gilded castle in the air. A few days of experience had a wonderful effect in cooling her ardor for ideal life in sylvan grottoes and amid the aroma of wild flowers; and with less desire of being wafted hither and thither, like the nymph of the sea, she brought up at her grandmother's, and returned to her home in a profusion of tears, sackcloth and ashes."

Five young tramps arrived in Enfield and coolly demanded food and lodging for the night of the Selectmen. They were furnished with saws and referred to a pile of wood where they could earn their bread, where they worked well for a little while. As beggars could not be choosers they made a supper of crackers and water. In the morning they were referred to the wood pile again, but refused to work and left without their breakfast. The Selectmen have determined to have a wood pile for any who may call, where they can show how sincere they are in desiring to obtain work.

The Manchester water works, begun two years ago, were finished on Friday—the total cost being $674,384. The supply is from Lake Massebesic. On the 24th inst., there will be a fireman's parade, a test of hydrants, and a grand collation, in honor of the event.

Masked burglars robbed the Soubegan National Bank, at Milford, of nearly $100,000, Monday night. The thieves bound and gagged the cashier's family and forced the cashier to give up the keys of the bank.

On Thursday afternoon, a man between thirty and forty years of age, entered the boarding house of Mrs. Adaline Flagg, Nashua, and went up stairs and went through the trunks of the female boarders, stealing $41 in money. When he came out Mrs. Flagg was in the front yard, when he inquired of her if he could obtain board there, the price, etc. Mrs. Flagg did not fancy his looks, but had no suspicion of the robbery until some time after he had disappeared. This is the boldest robbery that has been committed in Nashua for a long period.

A Chinese Missionary.

[Philadelphia paper.]

We have long foreseen the possibility of a missionary to our country from the heathen, and one has at last arrived in the person of Wong Chin Foo. Alas, yes! Bitter and humiliating as is the truth, he is a Chinaman; nay, more—a political refugee, and doubtless the forerunner of a long line of distinguished Celestials who will leave their country to transfer their allegiance and their ambition to our soil. This antipodal celebrity, who speaks English perfectly, "and therefore," according to the logical reporters, "sometimes even elegantly," has recently arrived in Boston, and, with commendable zeal, has at once begun his labors among the skeptical people of that modern Athens. He does not appear to have felt it his duty to open his mission on the Pacific Coast, where the people of his race are popularly supposed to be destitute of souls, and where, once upon a time, a witness in a murder trial, being asked if he had ever been guilty of homicide, replied that he had never killed a man, but that "he believed he had shot a few Chinamen."

Consternation, wide-spread and terrible, fell upon that Boston audience when Wong Chin Foo lifted his voice in the Parker Memorial Hall. For here was an audacious heathen from the extremest East, who had not come to sit at the feet of the wise men of America, but essayed to teach them a lesson. In this uncompromising political refugee was none of the bland and deferential submission of the low-class Chinaman. His garments did not rustle with awe as he gazed at the massive shaft on Bunker Hill, nor did he betray the slightest feeling of reverence for Plymouth Rock. No hint that America is to lead the world, or that she will startle China from the inactivity in which she has lain so long passed his Oriental lips. No compliments to the society of the young and energetic continent on which he had so newly set his feet came from his oracular mouth. Paralyzed by his boldness, and shocked by his irreverence, they listened mutely to this child of the centuries, this apostle of fixedness, who, with delicate irony masked under velvet words, scoffed at the progress made by the sons of the Pilgrims, and laughed their missionaries to scorn. Who shall say that he did not, in the proud insolence of his barbaric scorn, foresee in vision the day when Chinese warjunks would anchor in Boston Harbor, and when the Hoodlums of San Francisco would be compelled to prostrate themselves before grotesque idols in Joss-houses?

Many things which were especially daring said Wong Chin Foo to the affrighted Bostonians. He held up before their startled eyes a panorama of the doctrines of Confucius, and with pride alluded to the fact that a stern observance of the five cardinal principles of that revered Celestial, viz.: gravity, propriety, sincerity, virtue, and filial love, had allowed the Chinese "to maintain themselves as they had for two thousand years." Nothing that Wong Chin Foo said, write the reporters, "indicated any deviation on his part from Chinese ideas, or any desire to propitiate his hearers by yielding to their beliefs or working upon their prejudices." He vaunted Chinese society as vastly more sincere, ingenuous and cultured than that of the United States and Europe. With a fine enthusiasm he described the Arcadian simplicity and kindliness of the Chinese country-folk, among whom "the cruelty, the barbarity, and the greediness" of European and American had not penetrated, and with pride declared that in an Empire where four hundred and fifty millions of people were crowded together, there were not so many murders annually as in our sparsely-settled country containing forty millions. Finally, Wong Chin Foo extolled the retiring and modest disposition of the Chinese, and added that he was modest himself until he became infected "with civilization."

Though fatigued by the storm of politics in his native land, this Oriental refugee seems to have retained an unwavering love for and belief in the religion and society of the country of the Celestials, and he has begun an active missionary work here. He mourns over our incompleteness, our lack of repose and gravity, our profuse expenditure, our business greed, and our utter want of filial reverence. Nothing, he thinks, can lift us from our degradation but the religion of Confucius, which raised China from a low and disturbed condition, and gave her so many centuries of brilliant peace. Wong Chin Foo earnestly expresses the hope that followers of the Chinese philosopher may at once spring up here; and his audacity may yet result in a "Confucius class," into whose ranks young Boston may flock to listen to the teachings of the exiled aristocrat.

The Hero of Iceland.

[Cinn. Tiskat.]

Murat Halstead, of Iceland, is now stopping at the Grand Hotel, in Cincinnati. This man was at one time well known in this section of country as editor and proprietor of the Cincinnati Commercial. The phrase "it is sad," and several short but popular poems gave him transient fame for some time; but the time came around for the usual national celebration in Iceland, and as Mr. Halstead has never missed a single one of these celebrations, he took his leave of us. His health would become seriously impaired without his regular trip to Iceland once in a thousand years.

His parting with the men at the Commercial office was very, very affecting. Every eye was moist, and every throat was dry. He cautioned Plympton, assistant editor, not to be carried away by Spiritualism, to which he is somewhat inclined, looked at Mr. Gano, his business partner, sternly, and told him not to make a fool of himself, and swore a few heart-felt oaths at the combined crowd. He told them to pitch into everybody and everything, and left the whole office trembling in its boots.

Mr. Halstead was first heard from in England, where he made a speech assuring the Britons that not more than half a dozen citizens of Cincinnati drank lager beer. He stated that the universal bevarage was "Hold Hinglish Hale," pronouncing each word in the most approved cockney fashion.

Mr. Halstead represents the sea voyage to Iceland as being the most dismal thing ever thought of, but his letters describing it were much dismaler. Many of our best citizens were made terribly seasick by reading them, and even got so bad as to throw up their subscriptions to the Commercial.

Mr. Halstead was very kindly received in Iceland where he obtained several subscribers to the Commercial, including the King of Denmark, who had come to Iceland for the purpose, and several of the Geyser's family.

He was so much elated by his success in this respect, and by meeting many friends, whom he had not seen since his last visit, that he rashly commenced embellishing his communications to his paper with poetry, supposed by his readers to be original, but supposed by Mr. Halstead to be quoted from standard authors.

His first attempt in this line was "Roll on, thou dark and deep blue ocean, roll; ten thousand waves sweep over thee in rain," and he soon became entirely reckless, actually writing "From Iceland's greeny mountains, and India's choral sand;" as well as many others too terrible for repetition—for instance, "Mary had a little rah, its fleece was white as snow."

There was a great consternation in the Commercial office when these strange productions began to arrive. No one dares to change anything Mr. Halstead has written. Most of them have tried it once or twice, and know what the consequences are. So the letters were sent up to the printers in the same condition in which they arrived from Iceland, only to be sent down by the foreman, who called attention to the poetry, and asked for its correction. It was of course, returned with instructions to "follow copy" if it led to Iceland. These orders were carried out, although some of the printers struck and quit the office rather than "set up" such nonsense. Even after it was in type, the poetry was noticed by some newsboys, who gave notice that the paper could not be sold if that stuff was printed, but all was of no avail.

Mr. Halstead will probably return to Iceland soon, for a permanent residence. His brazen statement that once in a thousand years is often enough to visit, was only made in order to deceive the Enquirer. When he came to the city the other night his whole figure was covered with Iceland moss, and an icicle was hanging to his nose. No one knew him until he had gone to the composing room and taken a number of articles out of the hands of the printers. One of Plympton's longest editorials he murdered in cold blood.

He is now sleeping on the roof of the Grand Hotel, and shows no intention of resuming the habits of civilized life.

Change in the Cabinet.

Now that the President's Long Branch season is over, it is confidently predicted that there will be a change in the cabinet, and that before the first of December. It is known that the President and all heads of departments have bought largely of tickets for the next grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, to draw Nov. 30, and they flatter themselves that they will capture one or more of the large prizes, which will make plenty of change in the cabinet.

Trumpery Tonics.

Moderation in the use of stimulants, like the avoidance of all excesses, is unquestionably praiseworthy and life-prolonging. All sensible persons admit this. But the vendors of non-alcoholic slops, desirous of undermining the reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in order to sell their own worthless trash, have thought fit to go to the extreme length of denouncing as baneful all invigorants containing spirits. Now the very reverse of this is the case, the fact being that no vegetable bitters entirely devoid of alcohol are worth a rush, that being the one ingredient which prevents the decomposition and souring of the others. Probably no one knows better than you, Messieurs the Trumpery Tonic Vendors, that the perfectly pure liquor used to dissolve the botanic constituents of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the very best medium that could have been selected to facilitate and confirm the invigorating, protective and remedial action of the great stomachic.

2. "Bow down Thine ear," Quartette.
3. Piano solo—"Overture to Zanetta," (Auber,) Mrs. Shepard.
4. Song.
5. Piano duet—"Duo Dramatique de L'elisire D'amour," Mrs. Shepard and Miss Dana.
6. Piano duet—"I Lombardi," (Wallace,) Mrs. Shepard and Miss Dana.
7. "Roll on, majestic Ocean," Quartette.
8. Piano solo—"Bacchanale," (Wehli,) Mrs. Shepard.
9. "When the earth is hushed to rest," Quartette.
10. Piano duet—"Overture to Poet and Peasant," (Suppe,) Mrs. Shepard and Miss Dana.

The following speakers will appear in the lyceum course:

Rev. I. G. Bidwell; Subject—"The Old Fashioned District School House and what it has done for New England;" Henry Lummis, A. B.; "The Stars;" Hon. Mark Trafton; "The Birch Canoe;" Rev. W. F. Mallilieu; "The New Era;" E. D. Sanborn, L. L. D.; Rev. J. H. Hamilton; "A Yankee Tin Type;" Rev. H. L. Kelsey. Season tickets, $1.50; reserved seats, $1. Single ticket, 25 cents; reserved seat, 50 cts. Doors open at 7 o'clock; concert at quarter to 8.

Irregular Harvesters.

The orchards, fields and gardens near the Plains and Sagamore Creek have suffered considerably from the depredations of thieves during some weeks past, and hens and other domestic fowls have disappeared from their coops in a mysterious and (to the owners) most annoying manner. The police having received information that a party of men were camped out in a shanty in Sherburne's woods, near the Plains, on Tuesday made a raid on said shanty, expecting to find not only a portion of the plunder stolen from the farmers but also several deserters from the County House at Brentwood. Three men were found, but they were not the looked-for runaways, nor were there any indications that the shanty was a receptacle for stolen goods. Officer Hobbs, who was detailed to look after a man suspected of having robbed the orchard of Mr. Harry Hartshorn at Sagamore Creek, had better luck, finding a goodly store of apples, potatoes and other farm produce, all presumed to have been stolen, and capturing the suspected thief. It is quite possible the man may find his winter stock would have been cheaper if purchased in the usual manner—when the owner was present.

The Circuit Court.

The first term of this Court commenced in this city, Tuesday, Judge Edward D. Rand presiding. Prayer was offered by Rev. James DeNormandie, and the Judge delivered a very able charge to the Grand Jury, insisting on a thorough and impartial enforcement of all the laws, whatever the personal opinions or preferences of the jurors.

The forenoon was occupied in calling the docket, and a large proportion of cases marked for the jury will be referred under the new statute. In the afternoon, divorces were decreed as follows:

Carrie P. Rogers of Londonderry from Albert E. Rogers.

Frances L. Kent of Newton from Frank Kent.

Fannie A. Williams of Portsmouth from Augustus Williams. W. H. Y. Hackett for libellant.

Charles E. Rosenthal v. Ellen M. Rosenthal, was commenced but not completed.

In the action of the National Granite State Bank of Exeter against the bondsmen of Shute, the defaulting cashier, judgment was rendered by agreement against the sureties for the sum of $9000.

Wong Chin Foo,

The political refugee who speaks here Friday evening, has had an eventful history. He is twenty-four years old, came to this country in 1866, received his English education in Columbia College, and in '69 returned to China to act as Imperial Interpreter, which office he held until his escape. He with others was engaged in a plot to overthrow the present Tartar Government in China, but owing to treason among their number, the plot was discovered, and many were beheaded. He sought the protection of the English and missionaries and escaped from China to Japan. While in Yokohama, Japan, the Chinese government demand his extradition, but he at once applied to U. S. Consul Col. Shepard, of Buffalo, N. Y., and he assisted him to escape on the steamship MacGregor. On his way over he learned that there were eleven Chinese female slaves, or prostitutes on board, and on his arrival in San Francisco, he brought the matter before the courts, and the girls were freed and sent home. For this he received the thanks of the girls, and the curses of the slave dealers, who twice mobbed him on the streets, but by the aid of the authorities he was able to leave San Francisco and is now lecturing with great success upon the political, social, and religious affairs of China. The Boston Globe says he is a man of very pleasing address, speaks English almost perfectly, sometimes even elegantly, and very agreeably surprised his hearers. The Journal says his address was "the most interesting delivered in Boston for years." We print elsewhere a droll article from a Philadelphia paper, referring to his Boston lecture. Reserved seats without extra charge may be secured at Preston's.

Laconics.

The Grangers of this city are just receiving their first car-loads of grain from the west direct. They propose to purchase in cooperation generally, when their arrangements are complete.

Among the latest cases of petty larceny, is the milking of impounded cows by residents near, which Captain Bob regards as cutting off his pap, and thinks the perpetrators, if not the cabbaged milk, should be restrained.

There was a sort of "merry-go-round" at Badger's island in the Piscataqua on Sunday. Two fellows of the baser sort and a number of women from Water street "gathered by the river," the former for a bout at fisticuffs and the latter to see fair play. People from this side of the river saw the male bipeds deliver several blows "straight from the shoulder," and a solitary policeman might have been seen going toward them in a boat. The principals in the "mill" became alarmed, escorted the "ladies" into a boat, pulled up beyond the bridge and probably finished the affair to general satisfaction, "bright buttons" declining to follow.

Which his name is Perkins—not the gentleman of that name who plays a cornet in the Naval Band, but an individual who occupied the pulpit of the North church, last Sunday, and is connected with the American Tract Society. His subject was "The Power of the Press," and its tone may be imagined by this extract: "Who ever prays for an editor? And who needs prayer more than an editor?" We submit that the talented pastor of the North church deserved better remembrance, being an ex-editor of the New York Citizen. We also submit in answer to the two conundrums quoted, that the editors of to-day need no prayers from the self-righteous and may thank their lucky stars that if Perk's course lies heavenward, theirs from choice must be in the opposite direction.

Strangled by a Cat.

The Middletown (N. Y.) Transcript relates a strange affair which occurred in a family of Mr. Doloway, a few mornings since. Mrs. Doloway is accustomed to leave her babe, a little girl four months old, on the bed up-stairs while she does her morning's work in the basement. On the morning in question she heard the little one crowing as usual, but finally noticed that the sounds ceased, and shortly after heard a strange, gurgling noise. Supposing that the child had got its head under the bed clothes and was suffocating, she ran up stairs to see about it, and found the house cat with its nose in the child's mouth. The child was strangled black and was fighting feebly with her hands. She took the child and shook it several times, when it caught its breath and came out all right. In a few minutes more it would probably have been strangled to death. Mrs. Doloway had to pull the cat off the child, so eager was it to remain. It had a paw on either side of the child's head, and had its nose pressed deeply into the child's mouth. The cat was instantly killed.

Fruit Culture in Florida.

[Edward King, in Scribner's for November.]

But very little capital is needed for the starting of a grove, and the rewards of a successful one are very great. Oranges sell at from $25 to $68 per thousand in Jacksonville, and are readily transportable to any of the Atlantic seaports. When the necessary dredging and building of canals has been accomplished, so that the Indian river may have an outlet via the St. John's, the North will be supplied with oranges of more delicate texture than any it has yet seen; and the number of groves along the river will be legion.

The fitness of Florida for the growth of tropical and semi-tropical fruits is astonishing. Not only do the orange, the lemon, the lime and the citron flourish there, but the peach, the grape, the fig, the pomegranate, the plum, all varieties of berries, the olive, the banana, and the pine-apple, grow luxuriantly. Black Hamburg and white Muscat grapes fruit finely in the open air; the Concord and the Scuppernong are grown in vast quantities. The guava, the tamarind, the wonderful alligator-pear, the plantain, the cocoanut and the date, the almond and the pecan, luxuriate in Southern Florida. We have within our boundaries a tropic land, rich and strange, which will in future years be inhabited all winter long by thousands of families, and where beautiful towns, and perhaps cities, will spring up.

—Mr. Sikes is writing a play for his better-half, the late Olive Logan. All that has as yet been revealed about the plot is that she will wear a calico gown and a blue check apron. The critics think it may be interesting.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid cooking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Blockade-Runners at Nassau.

[S. W. G. Benjamin in Harper's for November.]

During the Confederate years the little town actually swarmed with Southern refugees, the captains and crews of blockade-runners, cotton brokers, rum-sellers, Jews and Gentiles of high and low degrees, coining money and squandering it as if they owned the secret of the transmutation of metals. They played toss-penny in the verandas of the Royal Victoria Hotel with gold eagles! The shops were packed to the ceilings; the streets were crowded with bales, boxes, and barrels—cotton coming in, Confederate uniforms and pills of lead and quinine, to pepper patriots and patients, going out. Semmes and his bold boys twisted their mustaches at every corner, danced involuntary reels and hornpipes from groggery to groggery, and from the waxed floors of the Government House, where they were always sure of cordial reception, to the decks of the Banshee and Alabama, or brandished their revolvers in the faces of Union men, whose lives were too uncertain to insure thereabouts in those roistering days. A spicy little paper called Young Punch, edited by a witty Confederate in Nassau, gives a glimpse of the state of things then existing, and shows that there was some real fun connected with blockade-running. A rather grim joke was played at the expense of the rebels via Nassau. A large invoice of prayer-books was brought from England and re-skipped to Charleston with the express understanding that they were suited to the devotional wants of the Confederacy. Quite a number had been distributed before it was discovered that the prayers for the President and Congress of the United States had not been altered!

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quality of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no carping sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The style of illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be adopted by any inferior paper. The judicious interposition of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustain an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist exclusively to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical art splurgings as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Nass's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although an original, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 500 subscribers, 100 different pictures, value over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the wards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; each for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is signed by the facsimile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cause of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KELLY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Piano and Singing.

THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1874.

The Promised Reform.

[The Republic.]

Since democracy lost the control of the government it has been clamoring for reform. The most satisfactory administration the nation ever had fails to satisfy it. Everything in the shape of governmental affairs needs reformation, and every time democracy is the only party pure enough to bring it about. The thief, when pursued by the officers of the law, will oftentimes direct public attention from his own efforts to escape by crying at the top of his voice, "stop thief! stop thief!" So, democracy, driven from its fields of plunder and closely pursued by the moral sentiment of the country, endeavors to divert the righteous punishment which is being inflicted upon it to an innocent party by crying out "reform! reform! we must have reform!"

It has deceived a few people and been successful in some sections. Texas fell a victim to its seductive clamor, and to-day is paying dearly for democratic reform. Its excellent school system has been reformed out of existence, and its children, both white and black, will grow up in ignorance unless true reformation is brought about in democratic policy, or by the return to power of the republican party. Its Supreme Court, composed of good men with loyal sentiments, has been so reformed that none of its loyal material is left, and in its place we find the old State judges under Confederate rule. The same reform has been practiced in every office under State control, so that at the present time a loyal man, in the true sense of the term, is about as hard to find holding a local office in Texas as a ray of sunshine in the midst of night. Instead of offices being reduced in numbers they have been multiplied, and the reform that was to save money to the State will cost it at least a third more than the administration which it supplanted. The elective franchise has been so purified by the Texas party of reform that but few republicans in the rural districts dare appear at the polls, and reform proscription has been so thoroughly practiced that in a few years a republican voter in Texas will be as rare a curiosity as an abolitionist was in South Carolina before the war. A like reform has taken possession of Georgia, North Carolina, Virginia, and other Southern States. Bad as some of the carpet-bag governments were thought to be the substitution in their place of democratic reform has made matters worse, and we are not surprised that the better class of democrats who were led to believe in the promised reforms have already revolted against them and to-day are crying for deliverance from their friends.

This is the party that seeks to reform the nation; that asks the people to give it a majority in the House of representatives; that demands possession of the government in 1876. What the history of the republic will be under democratic reformation can be written in a sentence: Repudiation, bankruptcy, anarchy, national disgrace. To all who seek to bring about such a reform the democratic party commends itself. To all who desire to avoid it, who wish to maintain the credit of the nation, secure peace and prosperity within its borders, promote general intelligence by a wise system of free schools, and who earnestly hope to see the republic take rank as the leader among the civilized and favored nations of the earth, we commend the republican party. It has been tried and not found wanting. It has violated no promises, given no pledges which it has failed to keep. Its record is as clear as the noonday light, and the few faults which it has developed throughout its long and honorable career are but as the spots which the telescope reveals on the surface of the sun, of sufficient importance to merit inspection, but not enough to destroy the usefulness of the orb itself.

Readables.

A cable despatch announces the death of Carl Formes, the celebrated basso. He was born in Mecklenheim, on the Rhine, August 7, 1818, and made his debut January 6, 1840, as Larastros, in the opera of "Die Zauberflocte," at Cologne. In 1849 he formed a German opera troupe at Drury Lane, London. In 1857 he came to America and made his bow November 30th at the Academy in New York, as Bertram, in "Robert le Diable." He first appeared in Philadelphia January 27, 1858, at the Academy in "Martha."

Dr. Colton improves the opportunity afforded by the last chloroform homicide to present the claims of nitrous oxide. He says there has never been a well authenticated case of death from the effects of it, although it has been administered to over 400,000 patients, 77,000 of whom received it in his office in the last year.

The Portland papers say that there is trouble in the Boston and Maine railroad. Some of the employees have been speculating in tickets of the road, to the loss of the company.

The Commercial Advertiser has had its faith in Spiritualism shaken because the ghost of Horace Greeley don't rise and rebuke the present management of the Tribune.

The house of Charles Lawrence, at the north end of Fairfield Pond, Vt., was burned October 13, and with it his three children. Mr. Lawrence was absent at work. His wife, desiring to visit one of her neighbors for milk, locked the door of the house, which was a cheap affair, built of logs, fastening in the children, one of whom was left in a cradle. The house was located in a retired spot, off the main road, and no one saw the fire until the mother returning discovered it when about seventy-five rods distant, and gave the alarm. The poor woman was perfectly frantic on reaching the burning building, and was with difficulty prevented from rushing into the flames in search for her children. The baby left in the cradle was burned almost to a crisp. The remains of the other children were found under the bed, and were not so badly burned.

N. Y. Graphic says: A movement is on foot in London to make it obligatory on the owners of vehicles plying in the streets to place india-rubber tires on the wheels, in order to deaden the noise they make in rattling over the stones. In some respects this is an excellent idea, as one of the greatest inconveniences of living in a large city, such as London or New York, is occasioned by the ceaseless noise and uproar of the streets; but the innovation would be a costly one, as the rubber would not last long. Something might be done in this city in the way of alleviation by putting tires on the wheels of the early wagon of the milkman and supplementing the proceeding by placing muzzles on the men themselves. We should at least have quiet in our beds.

This is a bad year for liberal republican Senators. Tipton is lift cold and desolate on the Nebraska prairies and Carl Schurz will undoubtedly give place to a true democrat in Missouri—that is if they carry the State. In any event Schurz is beaten.

The Chicago Tribune exhorts: "Salary grabbers take notice: Of thirty-six members of the House, in the Forty-second Congress, who refunded back pay, nine have been elected to the next Congress. Of 207 members, who pocketed back pay and laughed at the thirty-six, only one has been elected to the next Congress. And the storm has not yet blown over."

Bank Robbery at Milford.

On Monday night, Mr. Frederick T. Sawyer, cashier of the Souhegan National Bank, was suddenly awakened by the appearance of a number of masked men, who presented revolvers at both him and his wife, and warned them that death would be the penalty if any outcry was made. The robbers proceeded to handcuff Mr. Sawyer and his wife, and placed the latter together with two young boys in a closet, which was securely fastened. One of the robbers suggested that they would suffocate in the closet, whereupon another of the party bored holes through the door to admit air, at the same time cautioning the prisoners against making any noise. A third son of Mr. Sawyer was likewise confined in the closet, and to make matters sure the robbers gagged the four inmates. The next move was to gag a young daughter of Mr. Sawyer, whom they left in charge of a young babe in a room adjoining the one occupied by Mr. Sawyer and his wife. The next room visited was one in which a servant girl slept, and here a severe scuffle ensued, the girl making a desperate resistance, though she was finally overpowered and gagged. Mr. Sawyer has long been in the habit of leaving the keys of the bank in the possession of the Postmaster of the town, whose office is about a quarter of a mile from the residence of Mr. Sawyer. This precaution was taken by the latter in order to guard against such a scheme as the robbers were then pursuing. The parties engaged seemed to be well aware of the disposition of the keys, and after placing a cord around Mr. Sawyer's neck to prevent any outcry, they forced him to accompany them by threatening to kill his babe in case he refused to comply with their demands. Arriving at the Post Office the robbers effected an entrance by removing a pane of glass with a diamond, and the keys of the bank were soon in their possession. Mr. Sawyer having told just where they could be found in order to avoid any deed of violence which the robbers were determined upon unless he acquiesced in their desires. The work of opening the vault and securing its contents occupied but a few minutes and only a short time had elapsed after leaving Mr. Sawyer's house when the robbers had in their possession nearly $120,000.

The bank loses in bills and greenbacks $4000, in government and county bonds held as collateral $20,000. The individual losses are: Wm. B. Towne, President of the Bank, $10,000; R. R. Howison, $15,000; Dr. J. Herman, $8500; Gilbert Wadleigh, $5000; heirs of W. R. Wallace, $4000; Jerome Sawyer, $1500—all in government and county bonds. There are numerous other losses of smaller amounts. The robbery was one of the most daring as well as one of the most complete jobs ever put up, and shows the handiwork of professionals.

How it Affected him.

[Columbus Journal.]

It is said that there was an election in Ohio last Tuesday. It is a matter of so little interest, however, that we don't care to take up much space with it. The Cleveland Plain Dealer is making a great row about it, which shows that it is not really a great metropolitan journal. When Billy Armstrong heard that the State democratic gains amounted to about 4,000 net, and that Parsons was surely beaten, he just jumped out on the sidewalk after the first thing that came to his arms, seized a respectable colored lady around the waist and gave her a paroxysmal kiss. She gave one yell of "Golly, boss!" and stood, as Mrs. Malaprop says, "putrified with amazement."

Change in the Cabinet.

Now that the President's Long Branch season is over, it is confidently predicted that there will be a change in the cabinet, and that before the first of December. It is known that the President and all heads of departments have bought largely of tickets for the next grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, to draw Nov. 30, and they flatter themselves that they will capture one or more of the large prizes, which will make plenty of change in the cabinet.

Trumpery Tonics.

Moderation in the use of stimulants, like the avoidance of all excesses, is unquestionably praiseworthy and life-prolonging. All sensible persons admit this. But the vendors of non-alcoholic slops, desirous of undermining the reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in order to sell their own worthless trash, have thought fit to go to the extreme length of denouncing as baneful all invigorants containing spirits. Now the very reverse of this is the case, the fact being that no vegetable bitters entirely devoid of alcohol are worth a rush, that being the one ingredient which prevents the decomposition and souring of the others. Probably no one knows better than you, Messieurs the Trumpery Tonic Vendors, that the perfectly pure liquor used to dissolve the botanic constituents of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the very best medium that could have been selected to facilitate and confirm the invigorating, protective and remedial action of the great stomachic.

Trials of a Republican Editor.

[South Bend Tribune.]

Job had his trials, such as boils, and troubles of that kind, yet he scraped himself with a potsherd and was reasonably happy. But Job was not on a republican newspaper and asked by exultant democrats on such a night as last night, "What's the news?" and "How's chowder?" If he had been he would have flung his potsherd into the dim distance and howled with anguish.

Wong Chin Foo,

[Boston Traveller, 3d.]

Wong Chin Foo, a Chinese political refugee, made a capital address at Parker Memorial Hall, last Sunday. He spoke at length on the religion of Confucius, and on the civilization of China; and he spoke so well, that we wish his address might be published at length, for the instruction of a certain free and enlightened people, who are in the habit, most of them, of talking of the Chinese as if they were an inferior race, whereas they were a civilized people many centuries before there was a town in Britain, and thousands of years before even Boston was born. The speaker was always wise, and often witty; and he showed singular mastery of our very queer language. He called himself the first missionary of his religion, meaning to this country. It is a little remarkable that a Chinese gentleman should be striving to make Confucians of Bostonians at the same time that an English ex-Methodist should be striving to make Mussulmans of the Chicagoans. The former has no such formidable obstacle to encounter here as the latter will find in pork at Chicago. Mahomet did not prohibit the use of whiskey, so that in regard to tipple all is serene in the uninsured City of Fire.

Shakers Away From Home.

Eds. Chronicle:—It may be of interest to your readers to know that the Shakers from Canterbury will hold meetings in this city on Sunday next, October 25th. These meetings are undertaken by them for the purpose of spreading information respecting their societies, forms of worship, and belief. They are of opinion that the present time is peculiarly suitable for such meetings; the religious organizations and denominations of the period are undoubtedly undergoing a rigid scrutiny, and a reformation and revolution in many respects has commenced, out of which many of them will come shorn of much of their dogmatism and ecclesiasticism. At such a time the Shakers are anxious to present their religious views, and to propose Shakerism as a remedy for many of the terrible evils which afflict modern society, and also as a radical, practical religion which will enable its followers to lead truly consistent, Christian lives. Laconics.

A gentleman in Suncook village has just purchased a finely moulded keel boat, which is to be fitted up as a screw propeller to ply the waters of the Merrimack at that point. It is twenty-six feet long, six and a half feet beam, and draws only fifteen inches of water. It was built at the navy yard, and was known there as the "Franklin."

The first lyceum audience was a large one and the Opera of "Martha" went off smoothly. Miss Nickels' voice is rich, clear and smooth, and her modest appearance won the respect and admiration of the audience. Mrs. Barry, an old favorite, sang with old-time fervor. Mr. Payson and Mr. Clarke performed their selections creditably. Some fine quartet music abounds in the Opera and the performers lacked no element of ability and good judgment in its rendering. Miss Nickels sang "The Last Rose of Summer" exquisitely, a performance as delicious to the hearing as are strawberries and cream to the taste.

Considerable agitation will be saved the democratic wind instrument if it will remember that the CHRONICLE several months ago declared against a third term for President Grant. We hope the further statement that under no circumstances are we in favor of a third nomination for Congressman Small will be deemed sufficiently explicit to save further misrepresentation on the part of the hand-organ. One reason for our opposition to Mr. Small is that he could not come within 2500 votes of a re-election; "for further particulars, see small" programmes.

Paupers and Pauperism.

[By a County Commissioner.]

Dear Chronicle: I was much interested a few days since, in reading the description you copied from the Lewiston Journal, of a visit to the Bubier pauper colony near that city. The lesson taught by that strange and sad recital, is the same as may be learnt, and should be heeded, by all public officials in their experience, and others who have the care of paupers. Pauperism, like other habits, "grows with what it has to feed on;" and pauperism is generally vice,—not always, mind—and is as catching as the measles.

The acceptance, establishment, and stated and regular support of a class of citizens or inhabitants at the public expense, outside of the excellent almshouses everywhere provided for paupers, is felt to be a great and growing evil in England, as street begging is in Italy and elsewhere; and neither of them should be encouraged or needlessly excused in this new and flourishing country. In this city and county there are families with whom, as with the Bubiers, begging, or asking public aid, has become chronic, and grandparents' and grandchildren's names are to be found on town and county overseers' accounts year after year and generation after generation, in different towns, it may be; for the trade of begging once learned, is hard to forget and easy to practice, wherever its votaries may roam or stop.

In this Lewiston case it is the old story. Some new commissioners or overseers, more thoughtful or careful than the majority who had for years been paying these heavy Bubier bills unsought, unseen; heeded their official oath sufficiently to make personal examination of the case. And what a sight met their eyes! Three or four generations of paupers, including whole large families, living and herding in squalor and dirt and consequent vice and crime—and aided and encouraged in this by donations from the public funds! And plenty of similar cases there be, on a smaller scale, nearer home; and not a few ignorant, thoughtless or inexperienced, though it may be well-meaning people, deem it cruelty or hardship when public aid and encouragement is refused to such a condition of things by the pauper authorities, and they insist that such rookeries shall be broken up, and the parents perhaps taken to the best home of their lives at the alms-house, whence the children may be provided with new and comfortable homes in city or country, and stand some chance to grow up respectable citizens, or be favored at least with something of the "inspiration of opportunity."

The opinion of all competent and thoughtful experienced pauper officers, so far as I have met, is, that the public burden would be lessened, and the public interest promoted, by furnishing no outside aid to paupers except in case of sickness, accident or transient emergency. And if there should under this rule be any liability to work real or imaginary hardship toward any worthy and deserving poor, there is no risk of leaving their cases to private charities, which would be greatly relieved by operation of the rule.

Nor is there any occasion for fear that public officers generally will not sufficiently provide for the poor; and those persons must needs assume a great deal who claim to be more humane, more charitable or more discreet than those whose business and duty it is to care for this class. I for one when a boy never "took much stock" in Charles Dickens' eloquent but overwrought and improbable portrayals of English treatment of paupers, as depicted in Nicholas Nickelby and Oliver Twist; and as I have never yet met a single individual who begrudged the meanest pauper a comfortable and ample public support, I have not changed my early opinions. Rum, of course, is the cause of nearly all pauperism, as of crime; and if neither law nor gospel is sufficient to prevent the putting of the cup to a brother's thirsty lips to steal away his money as well as brains, then what remedy so sure as to place the weak beyond the reach of temptation? I could cite you more than one case in this city, where supplies furnished to county paupers by local overseers, were repeatedly exchanged at some groggery near for rum. And yet when a continuance of charity thus abused or otherwise impolitic is refused, some are found to cry shame. But I did not design to give you a temperance lecture nor an essay on pauperism, but only to invite the attention of all who are interested in the public welfare, to the Bubier article and its vitally important moral, which to me is this: that the place to support paupers and eradicate pauperism, is the almshouse; and locally, that Portsmouth and Lewiston and all other places, had better sell their alms houses if they are not the best places for the poor and shiftless. Yours truly,

F. W. M.

—Brief colloquy in Texas between a tourist and a native: "My friend, why is it everybody in this country thinks it necessary to carry one or two revolvers?" "Well, stranger," said the Texan, "you might travel around here a good long time and not want a weapon; but when you do want a pistol in this country you want it bad."

—Twenty-one girls of Kenosha, Wis., have "resolved that if the young men won't come and see us, we will go and see them."

WILLIAM CHANDLER

—DEALER IN—

ALES, WINES, LIQUORS AND CIGARS.

THE BEST IN THE MARKET.

After an absence of more than two years, I have returned to Portsmouth and taken the stand formerly occupied by me, next door to the Custom House, where I should be pleased to meet all my old friends and everyone else in want of anything in my line of business. My LIQUORS are PURE, my CIGARS are of the best brands—in fact everything in my stock is first-class and WARRANTED.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

[3twtmdo13]

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a [illegible] and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of [illegible] merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, originals with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious intermission of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustains an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different works, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series is made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, who is responsible to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Smoked Halibut and Salmon.

600 lbs. Smoked Halibut and Salmon, For sale by BUTLER & LAIGHTON.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL,

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cause of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. FRIDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1874.

Readables.

Indiana's election destroys Senator Morton's hopes for the Presidency and enhances those of Speaker Blaine. Blaine and Booth wouldn't be a bad ticket for 1876.

The democratic papers are excessively annoyed at the probable withdrawal of Gen. McCutchins from the republican gubernatorial candidacy. The fact is, the practical old farmer realizes that republican ascendency can be secured only by a free expression of choice in the matter; and he is probably more desirous of a republican victory than he is of personal advancement. It would be well for the party if all its former candidates would manifest as sensible and creditable a spirit, and leave to the people the selection of candidates who can poll the largest number of votes.

Phelps, who was convicted of embezzling New York State funds, was sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment.

Two Boston runners hired a horse and carriage in Calais, Me., to go to Milltown. One of the men got through his work before the other, and was anxious to get back to Calais; so he thought he would take the team, drive over, and have some one bring it back. A fellow standing by offered to ride over with him, which offer was accepted. After landing the runner in Calais, he started back with the team, but instead of returning to Milltown, ran off with the team. The runner at Milltown wondered what made the team so long in getting back, and the other wondered what kept his friend so long. Finally, the chap at Milltown got some one to bring him down, and when they met they came to the conclusion that their mutual friend was a horse thief. They immediately telgraphed in all directions, and the next day the team was found at Sprague's Falls, where the fellow had left it. But he has not been seen since. He gave his name as Jordan.

Mrs. Lincoln was unable to attend the ceremonies at the dedication of the monument to her husband's memory at Springfield on account of ill health. She has been confined to her room in Chicago for the past five months by a severe sickness, from which she is now recovering.

A square protest is made by the Chicago Times against "the western plan of eternal change and greenhorn representation in Congress."

A careful examination of the Ohio election returns shows that where the crusading movement was the most largely developed the republican losses were heaviest.

The prohibitionists of Ohio won a success which will throw their reform back twenty years.

Henry L. Dawes, the Massachusetts humbug, being anxious to become U. S. Senator from Massachusetts, has been speaking in Boston on "the necessity of continuing the republican party in power."

Advices from Japan report a general preparation throughout the empire for an expected war with China.

A North Carolina minister lost his life a week or two ago in a singular manner. He was anointing his entire body with kerosene, as a cure for rheumatism, when the oil was ignited by the fire on the hearth near which he was standing, and he was burned to death.

A heavy gale prevailed on the north coast of England on the night of the 20th. The storm also extended to Scotland. The steamship Chusan from Glasgow for Shanghae was driven ashore near Ardrossan and is going to pieces. Seventeen of the crew were washed overboard and were drowned. Several lives were lost in England. Reports from Hartlepool, Shields, Hull and other ports and from the inland towns bring intelligence of great damage to shipping, factories and other property. Railway and telegraph lines are interrupted, trees uprooted in all directions, chimneys and walls prostrated, and many persons injured in Edinburg by the flying debris. Three houses in Stockton on Tees were demolished and one person killed. At Ayr, Scotland, twenty vessels broke adrift in the harbor, which is shallow and exposed, all of which were more or less damaged, and one totally wrecked. Three persons were drowned at Dal and two at Sunderland. The Bessemer saloon steamer, lately launched and lying at Hull, dragged her anchors and ran aground, but floated off. Brig E. C. White was lost off the Isle of Wight and four people drowned.

District-Attorney Winslow announces that he will move for the trial of the indictments against Theodore Tilton and Francis D. Moulton for libelling Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, at the November term of the city court. In the suit of Tilton against Beecher the counsel for Tilton has filed a notice of issue in the clerk's office of the city court, thereby placing the case on the November calendar for trial.

At the criminal term of the Superior Court now in session at Lawrence, Bartholomew Sullivan was convicted of keeping a liquor nuisance on Friend street, Amesbury, and sentenced to three months in the County House and a fine of $75. Thomas McDonald, for keeping a liquor nuisance, on Elm street, Salisbury, was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $75.

An ingenious Frenchman has contrived a new aerial vessel which is chiefly remarkable from the method by which it is proposed to guide it. The structure consists of four balloons bound together, but, while passengers sit in the usual way in a car suspended beneath, the engineer is placed on a kind of raised deck on the top of the whole machine. From this "coign of vantage," he is expected to operate the spiral fans which are attached to every side of the balloon, giving it the appearance of a flying windmill.

Cropping the ears of dogs has by magisterial decision at Liverpool been adjudged to be cruelty to animals, and punished by fine. The ear-cropper pleaded that the scissors had been "newly sharpened" and did not give the dog any pain. As the animal could not confirm this tale, the magistrate did not see the case in precisely that light. An M. R. C. V. S. said that some people seemed to think that cutting the ears of a dog beautified the animal, but as the cartilage of the ear was destroyed the atmosphere was admitted, and deafness was frequently the result.

The Amesbury Villager says the apple crop is one of the best gathered in this section for many years, and is paying a better profit to farmers than was expected. Mr. Moses Wilson, of Salisbury, has sold his crop of 1200 barrels for $2 per barrel. One farmer in South Hampton, who has 1500 barrels, has decided to turn his whole crop into cider. From one baldwin tree on Fruit street 15 barrels of apples were picked. J. M. Pettingill picked from one tree on his South Hampton farm 7 1-2 barrels of baldwins, and it was not a large tree. Five, six and seven barrels to a tree is very common picking.

The Jersey City and Brooklyn scandals and the Ohio election show that this is a bad year for Parsons.

The Amesbury mills are now running but five days in a week and several have stopped altogether. The Amesbury Woolen Co. is running out all the warps in the machines, which looks like a full stop. Then there are rumors of a further shortening of time in the factories. Several of the carriage shops have suspended work and others are employing less than half the usual number of workmen.

George W. Stanton of Lewiston, a boy ten years old, stole $13 at Auburn, bought a gun and went into the woods. Being pursued, he fired at the officer, but the shot did not take effect; he was arrested, arraigned and sentenced to the Reform School.

"Snakes in the Grass."

Under the above heading, the Concord People shows its teeth at recent attempts to forestall democratic nominations in this State in the interests of leading railroads. Its candidate, Judge Roberts, was deliberately gouged out of the gubenatorial nomination last year, and the People intimates that the thing cannot be played so easily again. Hear it talk:

"If certain intermeddlers—of whose operations we are fully aware—only succeed in their purpose the democrats of New Hampshire are likely to be saved much trouble in the selection of candidates for Governor and for members of Congress, to be voted for next March. We have reliable information that these secret workers have already made up their minds as to who shall be Chief Magistrate of the State, but that they have only partially decided among themselves as to who shall be representatives in Congress. Now all this laborsaving effort is very kind on the part of the volunteers alluded to—and it may be exceedingly disinterested for aught we know—(although report says that very earnest republican managers have their fingers in the pie;) but however this may be, it occurs to us that the people have rather more than half made up their minds that they have wills of their own respecting the nominations referred to, and that they will insist on their expression, in the old-fashioned regular way, without suffering any interference with their prerogatives by "pipe-layers" or "log-rollers"—no matter how influential the latter may imagine themselves to be. And we believe the people are right in thus asserting their privileges, and that it is our duty, as honest democrats, to labor for their just recognition. Of one thing we are very sure, and that is, that the time has gone by when any secret clique or coterie can dare with impunity to usurp the functions of the democratic people of New Hampshire."

Something They Did Not Tell.

[Butler County Democrat.]

Barnum's balloon, which ascended at Cincinnati yesterday morning, to encounter the then lowering and portentous clouds, containing a heterogeneous mass of journalistic adventurers, passed over Ross Township, eight miles from this city, last night about eight o'clock. City Editor O'Shaunnesy, of the Enquirer, dropped his pair of unmentionables, and Colonel Henderson, of the Commercial, is now minus a darned sock. They had divested themselves of their wearing apparel, and, being astronomers, were making a desperate attempt to persuade the individual who holds forth in the moon to inform them whether or not the Crusaders were doing picket duty up there. We wish the boys bon voyage. But those unmentionables—we knew that flannel patch on the left side; and that darned sock—well, Henderson can't disown it, and Barnum shall have 'em both.

—It appears that the female Treasury clerks dodge the rule requiring the resignation of those who may have contracted matrimony, by continuing to sign the pay rolls under their maiden names. So long as each one is not amiss in her duties in the department, we can't see that it matters any whether she's a Miss or a Madame at home.

State News.

Mr. Willard Pierce of East Jaffrey, has raised about sixty "pine-apple" potatoes from two or three given him, which are great curiosities, as they strongly resemble pine cones in shape and projections.

The Amherst Cabinet says: One evening last week as a lady was returning to her home on Souhegan street, in company with a gentleman and his dog, the latter started up a rat, chasing it for some time, when it suddenly disappeared. The dog gave up the chase but kept his eye upon the lady, being more familiar even than was agreeable during the remainder of the walk. After being in the house a short time she thought there was an unusual commotion about her dress, and upon examination it was found that the rat had taken refuge during the chase in her "bustle," and was beginning to make his nest. His ratship was killed by the gentleman, and the lady didn't faint.

Mrs. Bailey Sargent, of Danville, picked ten barrels of baldwin apples in four hours, and a couple of days after picked twenty barrels in seven hours.

Mr. Wm. Wetherbee, of Peterborough, after fighting and driving flies from the room, found his wrist swelling and paining him badly, continuing through the night. In the morning Dr. Dearborn was called, who found one of the bones of the wrist broken. Mr. W. thinks he had the worst of the fight, but does not know how or when he did it.

A fishing party of six gentlemen of Concord, during two days took 400 pickerel and horn pouts from Suncook pond. One of the pickerel weighed five pounds and a quarter.

—Ex-Mayor Joseph Medill writes to the Chicago Tribune from Germany as follows: "Drunkenness is so rare and infrequent that it may be said not to exist. I have travelled thousands of miles through Germany, in various directions, visiting nearly all the chief cities, and have made diligent enquiry of American consuls and other well informed persons, and received but one answer everywhere, viz: 'No drunkenness among the Germans; public sentiment would not tolerate it; the habits of the country are all against it.' The reason of this freedom from inebriation is the total absence of whiskey, and the substitution of the milder beer."

—The opinion is being strengthened every day that the man who first made a shirt to button behind did more for the world than the one who has discovered five comets and is on the watch for more.

—"How many people," says Jeremy Taylor, "are busy in this world gathering together a handful of thorns to sit upon!"

—There died in Alleghany, Pa., recently, an old man, who, the Pittsburg Commercial says, had at one time, according to his own account and the facts that can be ascertained concerning his history, strong aspirations to a throne in Europe. His name was John William Leskar, and his age sixty-seven years. He has been in this country fourteen years, and in Alleghany thirteen years. He came from Saxony, where, according to his accounts, he was a man of great wealth and high position. A revolutionary movement was started, and Leskar placed himself at the head of it. Had the movement succeeded, he was to have been placed on the Saxon throne. The revolution was a failure, and the throne did without Leskar. Worse than that, his estate was confiscated, and he became an exile. He came to this country, and accepted the exciting career of barber in Alleghany City. A day or two since he became ill, and he died in such poverty that the authorities had to bury him. Leskar has a brother and a son now in Saxony. The brother is a man of great wealth, and his son, it is said, is attached to the court of the present ruler. It is stated that the influence of friends could have saved Leskar from exile, and his property from confiscation, but he would not permit such influence to be used. Neither would he in later years permit his brother or his son to do anything in his behalf.

Wong Chin Foo,

The Chinese refugee, a Mandarin of the third rank, lectures at the Temple this evening on "China from a Chinese stand-point." The religion of Confucius will be contrasted with that of Christ, and the manners and customs of China commented on and explained. The Boston papers speak highly of his lectures, and all who attend cannot fail to be deeply interested. The admission fee is but twenty-five cents.

The Post of Sept. 28th gives the following sketch of his lecture in Boston: By many of his people, he said, Confucius was held to be a supreme being, but by the educated classes he was only regarded as a holy teacher. He then briefly sketched the story of his life. Born 2300 years ago, amidst circumstances which, as detailed by tradition, were similar to those attendant on the birth of Christ, he was named, as are most Chinese, with three names, one given him by his mother, the second at school, and the third conferred upon him in after life. The Chinese always spoke their names backward, the surname coming first, so that Confucius really means Professor Coon. At four years old Confucius was unusually smart, and for his high intellectual attainments was made the recipient of high distinctions at school. He early attained to an honorable public position, but this he soon gave up to devote himself to the good of his fellow-man, and to the raising up of his people. He searched diligently the laws of humanity, and traced them to their source. He worked upon the higher classes and not upon the lower, as do the missionaries in China at this time. He had as many as five hundred mandarins under his teaching. In his latter years he was persecuted and imprisoned, and died at the age of 70. He taught five great principles—gravity, propriety, sincerity, virtue, and filial piety. To-day his name was covered with glory, as in all Chinese cities a temple of honor was built to his memory, every family had a tablet in his remembrance set up in the house itself, and a holiday was observed once every year in his honor. The speaker explained at considerable length the tenor of his teachings on the five cardinal points above mentioned.

The Circuit Court.

On Thursday, the case of Raynes vs. Raynes was placed on trial, a suit involving the division of the estate. Part payment of amounts involved are charged and denied.

The Grand Jury reported twenty-six indictments, seven of which were for liquor selling, and every respondeudent pleaded "not guilty."

The following named persons were arraigned: James Gorman and John L. Bragdon for breaking and entering a dwelling house at Salem and stealing money therefrom; Joseph Ryan, theft of horse from S. J. Perkins of Exeter; Valentine Vox, Robert Emmett, John Magraw and Richard Murphy, stealing hens at Newmarket; William Martin, assault on Sarah E. Bridges with intent to kill; Frank Sargent, stealing pocket-book and money from Sherburne Somerby at Exeter; Richard Kingsley, aggravated assault on William Dimond of Portsmouth; Charles Miller, indecent assault on a young girl in Portsmouth; Onsville Mason, attempt to cheat and defraud; Peter Butler and George Laskey, stealing money from Alonzo Wise at Newcastle.

Laconics.

Commander R. S. McCook is detached from the navy yard, and placed on waiting orders.

Hint to callers—many words, little work.

With a population not much smaller ten years ago than now, Portsmouth grocers were wont to allow their patrons to take home their daily provender in their hands, or hire some wheel-barrow propeller to deliver them for six cents. Now, all is changed; nearly every grocery has its horse and wagon, as well as a relentless urchin to stand up (as if not satisfied with the less active condition of sitting) and belabor the steed with the whip's butt end. It takes a steam chariot to pass one of these teams without considerable trouble. Do we as a people eat more—or are the grocers making larger profits?

A heavy white frost ushered in the 22d of October.

Persons whose business leads them to suits at law are well pleased that Charles G. Conner, Esq., the affable and ever courteous Clerk of the Court, still occupies his old position, a "spared monument" of republican ascendency, contrasting with the bleak desolation which the democratic whirlwind wrought and which made sad havoc with surrounding land-marks.

Governor Dingley of Maine has signed the warrant for the execution of Wagner to take place Jan. 29, 1875.

It takes between fifteen and twenty minutes to try a divorce case of the ordinary kind before the Circuit Court.

Auctioneer Wendell sold the Bowles house on Middle street on Thursday to James Moses, Esq., for $2600.

U. S. S. Plymouth arrived at Boston from this port, Thursday.

Gen. Butler's famed yacht America is lying at the easterly end of Newburyport bridge, having been repaired.

—Pianos must be high-priced in Colorado, or houses and lots very low; for we read this advertisement in the Georgetown Miner of Oct. 10: For sale—or exchange for a house and lot—a first-class piano, nearly new. Inquire at this office.

—The weather does remind the Detroit Free Press of the fact that every wise husband will begin now to arrange and settle the question as to who is to light the fire through the winter.

—Iowa ladies rest their mallets between their knees, flap their arms till the blood comes back into their fingers, and go on with the game.

—Paris has twenty-two theatres.

New Publications.

Mr. Johnson renews in Scribner's for November his recollections of Charles Sumner, giving a new and fresh account of what has been often described before,—namely, his home and pictures. He quotes to some extent from Mr. Sumner's own account of them given in a magazine article on "The Best Portraits in engraving," contributed to The City,—a magazine of which only one number was printed; and has added some incidents of the household life of Mr. Sumner which will be new to most readers. The leading illustrated article bears the title, "Pictures in Florida," and is followed by a friendly sketch of J. T. Trowbridge, with a portrait, and a poem, "The Story of an Outcast," by Boyesen; "The Miracle of Lourdes," by Charles Fairbanks; the poem from Dr. Holland's "Mistress of the Manse," entitled "Mildred in the Library;" the beginning of a new story by Saxe Holm, called "My Tourmoline," and a great variety of entertainments besides. The number begins a new volume, and promises much for the coming year.

The contributors to St. Nicholas for November have presented an unusual opulence to its young readers in the way of curious and entertaining stories, and of descriptive and illustrated articles. This number is the beginning of a new volume, to which all the old writers and many new ones are contributing of their best.

To the botanist who first discovered the virtues of the Quillaya Saponaria, or soap tree of Chili. The wonderful cleansing and purifying property of its bark gives to the fragrant SOZODONT much of its unrivalled efficacy as a preservative of the teeth.

Change in the Cabinet.

Now that the President's Long Branch season is over, it is confidently predicted that there will be a change in the cabinet, and that before the first of December. It is known that the President and all heads of departments have bought largely of tickets for the next grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, to draw Nov. 30, and they flatter themselves that they will capture one or more of the large prizes, which will make plenty of change in the cabinet.

Trumpery Tonics.

Moderation in the use of stimulants, like the avoidance of all excesses, is unquestionably praiseworthy and life-prolonging. All sensible persons admit this. But the vendors of non-alcoholic slops, desirous of undermining the reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in order to sell their own worthless trash, have thought fit to go to the extreme length of denouncing as baneful all invigorants containing spirits. Now the very reverse of this is the case, the fact being that no vegetable bitters entirely devoid of alcohol are worth a rush, that being the one ingredient which prevents the decomposition and souring of the others. Probably no one knows better than you, Messieurs the Trumpery Tonic Vendors, that the perfectly pure liquor used to dissolve the botanic constituents of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the very best medium that could have been selected to facilitate and confirm the invigorating, protective and remedial action of the great stomachic.

What is the matter?—Your hair looks dry and dead, it breaks off, and is falling out. You dress it with an alcohol and oil mixture or some well advertised Hair Restorer. The hair is poisoned, it is killed. If you would restore it, cast away these things, go buy a bottle of Bearine which can be had of any Druggist, and we will guarantee a change for the better at once! 9

Special Notices.

Dr. Peirce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Sugar-Coated, Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules—the "Little Giant" Cathartic or multum in parvo physic. No use of any longer taking the huge, repulsive, nauseous and griping pills, composed of cheap, crude, bulky ingredients, when, by a careful application of chemical science, we can extract all the cathartic and medical properties from the most valuable roots and herbs and concentrate them into a minute pellet or granule, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, that can be readily swallowed by those of the most sensitive stomachs and fastidious tastes; 25 cents, by all druggists. 686

Chapped Hands, face, rough skin, pimples, ringworm, salt rheum and other cutaneous affections cured, and the skin made soft and smooth, by using the Juniper Tar Soap, made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York. Be certain to get the Juniper Tar Soap, as there are many imitations made with common tar which are worthless. f2

HACKNEYED DOCTOR-TALK.

"All has been done that can be done," says the physician when he gives up a consumptive patient and retires from the field. Not so, good friend—not so. Nothing, comparatively, has been done, if Hale's HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR has not been prescribed and perseveringly administered. Let the patient take the case into his own hands, and use the remedy that Nature and Science have furnished. It never fails.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Price and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, sold by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from the masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The article illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interposition of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, contain an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owes the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,000, are distributed as soon as the series is call, and the award of each series is made, and to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cause of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. LAWS

OF THE

UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 73.]

AN ACT making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department, and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes, for the year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-five, and for other purposes.

OMAHAS.

For ninth of ten instalments, for pay of one farmer, per same treaties, nine hundred dollars.

For ninth of ten instalments, for pay of blacksmith, per same treaties, nine hundred dollars.

For seventh of ten instalments, for support of blacksmith shop, and supplying tools for the same, three hundred dollars.

For one matron, six hundred dollars.

OSAGES.

For interest on sixty-nine thousand one hundred and twenty dollars, at five per centum per annum, being value of fifty-four sections of land set apart by treaty of June second, eighteen hundred and twenty-five, for educational purposes per Senate resolution of January ninth, eighteen hundred and thirty-eight, three thousand four hundred and fifty-six dollars.

For interest on three hundred thousand dollars at five per centum per annum, to be paid semi-annually, in money or such articles as the Secretary of the Interior may direct, as per first article treaty of September twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and sixty-five, fifteen thousand dollars.

For interest on seven hundred and twenty thousand seven hundred and forty- nine dollars, at five per centum per annum, to be used for such objects as the Secretary of the Interior may direct, as per act of July fifteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy, thirty-six thousand and thirty-seven dollars and forty-five cents: Provided, That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized to expend, from the proceeds of the sale of lands of the Great and Little Osage Indians provided to be sold by section twelve of said act of July fifteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy, the sum of two hundred thousand dollars per annum for two years, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the purchase of stock and agricultural implements, opening farms, erection of houses, and for the civilization and support of the Osages and of their tribal government.

OTOES AND MISSOURIAS.

For seventh of fifteenth instalments, being the third series, in money or otherwise, per fourth article treaty of March fifteenth, eighteen hundred and fifty-four, nine thousand dollars.

PAWNEES.

For perpetual annuity, at least one-half of which is to be in goods and such articles as may be deemed necessary for them, per second article treaty of September twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, thirty thousand dollars.

For support of two manual-labor schools, per third article treaty of September twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, ten thousand dollars.

For pay of two farmers, two blacksmiths and two apprentices, one miller and apprentice, two teachers, one shoemaker, and one carpenter, seven thousand five hundred dollars.

For pay of physician and purchase of medicines, one thousand two hundred dollars.

For the purchase of iron and steel and other necessaries for the shops, five hundred dollars.

For the purchase of farming-utensils and stock, one thousand two hundred dollars.

For repairs of grist and saw mills, three hundred dollars.

For transportation and necessary cost of delivery of annuities for the Pawnees, one thousand five hundred dollars.

For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the employment of one matron, three teachers, and two assistant teachers, and providing the school with fuel, books, and stationery, four thousand seven hundred dollars.

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he hereby is, authorized to use, for purposes of civilization of the Pawnee Indians, the unexpended balances from funds appropriated for fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, and former years, under the provisions of the treaty with said tribes of September twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, for support of schools and mills, and for pay of employees and smiths; said balances amounting to the sum of eight thousand five hundred and thirty dollars and one cent.

PONCAS.

For the first of fifteen instalments (third series) to be paid to them or expended for their benefit, per second article of treaty of March twelfth, eighteen hundred and fifty-eight, eight thousand dollars.

For this amount, to be expended during the pleasure of the President, in furnishing such aid and assistance in agricultural and mechanical pursuits, including the working of the mill, as provided by second article treaty of March twelfth, eighteen hundred and fifty-eight, as the Secretary of the Interior may consider advantageous and necessary, five thousand dollars.

For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be used at the discretion of the President, to carry on the work of aiding and instructing the Poncas in the arts of civilization, with a view to their self-support, and for subsistence and clothing, five thousand dollars.

POTTAWATOMIES.

For permanent annuity, in silver, per fourth article treaty of August third, seventeen hundred and ninety-five, three hundred and fifty-seven dollars and eighty cents.

For permanent annuity, in silver, per third article treaty of September thirtieth, eighteen hundred and nine, one hundred and seventy-eight dollars and ninety cents.

For permanent annuity, in silver, per third article treaty of October second, eighteen hundred and eighteen, eight hundred and ninety-four dollars and fifty cents.

For permanent annuity, in money, per second article treaty of September twentieth, eighteen hundred and twenty-eight, seven hundred and fifteen dollars and sixty cents.

For permanent annuity, in specie, per second article treaty of July twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and twenty-nine, and second article of treaty of September twentieth, eighteen hundred and twenty-eight, five thousand seven hundred and twenty-four dollars and seventy-seven cents.

For educational purposes, five thousand dollars.

For permanent provision for payment of money, in lieu of tobacco, iron, and steel, per second article treaty of September twentieth, eighteen hundred and twenty-eight, and tenth article treaties of June fifth and seventeenth, eighteen hundred and forty-six, one hundred and seven dollars and thirty-four cents.

For permanent provision for three blacksmiths and assistants, and for iron and steel for shops, per third article treaty of October sixteenth, eighteen hundred and twenty-six, second article treaty of September twentieth, eighteen hundred and twenty-eight, and second article treaty July twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and twenty-nine, one thousand and eight dollars and ninety-nine cents.

For permanent provision for fifty barrels of salt, per second article treaty of July twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and twenty-nine, one hundred and fifty-six dollars and fifty-four cents.

For interest on one hundred and sixty-eight thousand one hundred and twenty-three dollars and eighty-five cents, at five per centum, in conformity with provisions of article seventh of treaties of June fifth and seventeenth, eighteen hundred and forty-six, eleven thousand five hundred and three dollars and twenty-one cents.

POTTAWATOMIES OF HURON.

For permanent annuity, in money or otherwise, per second article treaty of November seventeenth, eighteen hundred and seven, four hundred dollars.

QUAPAWS.

For the education, during the pleasure of the President, per third article treaty of May thirteenth, eighteen hundred and thirty-three, one thousand dollars.

For blacksmith and assistants, and tools, iron, and steel for blacksmith-shop, per same article of same treaty, one thousand and sixty dollars.

For one farmer, during the pleasure of the President, per same treaty, six hundred dollars.

QUINAILELT AND QUILLEHUTE INDIANS.

For last of five instalments on twenty-five thousand dollars (being the first series,) for beneficial objects, under the direction of the President, per fourth article treaty of July first, eighteen hundred and fifty-five, one thousand dollars.

For fifteenth of twenty instalments, for the support of an agricultural and industrial school, and for pay of suitable instructors, per tenth article treaty of July first, eighteen hundred and fifty-five, two thousand five hundred dollars.

For fifteenth of twenty instalments, for support of smith and carpenter shop, and to provide the necessary tools therefor, per tenth article treaty of July first, eighteen hundred and fifty-five, five hundred dollars.

For fifteenth of twenty instalments, for the employment of a blacksmith, carpenter, and farmer, and a physician, who shall furnish medicines for the sick, per tenth article treaty of July first, eighteen hundred and fifty-five, four thousand one hundred dollars.

RIVER-CROWS.

For this amount, to be expended for such goods, provisions, and other articles as the President, from time to time, may determine, including transportation thereof, in instructing in agricultural and mechanical pursuits, in providing employees, educating children, procuring medicine and medical attendance, care for and support of the aged, sick, and infirm, for the helpless orphans of said Indians, and in any other respect to promote their civilization, comfort, and improvement, thirty thousand dollars.

ROGUE-RIVERS.

For last of five instalments, in blankets, clothing, farming utensils, and stock, per fourth article treaty of September tenth, eighteen hundred and fifty-three, three thousand dollars.

SACS AND FOXES ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

For permanent annuity, in goods or otherwise, per third article treaty of November third, eighteen hundred and four, one thousand dollars.

For interest on two hundred thousand dollars, at five per centum, per second article treaty of October twenty-first, eighteen hundred and thirty-seven, ten thousand dollars.

For interest on eight hundred thousand dollars, at five per centum, per second article treaty of October eleventh, eighteen hundred and forty-two, forty thousand dollars, of which sum one thousand five hundred dollars shall be paid for a physician for the agency, who shall furnish the necessary medicines; Provided, That so much of the appropriation herein made for the Sacs and Foxes on the Mississippi as shall be deemed necessary by the Secretary of the Interior, not exceeding fifty per centum thereof, may be used, under his direction, for the purposes of education and civilization: Provided, further, That the Indians shall consent thereto.

SACS AND FOXES OF MISSOURI.

For interest on one hundred and fifty-seven thousand four hundred dollars, at five per centum, under the direction of the President, per second article treaty of October twenty-first, eighteen hundred and thirty-seven, seven thousand eight hundred and seventy dollars.

For this amount, to be expended in the erection of a suitable schoolhouse, and dwelling house for the school-teacher, for the benefit of the Sacs and Foxes of the Missouri, in accordance with the provisions of the fifth article of the treaty with said tribe of March sixth, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, one thousand dollars.

For the support of said school for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-five as per said article of the treaty, two hundred dollars: Provided, That so much of the appropriation herein made for the Sacs and Foxes of the Missouri as shall be deemed necessary by the Secretary of the Interior, not exceeding fifty per centum thereof, may be used, under his direction, for the purposes of education and civilization: Provided further, That the Indians shall consent thereto.

SEMINOLES.

For five per centum interest on two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, to be paid as annuity, as per eighth article treaty of August seventh, eighteen hundred and fifty-six, twelve thousand five hundred dollars.

[To be continued.]

Daily Chronicle.

My Neighbor's Dog.

That humorous writer, M. Quad, publishes the following under the caption of "My Neighbor's Dog:"

My neighbor keeps a dog—my nearest neighbor. Other neighbors keep other dogs, but it is this neighbor and of this dog I speak. The neighbor is all right—kind-hearted, votes my ticket, and his wife borrows tea and coffee from my wife; but his dog is gradually killing me. During the day, when I am down town, the beast sports around like an innocent lamb, or lies in the shade and sleeps and dreams. But as soon as I retire to bed that dog commences operations. My neighbor and his wife are old and deaf, and they have no idea what their dog does.

I make it a rule to go to bed precisely at nine o'clock, unless the President of the United States or some of his cabinet officers are stopping at my house. At just five minutes past nine, when he knows that I have got the sheet over me, that canine sits down in front of my gate. He wiggles and twists until he gets firmly imbedded in position, and then he opens his mouth, sucks in a long breath and yells:

"Oh! hoo! hoo! hoo! hoo!"

It fetches me on an end in an instant. There is such a graveyard shriek to his voice that my hair stands up for a moment, and I think of ghosts rambling through deserted halls. In about thirty seconds the canine opens his mouth again:

"Oh! whoop! hoo! hi! hoo!"

At this I get out of bed, seize a stick of wood and open the door to smash him. He calmly gazes at me while I draw back to throw, and when the stick strikes the ground a rod or two to the left of him, he utters a quiet chuckle. However, when he sees more wood coming, he saunters off in a careless manner, and I go back to bed, hoping for peace. In about fifteen minutes the brute comes through a hole in the fence, plants himself under the bedroom window, and getting all ready, howls:

"Hi! hoo! whoop!"

I throw up my window and shout at him to get out, vanish, go home, dry up, but he sits there and calmly contemplates my night cap until I begin to shoot at him with my revolver. Then he walks around the corner of the house and stands there, knowing that no revolver can shoot in a circle. My wife begins to interfere about this time, and I haul in the revolver, close the window, and swear by the horn spoon that not another sun shall set on that dog in life. At midnight he howls again—at one—three—five, and then he returns home, with a consciousness of having done his duty. I have thrown him poisoned meat, paid boys to lay for him, and wasted cords of wood and pounds of powder myself, but he grows fat and his howl grows worse. I spoke to my neighbor, but he replied that "it was hard times for money," and I got discouraged. My wife says, "Patience, dear;" but I won't have patience—no, hang me, if I will! It is now half past eight o'clock, and between this and eleven I will be a dead man, or I will hurl that dog into eternity.

Comets and Shooting Stars.

[Prof. Simon Newcomb in Harper's for November.]

Within the past few years a relation of a remarkable character has been found between comets and shooting-stars. The nature of the latter is perfectly understood. The earth, in its passage around the sun, is continually encountering vast numbers of minute bodies, each revolving in its own orbit around the sun. These bodies probably weigh only a few grains each. Striking the atmosphere with the enormous velocity of the heavenly bodies produces a degree of heat which instantly burns them up, with the production of a most brilliant light. This light it is which produces the appearance of the shooting-star. These bodies have never been seen except by the light of their own destruction; it is therefore impossible to determine the orbit in which any isolated one revolves. But when there is a meteoric shower this orbit may be determined with considerable accuracy by a comparison of all the meteor paths, and it was thus found that the meteors which produced the great showers of 1866 and 1867 travelled in the identical orbit with a comet seen in the former year. We can not avoid the conviction that those bodies are simply fragments of the comet which it has gradually been throwing off and leaving behind in its journey. Since that time other meteoric showers have been found associated with comets in the same way. Very curious in this connection is the association of the shower of meteors on the evening of October 27, 1872, with the lost comet of Biela, of which you have probably heard. This comet was formerly bright enough to be seen by the naked eye, but grew fainter at every return, and at last disappeared from view in even the most powerful telescopes. On October 27 of every year the earth passes very near the orbit of this comet, and in 1872, although the comet itself could not be seen, some of its fragments showed themselves in the air as a meteoric shower.

—Mr. Richter, an English mechanical engineer, has called attention to the large number of disasters which have recently befallen iron vessels trading to the port of Melbourne in Australia. While he believes in iron ships when built of sound material and properly constructed, he thinks that wooden vessels are better and safer than many iron vessels now afloat. The fact that the wrecked and dismasted vessels referred to were disabled, not in one gale, but at different times and in widely different latitudes, shows, in Mr. Richter's opinion, that iron vessels not constructed on the best mechanical principles carry the causes of their own destruction within them. Iron ships are too rigid and crank, and do not yield enough to heavy seas to avoid severe shocks to their chronometers, besides being in other respects faulty in construction. There can be no doubt, he writes, that the loss of the British Admiral, with seventy lives, was due to the rate of the chronometer being altered by such shocks, causing the ship to be placed 100 miles or so ahead of where the captain believed her to be. A very similar instance occurred several years ago in the case of a vessel bound from Sydney with coal for San Francisco, when on a foggy morning she went on a beach 110 miles south of San Francisco, at a time when the captain made out his position as 200 miles out to sea. It is probable, too, that the compasses of the British Admiral were affected by a magnetic attraction known to exist on the coast between Melbourne and Adelaide, from which latter cause other vessels have been wrecked. The steamship Airdale was wrecked on the coast of New Zealand, where the beach is composed largely of steel sand—wrecked on a set course which she had never altered for fifteen years, thus seeming to show that there are serious occasional disturbances even in these attractions. These influences are stronger on compasses in iron vessels than on compasses in wooden ones.

President Jocelyn, of Albion College, Michigan, declines a nomination for Governor of that State, because "with the ordination vows of an itinerant minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church upon me, I feel that I have no right to become a candidate for any position to which I cannot be appointed by the proper authorities of the church!"

The Chicago Post and Mail has discovered why Indianapolis went democratic. There are in that judicial district 1,700 bankrupts.

The increase in the democratic vote in the State of Missouri is largely due to the fact that a most salutary prohibition, which will go into effect next year, did not go into effect four years ago. This prohibition will shut out from the attainment of the franchise all such persons as have not found it worth while to read and write in the meanwhile, and the only fault we have to find with it is, that it was not ordained to be in force after an interval of five years, instead of ten.

By the explosion of the propeller Brooklyn on Lake Erie, Thursday, sixteen persons are missing and a number of the rest are seriously injured.

St. Louis Globe says: Mr. Schurz can in some measure console himself, when he reflects that if he doesn't succeed in getting elected by means of the republican party in Missouri, he will, at least, have given its integrity a shock, by recalling the example of the philosopher who had attempted to induce a lady, chaste as the curdled snow that hangs on Diau's temple, to commit with him an imminent deadly breach of a commandment which need not further be particularized. "Did you succeed?" asked a friend. "Wall, no," answered the philosopher, "but I guess I lowered her moral tone somewhat."

New York Tribune: "It would be a mistake to regard the October elections as indicating a revival of the Bourbon democracy. The people have not made up their minds to restore power to an organization whose last President was Buchanan, and whose last statesman was Tweed."

It is now more than a week since Paul Boynton sailed from New York in a transatlantic steamer. It was purposed to put on a suit of india rubber, inflated, and to leap overboard when 300 miles out. If he adhered to his resolution and not to his ship, he is now still floating on the waves of the Atlantic.

The burglars, Kelly and Kezer, who broke and entered the depots at Groveland and West Amesbury, Mass., have each been sentenced to nine years' confinement in the State Prison at Charlestown, Mass.

—An Albany man, out of work and nearly starving, turned for comfort to his sainted mother's Bible, for the first time since her death in 1867. To his surprise and delight he found a ten-dollar bill between the leaves, and immediately fell on his knees for the first time since 1840. With a light heart and glittering eye he prayerfully started for the bakers to obtain a loaf of bread. There he found that the bill was counterfeit, when he swore bitterly for the first time in three hours.

—A village in Western New York is reported to be exercised over a new sensation, caused by a young lady of the place leaving a line of bran along the sidewalk while taking her afternoon promenade. The gossips of the town want to know where the bran came from.

State News.

Fred A. Warren of Dover fell from an apple tree, dislocating one of his wrists, and a few days later his father, Dominicus Warren, fell from a tree in the same garden and was somewhat injured.

A two story house owned by Mrs. Sarah P. Thayer, on Park street, Manchester, was partially burned Thursday afternoon. The fire was first discovered issuing from the side of the barn, which was wholly consumed. The occupants of the house were absent at the time. Loss $1500; insured for $2000. The furniture was mostly saved. The fire is supposed to be incendiary.

Frank Merrill, of Dover, received the contents of a pistol which he was handling recently, in the ends of his two middle fingers.

Sidney Gray, while running a sole-dieing machine in Pillsbury Brothers' shoe manufactory at Northwood, had his right forefinger crushed nearly off, dislocating the second joint.

Three firms are going to cut and put into the Saco river, at Lower Bartlett, over 3,000,000 feet of lumber, during the coming season.

J. C. Hutchins, of Canaan, found a valuable cow dead in the pasture, from fighting with some other cattle which went into the pasture and broke her neck.

Two more boarding-house robberies have come to light in Nashua. Miss Lovejoie, a French girl, reported that her trunk was robbed of $31 on the upper corporation and Miss Artemise Vallancour had $36 stolen from hers.

Mr. Moses Mann of Greenland has two venerable horses; one named Dollie was brought by him from New York when she was only six years old, and she is now thirty-two. She comes to Portsmouth to market several times a week, and can pass almost any team on the road. The past summer she, with another horse twenty-five years old, mowed and raked forty tons of hay. This twenty-five-year older is Frank Temple, a brother to the famous Flora Temple.

A Trip in a Paper Canoe.

Waters & Son, the paper boat manufacturers of Troy, are engaged in constructing a paper canoe for Mr. N. H. Bishop, a gentleman who has acquired quite a reputation as traveller and author. Mr. Bishop proposes to start from Troy about the first of November, and make the trip to the Gulf of Mexico in the boat. The route, as laid down at present, says the Whig, is as follows: From Troy to New York, and to Raritan Bay and River; from Raritan River to Delaware by way of canal; down the Delaware River to Delaware City, and though the canal to the Chesapeake Bay; thence to Norfolk, through the canal into Currituck Sound; down Currituck, Albamarle, Pimlico Cove, Bogue and Stump Sounds, inside, to within thirty miles of Cape Clear, North Carolina; outside through Bear Inlet, thirty miles to Cape Fear; outside, along the coast eighty miles to Georgetown, South Carolina; inside, through Sea Islands passages, Romerly marshes of Georgia, marshes, thoroughfares, &c., on the Florida coast, into St. John's River, (down South); up St. John's River two hundred and forty miles to Salt Lake; the boat then to be hauled across seven miles into Indian River; down that to Jupiter Inlet; out to sea along the coast to the Gulf. The canoe is to be provided with a sail and a pair of oars, so that the adventurous gentleman may not be compelled to depend entirely upon the wind or physical exertion to propel his craft. The canoe is fitted with a cover extending in-board about two feet from both the bow and stern, the centre of the boat being covered in rainy weather with a canvas cover.

Trumpery Tonics.

Moderation in the use of stimulants, like the avoidance of all excesses, is unquestionably praiseworthy and life-prolonging. All sensible persons admit this. But the vendors of non-alcoholic slops, desirous of undermining the reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in order to sell their own worthless trash, have thought fit to go to the extreme length of denouncing as baneful all invigorants containing spirits. Now the very reverse of this is the case, the fact being that no vegetable bitters entirely devoid of alcohol are worth a rush, that being the one ingredient which prevents the decomposition and souring of the others. Probably no one knows better than you, Messieurs the Trumpery Tonic Vendors, that the perfectly pure liquor used to dissolve the botanic constituents of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the very best medium that could have been selected to facilitate and confirm the invigorating, protective and remedial action of the great stomachic.

Sixteen Thousand Feet Above the Sea.

A writer in the Baltimore American gives the following account of a recent ascension with Donaldson:

"Now came the most stirring incident of our trip. From the height of 4000 feet we steadily ascend, the country dwarfing into a panorama of toys below us. I had the aneroid barometer in my hand, and so marked our progress upward. At six thousand feet our breaths became visible, just as they would be on a frosty morning. We already began to feel cold in the body, but the rays of the sun beat in upon us with a fierce intensity. The index of the barometer steadily crept around the dial, marking off the thousands until it reached the fourteenth, then flying back again and starting from zero, whence it progressed once more around the dial until it halted on the verge of the two thousandth, telling us that we were only about a hundred feet less than 16,000 feet above the earth. At this height the world was an obscurity to us—a vapory haze shut it out from our view and we could detect nothing of it but the silver lines that marked the great bays and rivers. From a contemplation of the indistinct scene I revert to my own feelings.

The air was very cold and the sun was very warm. The thermometer stood at eighty-three degrees, the sun was intensely hot, as its rays fell upon us, but for all that we might as well have been in the arctic region. This is one of the most curious phenomena of life above the clouds. The rarefaction of the air hardly accounts for the chilling cold which penetrates you through and through, while the heat of the solar rays is indicating a high summer temperature. At the height of 15,000 feet I was shivering, while my head seemed to be burning up, and all the blood in my body rushed towards it. I felt a slight difficulty in breathing, but my ears were stopped up and I could hardly hear what Mr. Fox was saying to me when he was standing by my side. We did not remain long at this tremendous elevation. We slipped down through the atmosphere to between eleven and twelve thousand feet above the earth, and it was there that we had our grandest view. We had within our range of vision at the same moment, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Harrisburg, the Chesapeake and Delaware Bays, and all their upper tributaries, and also Annapolis and the most of the smaller towns are included within this extended vision.

But the grandest feature of all was when gazing eastwardly we very plainly perceived the Atlantic Ocean. There was no mistake about it; the mist had lifted a little and we could plainly see where the waters of the Delaware Bay mingled with those of the Atlantic. The view at this time was above the possibilities of language to picture. The peninsula of land between the Chesapeake and Delaware Bays was but as a thread of dark green upon the landscape; the Susquehanna river was hardly perceptible except for the dark line which we knew to be the great bridge across it; the country below us was but as a checker-board of indistinct green and white squares; Baltimore and Philadelphia were only masses of shade upon the map; but the great ocean was a reality, and to a view of it we constantly turned our eyes with a feeling that here was something everlasting and enduring.

The panorama that came within our scope of vision was probably not less than two hundred square miles, but from our height of 16,000 feet it seemed to be dwarfed to a space you might cover with your handkerchief. It seemed to us as if we were looking through the wrong end of a field-glass. When at this height of 16,000 feet, or over three miles above the earth, Professor Donaldson told us that the balloon had obtained its equilibrium, that it was poised on an exact balance, and that as soon as the gas commenced to condense, even in the slightest degree, we should descend rapidly. And it was precisely in this fashion that we did go down.

HACKNEYED DOCTOR-TALK.

"All has been done that can be done," says the physician when he gives up a consumptive patient and retires from the field. Not so, good friend—not so. Nothing, comparatively, has been done, if Hale's HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR has not been prescribed and perseveringly administered. Let the patient take the case into his own hands, and use the remedy that Nature and Science have furnished. It never fails.

—The Detroit Press says that a gentleman who purchased a box of peaches at the Central Market looked around for a boy who would carry them home, and presently found a ragged lad seated on a bench eating the last remnant of a pear. The man asked him if he wouldn't like to earn ten cents by carrying the box to such a number and street, and the boy promptly replied that he wouldn't. "Why?" queried the man. "Why?" echoed the boy, "because dad died the other day, and now I'm the head of the family, and how'd I look lugging peaches around?"

Local Matters.

The U. S. S. Vandalia

Was launched from the Charlestown navy yard on Friday. She was designed by Mr. William L. Hanscom, naval constructor, and is of a remarkably beautiful model, adapted for fast sailing with a heavy armament. Her load displacement is 2100 tons; she is 208 feet long on the keel, 226 on deck and 248 1-2 over all; her extreme breadth of beam is 39 feet; depth from the throat-line to the gun deck 20 feet; dead rise at half floor 14 inches; swell or rounding of sides 2 feet 3 inches; sheer 3 feet forwaad and 2 feet aft. She has ports for 14 broadside guns and one pivot 11-inch gun to work from either side. Her frame is of live oak, built solid and caulked inside and outside up to the turn of the bilge. She is diagonally cross-braced with iron from the floor-heads to the gun-deck, the braces bolted through every timber and riveted together at every intersection between the frames. There is an iron belt around her inside, to which the upper ends of the cross-bracing are fastened. She is also braced outside by an iron belt which takes in all the cants and is bolted through them. The stem, cutwater, apron, sternpost, stern-knee-hooks and pointers are all live oak, bolted with copper. Her midship keelsons, assistant keelsons and boiler keelsons, as well as the platform for her motive power, are coaked with lignumvitæ and bolted through the coaking, and all the frames and keelsons are also coaked. Her planking is of white oak square fastened with copper a foot above the load displacement, and above there with galvanized iron. The deck frames are hard pine, and her decks are very stout and strongly secured. She has water-tight bulkheads inclosing the space for her motive power. The accommodations for her officers and crew are spacious and well arranged. Her lines are slightly concave, her ends are long and clean, her forefoot is boldly curved like that of a pilot-boat, and the stern is rounded and finely formed. Her motive power was designed by William W. W. Wood, the chief of the bureau of engineering. The rudder-post and rudder will be of composition, as well as the propeller, made after the most improved designs. She is expected to steam at the rate of twelve knots under ordinary circumstances. She will be a full-rigged ship, and will do most of her cruising under canvas, with the propeller ungeared.

The Difficulties of "Roping In."

He went to Boston on business—did Gregg. On Washington street he was accosted by a stranger with, "Halloo! Jones, how are you?" Meekly replied Gregg, "You are mistaken, sir. I never saw you before. My name is not Jones—it's Gregg." "Ah, yes," replied the stranger; "I had forgotten the name, but it's strange you do not recognize me. Good day. I go up Winter street." "Where did I ever meet him?" quoth Gregg to himself—and a heavy hand came down on his shoulder as another stranger saluted him with, "Gregg, my boy; where did you drop from? Mighty glad to see you. How're the folks?" Gregg didn't remember No. 2 any better than No. 1, and suggested that No. 2 was mistaken in his man. "Why, no," says No. 2, "I was out to your place with —— last year; don't you remember?" "Place! I have no place, sir. I'm boarding at the Tremont." "Well, here's my card—call and see me, my dear fellow. Can't stop to recall reminiscences. Here's my car—so long!" And Gregg saunters along thinking what a numskull he is for not remembering faces and names. Returning to the Tremont, he partakes of a hearty dinner and thinks in the evening he will attend the "Howard," leaving word with the obliging clerk that he expects an uncle by the express, and would like for said relative to wait in the parlor if he does not return from the "Howard" before his arrival. Comfortably seated in an orchestra stall, Gregg gives ear to the fine music of the band and as the curtain rises looks around at a man who takes the next seat to him. "Well! Gregg! by all that's good. Who would have thought of seeing you here?" ejaculates the new comer. Gregg, mystified, begins to think. Is this a game? And he remembers reading of "ropers-in" who adopt just such tactics. His indignation rises and he replies spitefully to the occasional queries of No. 3. The performance over, he seeks the door and rushes from the glare of the light into the darkened street. Somebody seizes him by the arm, stops his headway and in a cheerful tone says, "I thought I'd come around and call you, Gregg. Got tired ——" Here Gregg interposes, "It's none of your —— business if my name is Gregg"—and straight from the shoulder flies a "bunch of fives" which carooms on his tormentor's nose and knocks him into the street. Drawing back for a second "lift," Gregg is horrified, for his eyes become accustomed to the darkness, and his uncle, rising from the dust remonstrates with, "For Heaven's sake, man, are you mad. I got tired waiting for you at the Tremont, came around to call you and have been waiting here twenty minutes!"

School Committee.

At a meeting of the general school committee at the City Rooms on Thursday evening, the following committees were announced by the chairman: On salaries, Chas. W. Gardner, Chas. C. Jones, Henry C. Walker; On examination of teachers, James R. May, Saml. R. Tompson, Chas. C. Jones; On text books, Chas. W. Gardner, Henry C. Walker, Samuel R. Tompson; Purchasing, John Pender, James R. May, Augustus Walden; Truancy John Dixon, Augustus Walden, Wm. C. Newton. It is understood that the last named committee is to be especially vigilant in ferreting out all cases of acute or chronic truancy and report them to the police, who, if they enforce the law relating to truancy will compel the delinquents to attend school or bring them to trial. It is hoped by the truant committee that their efforts may be seconded by all who are interested in the youth, to the end that this prevailing habit of playing truant may be broken up.

City Councils.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, permission was granted Gardner J. Greenleaf to encumber State street, for building purposes.

Wm. Loar declined to act as supernumerary police; voted that the committee on police have power to fill the vacancy.

Petition of J. Stokell & Co. to lay a drain across Cass street was granted, provided the spring under the building be not injured thereby.

Voted, that all regularly employed private watchmen be appointed special police without pay and empowered to act, after registering their names with the City Clerk.

Voted to request the committee on Fire department to enquire into the feasibility of building a reservoir near Puddle Dock. Question in regard to the supply of the Universalist reservoir referred to the same committee.

A committee authorized to repair the landing at the foot of Daniel street, reported it inexpedient to repair the float, and recommended that a flight of stairs with a suitable railing be substituted.

Good Enough.

[Journal.]

The astounding discovery made by Alderman Hatch, that the appropriation for repairs and rents of school houses by the late city government was $3000, and the amount expended $3000.83, fills us with alarm. The position of our unfortunate municipality is very much that of the individual pictured by that other eminent financier, Wilkins Micawber, in his advice to Copperfield: "Annual income twenty pound; annual expenditure twenty pound, ought and six—result, misery. The blossom is blighted, the leaf is withered, the God of day goes down upon the dreary scene and—in short, you are forever floored, as I am."

The Circuit Court.

The case of Raynes vs. Raynes was argued Friday.

The suit of Michael Cunningham et als vs. the Catholic priest and bishop was begun, a large crowd of communicants of St. Mary's church attending. The suit is brought to secure control of the church built by the society.

Laconics.

The book sale at store under the Franklin House closes this evening. Don't fail to attend. A rare chance to purchase valuable books very cheap.

Grand "show" to-night,—just before midnight the moon will hit the earth's shadow, and will not get clear of it until nearly four o'clock Sunday morning. This eclipse will furnish even a better excuse for sitting up late with "her" than the lamented comet did.

The Young Men's Bible Class Association connected with the Court street Christian Society propose giviug an entertainment next Thursday evening at the Court street church.

The U. S. S. "Ticonderoga" has been dismantled and her spars and rigging sent to the yard. None of her stores, however, or any of the articles between decks have been brought on shore. The ship will go out of commission on to-day, and her men will be sent to the receiving ship at Boston by the Speedwell. The vessel will remain at anchor in the lower harbor until the Winter sets in.

The Times says the U. S. S. Plymouth has gone to Boston to be docked,—to help defeat Banks for Congress. The fact is that she has gone to Boston to be docked for the sole purpose of having her bottom cleaned, it having become foul while the vessel has been lying here; and the only reason she was not docked here was that the dock was occupied by the Marion, and can take up but one ship at a time, and the Plymouth's orders admitted of no delay in getting her ready for sea. Excepting in this one trivial matter the vessel is in splendid condition, and had she been docked here the Times would have howled just as loudly, for whatever is or is not done at this station is all wrong, anyway, in its view.

On Monday, at about 12 o'clock, the new "steam sloop No. 1" will be launched. This vessel is one of the eight ordered by Congress, and is pronounced to be one of the finest vessels ever built at this yard.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Store Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, sold by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

The Country Skool Mom.

[Josh Billings.]

She is invariably just about twenty-three years and six months old, and remains rite thare for a term ov years.

She wears her hair either kut short or hanging around in ringlets, and iz as precise in all things az one ov Fairbanks' improved platform scales.

She never laffs out loud, and seldum even smiles, but when she does, she does it accordin' to the rules laid down by Murray for speaking out and pronounncing the inglish language korrecktly.

She is the very essence ov dubble extrackted propriety, and would rather be four years behind the fashions, in her dress and bonnet, than to spel a word wrong, or parse a sentence inkorreckly.

She keeps a scrap book and an album, and would prefer rather to hav the autograff ov sum milk-and-water poet, than the name ov sum good man to a sixty days' note.

The country skool mom seldum dies an old maid; she gets married generally to sum man who haz but little edukashun, and he thinks (as he ought to) that there aint another such a larnt woman as his wife on the face of the earth.

With all her precise phoolishness, her pompous knolledge, her silky sentimentalism, and her allmost allwuss mistaking manner for matter, i respekt the country skool mom; she taught me mi letters, she waz pashunt when i waz stupid, she soothed me when i was frackshus, and she often (good soul) give me a titbit from her lunchion at noon-time.

May kind Heaven strew sum kind ov happiness in her pathway, for she iz paid poorly, worked hardly and the stepmother to everyboddy's children; she never receives from the world ennything better than the most formal respekt.

[2tw2mdo13]

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interspersion of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustain an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 500 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union.

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, 25ty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Smoked Halibut and Salmon.

600 lbs. Smoked Halibut and Salmon, For sale by BUTLER & LAIGHTON.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Piano and Singing.

THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.
